CO. MONAGHAN FARMER

FOUND DEAD IN AN OUT-OFFICE.

The discovery was made by little girls.

Mr. King was being medically attended and an inquest was not considered necessary.

DERRY MOTORIST FINED.

Before Mr. John M. Mark, R.M., at Donemana on Friday, John Thomas M'Clelland, 25 Fountain Place, Londonderry, was fined 2s 6d for using a motor lorry without a reflecting mirror, and 1s for failing to keep a record of his hours of driving.

Sergeant Lynn said defendant told him that the reflecting mirror had been broken off a week previously, and that he had not reported this to his employer.

Defendant said he had left the record of his hours of working at home.

FLIES WERE HIS UNDOING.

A swarm of flies led to the undoing of Alija Smailagich, a Moslem beggar, of Serajevo, where the murders occurred which led to the World War. While passing a confectioner's shop, he saw some tasty pieces of honeycomb displayed. Unnoticed by the proprietor, he pocketed a large chunk of the sweet and made off for a park bench to enjoy it. On the way, however, the honeycomb attracted a large swarm of flies and bees which hovered round his pocket. A detective, who knew the beggar, saw this, followed him and, when he pulled the sweet out, arrested him. Alija is now in prison

POPULAR SANDOWN VICTORY.

PASCH WINS ECLIPSE.

GORDON'S CONFIDENT RIDE.

SCOTTISH UNION WELL BEATEN.

Pasch proved himself to be the great horse I have thought him all the season when he gained one of the easiest victories imaginable in the Eclipse Stakes at Sandown Park yesterday, writes "Hotspur," the "Daily Telegraph" racing correspondent. Gordon Richards, who had never won this very valuable event before, rode a supremely confident race on the son of Blandford.

A huge crowd included Mr. H. E. Morriss, Pasch's owner, who arrived this week from Shanghai to witness his colt's triumph. Pasch looked in splendid condition in the paddock, but I was rather disappointed with the appearance of Scottish Union, who had finished in front of him in the Derby.

Fair Copy also looked very well, and was almost as well backed as Mr. Rank's colt. Pasch, however, started a good favourite. The race proved my contention that Pasch lost the Derby because he could not come down the hill, as he fairly slammed Scottish Union yesterday. It is unlikely that Pasch will run again before the St. Leger, but his trainer, Fred Darling, tells me that nothing has been settled.

BECKHAMPTON'S GOOD YEAR

The running was made by Cave Man and Blandstar, with Scottish Union next, and Perifox last of all. Cave Man went ahead entering the straight, and soon had a clear lead of about three lengths.

Even then Richards showed no sign of worry on the favourite, but a couple of furlongs out he asked Pasch for an effort and the response was almost electrifying. Pasch shot into the lead and galloped up the hill, as if he were thoroughly enjoying himself, to resist the challenge of Fair Copy with the greatest of ease by three lengths.

Cave Man held on to get third place in front of Scottish Union, but from the distance there was only one horse in it. Perifox ran as badly as his recent form suggested would be the case, and Blandstar was outclassed.

F. Darling, the Beckhampton trainer, is having a wonderful year, having won this race and the Two Thousand Guineas with Pasch and the Derby with Bois Roussel. He saddled Coronach when that good horse won the Eclipse 12 years ago. Pasch's victory was very popular, cheering breaking out all round some way before he had passed the post.

MAHER'S LUCKY ESCAPE.

Peter Maher had a fortunate escape from serious injury when Control, his mount and a hot favourite for the Great Kingston Two-Year-Old Plate, collided with some "dolls" just after the start, and threw him heavily. Maher will not be able to ride to-day, as he damaged his shoulder, and has an abrasion on his hip.

Control was badly cut on both forelegs. The stewards held an inquiry into the accident, and found that nobody was to blame. The "dolls" had been placed at the point where the round course crosses the straight five-furlong track.

The race was won easily by Leading Topic, who made practically all the running, and passed the post with four lengths to spare from a bunch of horses, of whom Superbe was placed second and Good Fare third. Kenilworth, who took a long time to get going, missed a place by inches.

Leading Topic must have been a real certainty when he won at Lingfield Park last week, although he had only a neck to spare from Cheer Boys Cheer. He is by Figaro, and will win more races for Mr. C. W. Gordon.

WATERBIRD BEATS SHALFLEET.

His trainer, Jack Jarvis, who is something of a Sandown specialist, completed a double when he sent out Waterbird for the Surbiton Handicap Stakes. Shalfleet was made favourite, but found the task of giving Waterbird 15lb. quite beyond him, and was beaten six lengths.

Waterbird has made nice improvement, as Shalfleet gave him a stone and beat him easily at Manchester last month. I remember, however, that Waterbird was hampered on that occasion. Yesterday he jumped off in front, and was never headed, giving E. Smith his second winning ride of the afternoon.

ASTERION DISAPPOINTS.

A winner over the course last month, Asterion let his supporters down badly in the Victoria Handicap, for which he was made a good favourite. When the field settled down Bimco was making the running from Broad Oaks and Penny Hill, and the ex-hurdler was clear entering the straight.

He had enough soon afterwards, however, and Penny Hill took the lead, closely followed by Zeus and Lost Scent, with Toy Artist and Madeira Knight improving on the outside. Penny Hill was the first to be beaten, and for a moment it looked as if Zeus would win.

Toy Artist finished too strongly for Gordon Richards' mount up the hill, however, and, powerfully ridden by Maher, got up near the post to score by half a length. Madeira Knight ran on well to keep Lost Scent out of third place.

It was Toy Artist's first success since he won over a similar distance at Newbury more than 12 months ago. Then, curiously enough, he also got up in the last few strides to beat Zeus, and they were handicapped on that running yesterday.

CAFFYNS WINS AGAIN.

On their running over the course last month it seemed reasonably safe to assume that Egyptian Queen would beat Caffyns in the Milburn Selling Plate. Odds were laid on the daughter of Rameses II., and halfway up the straight she looked like landing them, having drawn up to Royal Banner without any difficulty.

Suddenly Gordon Richards began to ride the favourite, but there was no response, and Royal Banner drew away. All this time the gigantic Caffyns had been improving his position on the outside, and challenging Royal Banner close home got up to win by a short head.

Lowrey rode a splendid finish on Caffyns, who was winning for the third time this season. The son of Coronach used to be in Basil Jarvis's stable, but is now owned by the East Ilsley trainer, G. Todd. Caffyns was bought in for 175 guineas.

ANOTHER FAVOURITE FAILS.

Another favourite failed when the disappointing Golden Fox was well beaten by Scotland for Ever in the Ditton Selling Plate for Two-Year-Olds. Mythical Maid was best away, and held a slight lead from Golden Fox and Scotland for Ever for four furlongs. She was in trouble shortly afterwards, and Scotland for Ever drew out to win easily by three lengths from the favourite, with the rest of the field well strung out.

The winner who was well backed, completed a double for Lowrey. He is by Cameronian, and was bought in for 720 guineas.

NUFFIELD "KIDNAP" CASE.

ASSIZE TRIAL ON TUESDAY.

The hearing of the case in which a plot to kidnap Viscount Nuffield is alleged to have been made will begin at Birmingham Assizes on Tuesday.

John Bruce Thornton (50), of no occupation, who was committed from Oxford on June 13, is charged that—(1) On May [illegible] at Oxford, he was in possession of [illegible] automatic pistols and ammunition with intent to endanger life; and (2) On and between April 1 and May 24 he did incite Arthur Geoffrey Francis Ramsden to conspire with him to kidnap Lord Nuffield.

Second Report—Cane sugar firm. Cocoa—West African, slow demand and full prices asked by sellers; forward shipments quiet. Coffee quietly steady. Rice quiet. Linseed, River Plate barely steady, £11 16s 3d to £11 17s 6d July-August shipments. Palm oil rather quieter, sellers soft oils July-August £14 10s, August-September £14 12s 6d, September-October £14 15s, October-November also November-December £14 17s 6d transit option, 2s 6d less ex-quay terms; Lagos forward nominally quoted £15 7s 6d. Tallow firm and quiet. Palm kernels steady. Rubber—Hard fine Para spot and forward quoted 7½d; plantation opened rather easier, later steadier, buyers spot August 7½d, October-December 7½d. Linseed oil steady. Resin and petroleum and turpentine steady. Ground nuts quietly steady. Lard 50s to 52s; firm.

LIVERPOOL PROVISIONS.—Poultry: fowls 7d, chickens 10d to 11d. Small spring chickens unquoted.

LIVERPOOL CORN—At the closing spot market wheat was scarce and little altered. Flour quiet and unaltered, straight run 28s 6d ex-mill. Maize steady, American yellow 6s 2d, River Plate new crop 7s. Oats quietly steady, English white 8s 9d to 9s. Oatmeal steady. Barley dull, No. 3 Canadian Western 26s 3d to 26s 6d. Bran thirds steady. Fair trade.

CLEVELAND IRON—As buyers believe stocks and existing contracts proved sufficient tonnage for summer requirements business is likely to be confined to exceptionally narrow limits over the holiday season. Cleveland pig is virtually unsaleable and calls for contract deliveries are very light, consumers of foundry iron having still heavy tonnage of foreign material to absorb before they can return to normal use of local products. Substantially reduced production of East Coast hematite is more than sufficient for current needs and further curtailment of output seems essential as stocks are embarrassingly heavy. Producers of most kinds of semi-finished and finished iron and steel running plant at below capacity.

BIRKENHEAD CATTLE—There was a smaller supply of cattle on offer to-day, which met with an all-round firmer trade. Well-finished sorts were again scarce. Choice small bullocks and heifers made 8½d, best heavy sorts 8d, other descriptions 7½d; young cows and bulls 5½d to 6d, aged sorts 4d to 4½d. Canadian cattle were cleared at about late rates. Lambs were a slow trade throughout the week and less money had to be accepted; prices ranged from 8½d to 9d, all prices per lb. sinking the offal. The week's supplies were 708, Irish cattle 989, Canadian cattle 6,428.

DUBLIN CORN—Market quiet with buyers showing a waiting attitude around previous values—White oats 13s 6d to 15s 3d, and black 13s to 13s 6d—per barrel delivered.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL—Works being closed, the market is idle. The market will be closed on Monday.

EXHIBITION TRIP TRAGEDY.

DUNDEE MAN THE VICTIM.

MYSTERY OF PRESENCE ON TRAIN.

While an Empire Exhibition special train bound from Glasgow to Wick sped through Killiecrankie a man swayed on the running board for a moment, then crashed head first into a barricade of railway sleepers and was killed.

He was afterwards identified as David H. Kidd (53), a gasmeter inspector, employed by Dundee Corporation, and lived at 23 Bonnybank Road, Dundee.

In his fall he struck a signalman standing by the barricade, and knocked him to the ground. The signalman, Donald Kennedy, Killiecrankie, struggled to his feet and, after realising what had happened, hurried to a signal cabin and telephoned Blair Atholl Station to have the train stopped.

Kidd was last seen making his way along the corridor of the train a short distance from Killiecrankie with another man, but, despite exhaustive inquiries, no trace could be found of his companion.

When the train was stopped at Blair Atholl one of the carriage doors was seen swinging open.

One theory is that Kidd may have boarded the train which was carrying excursionists back to Wick, at Perth Station. Realising that he was on the wrong train, he may have tried to jump as it approached Killiecrankie Station.

BELFAST-PORTRUSH EXPRESS

CRASHED INTO GATES.

ACCIDENT AT COLERAINE.

TWO PASSENGERS INJURED.

Two passengers were admitted to Hopefield Cottage Hospital, Portrush, as the result of an accident in which the L M S Railway Co.'s "North Atlantic Express" was involved on the outskirts of Coleraine on Friday evening.

The express, which is non-stop—except for a halt at Ballymena—left Belfast for Portrush at 5-15 p.m. It reached Coleraine at 6-25 and passed through the station well up to scheduled time.

Three or four hundred yards further on the train crashed into the gates at the Calf Lane level-crossing.

The gates were closed to the train, which crashed into them at a speed of from 40 to 50 miles an hour.

The impact was heard for some considerable distance and the gates, which were of a very substantial nature, were completely shattered, pieces of wood and metal being thrown a hundred yards or so away.

Fortunately there was no traffic over the crossing at the moment, and no person in the immediate vicinity. The express pulled up in about 250 yards, having fortunately escaped being derailed.

It was then found that two of the passengers—Mrs. Smith, of Rutherwood Avenue, Glasgow, and her son, Mr. James Smith, who is in the early twenties—had been injured by broken glass.

After a short delay the express continued on its journey to Portrush, and on arrival Mrs. Smith and her son were removed to Hopefield Hospital.

On inquiry at the hospital, our correspondent was informed that Mrs. Smith had sustained a rather severe wound to the head, as well as being badly shocked. Her son, who was also suffering from shock, had a slight abrasion over the left eye.

When the train had resumed its journey it was seen that the permanent way for some 200 yards was littered with broken wood and metal. The accident did not cause any delay to trains running between Coleraine and Portrush subsequently. No damage was caused to the permanent way.

Traffic over the line in the evening was exceptionally heavy, a number of special trains from different centres having been put on for the fireworks display at Portrush.

PRAGUE WORKERS SENTENCED.

Two were sentenced to ten months' and six months' imprisonment respectively, and two others to four months. Four were acquitted.—Exchange.

NOTABLE ATTRACTIONS.

COMEDY AND THRILLS.

ROYAL CINEMA.

The story of David Garrick is told in "The Great Garrick," first feature at the Royal Cinema next week, which has Brian Aherne, Olivia de Havilland and Edward Horton in the leading roles. In this romantic comedy Garrick accepts an invitation to play with the Comedie Francaise in Paris. To excuse his absence he announces from the stage that he is to give his French cousins a lesson in acting. This causes the director of the Comedie Francaise to launch a plan to take the great actor down a peg or two. The three Mesquiteers in "Range Defender" will also be screened.

RITZ THEATRE.

P. G. Wodehouse's social comedy, "A Damsel in Distress," heads the programme at the Ritz. The mirth is punctuated by catchy tunes, and for the first time Fred Astaire appears with George Burns and Gracie Allen. The dancing favourite has ample opportunities to display his skill and Burns and Allen are in fine form. The second feature, "You're Only Young Once," stars Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker and Mickey Rooney.

CLASSIC CINEMA.

The latest jungle film from Edgar Rice Burrough, "Tarzan's Revenge," heads the programme at the Classic next week with Glen Morris in the title role and Eleanor Holm as his mate. There are thrills galore and an absorbing romance. A mystery film, "Who Killed John Savage," which is second feature, stars Nicholas Hannen and Barry Mackay. There will be the usual support.

CRUMLIN PICTURE HOUSE.

Sandy Powell, whose mother is on a visit to Ulster at present, is at the Crumlin Pitcure House on Monday in "Leave it to Me." He is a misfit policeman, but proves his worth when he meets a gang of Chinese thieves. "New Faces," at the week-end, is a back-stage musical, with Joe Penner heading the cast, and there will be a variety of supplementary shorts in each programme.

NEW COMPANY TAKE OVER HIPPODROME.

MR. G. DOBLER MANAGER

STATES ITS FUTURE POLICY.

MOST UP-TO-DATE ENTERTAINMENT

The Belfast Hippodrome, held under a seven-year lease by the Associated British Cinemas since 1931, has been acquired by David Forrester Theatres, Ltd., which controls a chain of entertainment houses in different parts of England.

The theatre-going public will be pleased that Mr. George Dobler, so long identified with the Hippodrome, will continue as general manager. This fact in itself is a guarantee that the splendid traditions of the ever popular rendezvous will be maintained.

During his connection with the Hippodrome the house has done exceptionally well. In the course of the last seven years many records in box office receipts have been established.

The Hippodrome closes down from tomorrow night until August 1, when it will be reopened with De Mille's famous picture "The Buccaneer," featuring Fredric March, supported by Franciska Gaal and many other screen stars.

The story is brimful of excitement as well as romance, whilst a spice of authentic history enhances its appeal. The British are winning the war of 1812 when Dolly Madison, wife of the President, flees from a dinner at the Presidential Palace with the Declaration of Independence under her cloak. Thrilling episodes follow, and these reach their peak at the headquarters of the pirates, where Jean Lafitte, an outlaw, falls madly in love with a belle of New Orleans. It is a captivating story from start to finish.

In an interview to-day, Mr. Dobler said the future policy of the theatre had been determined in so far as picture production was concerned. They would continue to screen the very best pictures available, but it was also possible that the company would decide to introduce other forms of entertainment as well. In order to be prepared for a development of this kind the stage was being brought into line with modern ideas.

Other improvements were being carried out including a new projection installation, a complete revision of the electricity effects, the decoration of the building, and other renovations.

Mr. Dobler is entirely sanguine as to the future success of the Hippodrome, in view of the prestige established in the past, and more especially since it went into pictures.

"I can assure you," he said, "my aim will be to give the public the pick of all that is best. That, so far, has been the secret of the patronage we have enjoyed."

The Royal Hippodrome was first opened as a music hall on April 1, 1907.

PLATINUM WEDDING.

HUSBAND 88, WIFE 90.

The rare anniversary of a "platinum wedding" will be celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Swan, of Worthing, on July 23. They will then have been married 65 years.

Mr. Swann is 88 and Mrs. Swan 90. Both are well and active.

Mr. Swan was born at Worthing. As a young man he was a carpenter. Later he went to Fulham and founded a business from which he retired when he was 50.

The couple have two sons and two daughters, two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

They have no health rules. "They live simply and never allow anything to worry them," said one of their sons to a reporter yesterday.

THE BELFAST PLAYHOUSE.

"AUCTION IN KILLYBUCK."

Owing to the enormous success of "The Auction in Killybuck" it is to be retained for a further week at the Playhouse.

The theatre is being packed nightly and so many people have been disappointed at being unable to obtain seats, that Mr. Norway thinks it is only fair that they should be given an opportunity of witnessing this amusing play of Ulster life.

There is a big cast of Ulster favourites, and judging by the hearty laughter and obvious enjoyment of the audiences this week it augurs well for next week.

Patrons are advised to book early to avoid disappointment, and are reminded that every seat is bookable. The prices are 6d, 1s, 1s 3d and 2s 4d.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS IN POTS

The Gardener's Corner: In Days Of Rainstorm

By "THE MAN WITH THE HOE"

AS these are days of gales and heavy rains, Chrysanthemums in pots, if not already staked and tied up, should be attended to now or they may be broken by the wind. The stakes are more easily inserted if the plants get a thorough watering before the operation.

All weeds should be removed and a top dressing of fibrous loam with a little leaf mould and sand and some bone meal should be given. The pots should be place in a sunny aspect as these plants delight in the sunshine.

The out-of-door varieties should also be kept clear of weeds and be carefully tied up, as they soon will be cming into flower. Dahlias also require the same attention, and if their shoots are numerous they should be thinned out.

In order to bring flowers to perfection it is desirable to give the plants coming into bloom occasional help with fertilisers, which is suitable to each plant's requirement.

For instance, there is a fertiliser specially suitable for roses, another for chrysanthemums, one for sweet peas, and one for tomatoes. These have been specially made by horticultural chemists to suit the requirements of the different plants. Exhibitors at shows know the value of them in bringing their plants u pto exhibition standard.

A simple fertiliser can easily be made by putting a bag of soot into a cask of water, or if a stronger one is required, a small bag filled with farmyard manure put into a barrel or tub of water answers the purpose. The principle to be guided be is not to have the liquid too strong and to give little and often well diluted.

There are some unusual plants show-inflorescence at present. Amongst these were noted Cordyline Australis, Eucalyptus Globosa, New Zealand Flax, and others.

MOCK ORANGES.

The Philadelphus family (Mock Oranges) are now coming into bloom. Their flowers are fragrant and beautiful and are known as "Brides' Blossom." They are easily increased by cuttings. They should be pruned after flowering, thinning out the shoots that have flowered only. The Kniphofia plants (Red-hot Poker) are also beginning to bloom, and the different varieties will come into flower from now on until the autumn. Spiræas ,too, are attractive in shrubberies, especially the tall red, and the white varieties.

Windows in villages are often seen bright with geraniums and pelargoniums, the Scarborough Lily (Vallota Purpurea) and white and purple campanulas are also often grown, and a cactus plant with a red flower was also noted. Cacti plant culture is stated to be on the increase. They may be raised from seed sown during the summer in a greenhouse.

A very sandy compost is desirable, and the seeds should be pressed into the soil but should not be covered with it. In most orchards last year there were very large crops of apples, pears, and plums, but this year there appears to be generally a great scarcity of these fruits. Currants and gooseberry bushes are not up to the average, but strawberries are more plentiful, and are now ripening freely during the days when warm sunshine prevails.

POPPIES OF ALL KINDS.

Poppies of all kinds are now gay in many gardens, especially the annual and the Shirley varieties. The hybrid perennial Giant Coonara and Iceland poppies in the herbaceous border brighten it up with their pretty fragile flowers, and there is a small variety, Alpinum, which is only six inches in height and is therefore suitable for the rock garden.

The Iceland and Alpine types may be sown during the late summer either in boxes in a cold frame or out-of-doors on a prepared seed bed. They should be carefully watched and transplanted into their permanent quarter in October for flowering next year. The places for them should be filled with good, strong soil.

In the kitchen garden, there is always plenty to do this month. It is generally the wettest month in the year, so that during the fine days hoeing and moulding up must be attended to and the walks kept tidy and free from weeds. Celery which has not been planted should be attended to now, as it will come in useful for late supplies. Parsley may still be sown for winter, and mustard and cress for immediate use. Turnips may also be sown and spinach to stand the winter, and the planting of savoys, curleys, and sprouting broccoli completed.

GOSSIP FROM PRESS.

PULPIT DIALOGUE STUNT

AND ANTI-FASCIST SERVICE.

LONDON, Saturday.

Daring extension of the "pulpit dialogue" stunt is to be tried to-morrow evening at St. Peter's Church, just behind Piccadilly Circus. While the Rev. Clarence May is preaching, the Rev. Cecil Clark, diminutive Wanstead parson, will sit in a front pew. Whenever May says something that Clark thinks arguable, Clark will jump up and say, "Just one moment, please," and engage May in argument. Interruptions will be spontaneous. There is to be no rehearsal. Meanwhile, Canterbury's "Red" Dean, Dr. Hewlett Johnson will be on his way to preach at an equally unusual service, a "solemn commemoration of the victims of Fascist aggression" at St. Clement's Church, Arundel Square, London. This church is Church of England, but, as the congregation is to include Chinese and Spanish Embassy and Basque representatives, the Emperor of Ethiopia, Communists, Liberals, Jews, I imagine pure Anglicanism will be reinforced by at least five other faiths.—"William Hickey" in the "Daily Express."

MR. EDEN AND U.S.A.

Mr. Eden's contemplated holiday visit to the United States no doubt accounts for the rumour that he is destined to become our next Ambassador in Washington. While there is no truth in this report, it is by no means certain that Mr. Eden will, after all, cross the Atlantic this summer. Personally he would like to make the trip, if only for his interest which he showed when in office in improving Anglo-American relations. But he has been advised by his friends that in the present state of international relations he should not go so far afield, in view of the fact that Mr. Chamberlain is unwilling to implement the Anglo-Italian Treaty until its preliminary conditions have been fulfilled. Mr. Eden's position is approximating more closely to that of his former chief.—Peterborough in the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post."

WORST TRIAL EVER.

"That has been the worst fourteen hundred miles I've ever ridden," one of the riders in the international six days' trial, which ended the road section last night at Llandrindod Wells, told me over the telephone. I am sorry for the survivors—only 70 out of 204 by the way—who to-day have to flog tired machines at racing speeds over the tortuous road course at Donnington. Heroines are the two women, Mrs. Anning and Miss Marjorie Cottle, both of whom rode superbly and qualified for bronze and silver medals respectively. Bad luck robbed Marjorie of her gold medal. She lost a mark through congestion on a hill and another yesterday morning through a misunderstanding about her starting time.—"Wonderful London," in the "Daily Sketch."

CELEBRATION.

New York is celebrating Hughes' triumph. First and greatest of New York's famous celebrations was one to welcome Armistice. Offices and businesses were deserted. Impromptu parades grew to gigantic proportions. Lower Broadway invented first artificial "snowstorm—"ticker tape, telephone books, office stationery and waste-basket contents. Only drawback was that all this happened on November 7 as result of incorrect report sent in good faith. When real armistice was signed four days later celebrations were only pale reflection of November 7 outburst.—"The World this Morning," in the "News-Chronicle."

THE LATE MR. C. J. AGNEW.

The funeral took place to Dundonald Cemetery to-day of Mr. Charles J. Agnew, of Macedon, Whitehouse, founder of the well-known firm of C. J. Agnew & Sons, estate agents, May Street, Belfast. The chief mourners were his sons Mr. C. F. J. Agnew and Mr. T. B. Agnew. In addition to close friends in business there were also present representatives of the organisations with which Mr. Agnew was associated.

The funeral arrangements were carried out by Thomas Johnson & Sons, Ltd.

Saturday Commentary by Lady Oxford and Asquith

The World's In Too Big a Hurry

I SOMETIMES think that we need a diversion from the perpetual discussions in the Press and in Parliament upon foreign policy. I remember the time when these were kept entirely out of party politics, and it would have been as vulgar to discuss them even in private as if you scratched your head with a fork when dining with the King.

By "diversion" I mean a change of thought and delay. There is far too much hustle, haste, and hurry to-day to allow sensible politicians to reflect, and when I hear people say: "Oh! He's a go-getter (an American term). and surely something should be done!" I feel certain that that something will be foolish.

WHAT RULERS NEED.

YOU gain nothing in life unless you have leisure in which you can reflect.

I think it was Napoleon who had lost all his letters at sea, and said that he was glad of it, as time had answered them better than he could ever have done.

Patience and calm are qualities more essential in our rulers to-day than they have ever been, and to get going merely because of public clamour is a profound mistake. Busy men should be amused, or their tired minds will get fixed and lose their freshness.

A CHAT A COURT.

I ATTENDED the last Court of this short and somewhat disturbed season to present a pretty daughter of my cousin, Ernest Tennant, and, after I had made my courtsy to the King, I sat on a red bench next to Mrs. Lloyd George, and watched an endless stream of the mothers of debutantes who were being presented. When the band was playing loud enough Mrs. Lloyd George—the best of women—and I exchanged a little whispered conversation.

THE LLOYD GEORGES

"I reminded Mrs. Lloyd George of the days when her children and mine played in Downing Street . ."

I reminded her of the days before the war, when her children and mine played in the Downing Street gardens, and Megan had a small black pug, and Elizabeth a Persian cat. We agreed that those were days of real happiness, in which neither nations nor individuals were always quarrelling.

She said she was glad to think that her husband had never quarrelled with mine, to which I replied: "No, he did not quarrel, but he made a mistake when he separated from him."

MUCH-LOVED KING.

I DO not think she heard this, as at that moment a lady was wheeled past the King in a bath-chair, and all of us admired her for her dignity and courage.

The absence of the Queen cast a shadow over the Court. Nevertheless, our much-loved King performed his duties with exceptional gravity and grace.

I daresay I am prejudiced, but though I think my sex should smile, I think gravity of all importance in men of whatever profession.

Circulating smiles remind me of confectionery. and, like the icing on cakes, prevent me from ever knowing what is concealed.

SLIPS THAT PASS.

I WOULD like someone cleverer than myself to collect all the good sayings and good stories that they have ever heard, and publish them, as I am certain that such a book would have an enormous sale.

Even misprints can be diverting. I remember, after my husband had addressed a great meeting in the Midlands, reading an account of it in one of the morning papers, which wrote: "The Prime Minister spoke with his accustomary eloquence and lucidity, and at the finish of an enthusiastic meeting a large crow joined in the singing of that magnificent and well-known hymn, 'Rock of Ages.'"

I am rather slow in some ways, and it was only when my husband was dissolved in laughter that I realised the word should have been "crowd," not "crow." I read the other day: "Wanted, as secretary or companion, a comfortable woman, to live in." This time I was not caught napping, and I guessed "competent" was the right word.

But I could not help thinking how many more happy marriages there would be if men lived with comfortable women.

Another misprint of minor significance was: "Five fish by Air," meaning "Live fish"—and I could add many more, but fear they would bore my readers.

W.G. SHUDDERED.

THE fact that the next Test Match is to be played at Leeds reminds me of a story of the late Alfred Lyttleton, who married my sister, Laura Tennant.

He was a member of one of the most famous families of cricket in Britain, and the amateur champion of tennis (not to be confused with lawn tennis).

He told me that when he was playing under the captaincy of W. G. Grace, in a match at Scarborough, he was fast asleep, when W. G. Grace came at an early hour into his bedroom and woke him. Alfred, only half awake, struck out, in the belief that he was being attacked. "Hold hard!" exclaimed Grace, "You've slept long enough; I want you to come with me and examine the pitch."

W. G. GRACE

A bath made him shudder.

Alfred was appalled at having narrowly missed hitting his hero. "What's that, Alfred?" asked Grace, pointing to a tin bath on the floor of the bedroom. "That's my bath," said Alfred.

At which "W.G." exclaimed: "It makes me shudder!"

BANGOR ACCIDENT.

TRAIN OVERRAN BUFFERS.

COACH SMASHED TO MATCHWOOD.

One third-class coach was smashed to matchwood and another was considerably damaged when an empty Belfast and County Down train over-ran the buffers at Bangor this morning and partly mounted the platform, felling an iron railing just inside the barrier. No one was injured.

The accident occurred just after the seven o'clock train had left for Belfast and another line of carriages—the 7-15 workmen's train—was being shunted into position beside the platform which had just been vacated.

The engine was at the rear of the train, and when the leading carriage crashed into the buffers it telescoped into a jumbled mass of wood and iron. The wreckage was strewn all over the platform which, fortunately, was unoccupied at the time.

The noise of the crash brought officials running from the offices, and in a short time a breakdown gang was at work clearing away the debris.

DOWN MOUNTAIN ACCIDENT.

BELFASTMAN'S FALL.

While climbing on the Mourne Mountains, near Hilltown (County Down), on Friday afternoon, George Finlay, a young Belfast man, slipped and fell a considerable distance. He escaped with bruises on the head, face and hands.

TO BE DETAINED.

MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER.

John Welsh (33), a Fifeshire egg pedlar, who was arrested at Southampton on a charge of murdering his uncle, William Forrester (71), at Leslie, Fife, on April 24, was at the High Court of Justiciary, Edinburgh, yesterday ordered to be detained during the King's pleasure. Welsh was alleged to have murdered his uncle by striking him with a pair of tongs.

The Lord Justice Clerk announced the decision after hearing medical evidence of Welsh's mental condition.

Dr. Charles Bruce, of Perth Prison, said that Welsh told involved stories of American gangsters in the Fifeshire village of Kinglassie.

DOG'S BARK SAVES CHILD.

KIDNAPPING ATTEMPT BY MONKEY

CALCUTTA, Friday.—A small puppy saved a six months' old child when a monkey tried to kidnap it at Unao, United Provinces.

The child, which had been left by its mother for a few minutes was lying on the balcony of a house when a large monkey jumped up and tried to snatch it away.

The family dog, which had been keeping watch on the child, jumped up and bit the monkey but was badly clawed, so he retired a few yards and began barking furiouslyy.

The noise attracted the mother, who ran upstairs and was just in time to save the child from being carried off.

The monkey was a female which had lost a baby of its own.—Reuter.

CALL TO CHURCHES.

FASCIST MENACE TO DEMOCRACY.

ANTI-JEWISH SAVAGERY.

SORROWS OF ETHIOPIA.

Following the lead given by St. Clement's Church, Barnsbury, which on Sunday is holding a special service of protest against the menace to democracy from Fascist aggression, and the savagery of the anti-Jewish and anti-religious campaign in Germany, the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction has suggested to some 1,600 ministers of all denominations who are among its members, that on July 17 they should make special reference at their services to these atrocities which are now taking place all over the so-called civilised world.

The Council states it is much gratified by the response to this suggestion, and it is now certain that on Sunday in some hundreds of churches throughout England and Wales an effort will be made to arouse the public conscience to the horrors of aggression now going on.

Representatives of the Council of Action will be attending the service at St. Clement's, Barnsbury, where the preacher will be the Dean of Canterbury, and Mr. Lloyd George has sent the following message:—

"The people of Spain have entered upon a second year of war. The carnage and cruelty of that conflict surpass all description. They shame human nature. They offer a deadly challenge to Christianity. The misery, and starvation, the maiming and slaughtering by the thousand of women and children, innocent victims of savage aggression, the bombing of cities, blasting and shattering of homes, destruction of a whole nation call for something deeper and stronger than mere sympathy on our part.

"BREACH OF PLEDGES."

"We have an uncomfortable responsibility in the matter, for it is now known beyond challenge that the continuance of this pitiless war is due to the ambitions and the active invasion of Spain by alien forces in breach of pledges given to and accepted by us. Holding the greatest Empire on earth we are beyond all other nations responsible for the maintenance of justice and moral principle in international affairs. If we fail in that trust and allow good faith and righteous dealings to perish in world relations, no heaping up of arms can save us from chaos and ruin.

"The bitter woes of the Spanish people and of all those oppressed in Ethiopia, in China, and in the heart of Europe, claim from us not only our pity and our prayers, but active effort in the service of One who came as He Himself announced, not only to preach good tidings and to heal, but to give deliverance, vision and liberty to the captives and blind and the bruised."

ITALIAN ATTITUDE TO JEWS

PRAISED IN NAZI PRESS.

EUROPEAN IDEAL.

Prominence is given in the German Press to details of the "ten points" of the Italian Fascist attitude towards the Jewish question which appeared in the "Giornale d'Italia," states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Berlin correspondent.

Typical headlines are "recognition of Aryanism," "Fascism proclaims itself a disciple of racial doctrines," and "the Nordic regarded as the true European ideal."

While no detailed comment has so far appeared, it is emphasised that the unnamed professors of Rome University who drew up the manifesto were acting under the direction of the Ministry for Popular Culture "and therefore on the highest instructions."

The paragraph in the manifesto which begins "the Hebrews do not belong to the Italian race" is reproduced in heavy type and it is urged that the "ten points" as a whole are "worthy of the closest regard."

THE ITALIAN PRESS CHORUS.

ROME. Friday.—The Italian Press continues to attach great importance to the Fascist enunciation of the theory of racialism which was issued last night. Extracts from German comments have evidently been received with approval, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

"Il Tevere," a Roman paper, which generally expresses extreme views, reminds its readers that it was one of the pioneers of the new Italian racialism. It produces in large capitals the passage of yesterday's enunciation, which states that Jews do not belong to the Italian race.

"Il Tevere" proceeds to say that it seems incredible that it has been necessary to solemnly proclaim the fundamental truth that the Jew is a person extraneous to Italy. His intrusion into the very core of the pure Italian race is inadmissible and unbearable. The Hebrew question is biological and political. The logical deduction of this enunciation will come in its own good time, and will take the form of a clear-cut policy towards the Jewish problem.

HENLEINISTS LEAVE FOR GERMANY.

SIGNIFICANT MOVEMENTS.

CZECH SUSPICION AROUSED.

A large number of men from the Henlein Party have been crossing the frontier into Germany during the week, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Prague correspondent. Reports of such movements have been received from Dux, Teplitz, Aussig, and various places in the Erzgebirge

During the past two days Henleinists stood in long queues awaiting their turn to pass through the frontier barriers at Meuglitz, Zinnwald, and Moldau.

On Wednesday 300 Henleinists passed through the Zinnwald barrier, and since Monday 1,400 have left at this point.

Three thousand have passed through Teplitz in the last few days.

SUDETAN LEGION?

The ostensible reason is that these men are going to be given work in Germany. The Czechs, however, suspect that they are being recruited into a Sudeten Legion.

Reports that the situation has resulted in a number of reservists recently released being recalled are denied, but I understand that certain unobtrusive precautions are being taken.

It is stated that an agreement was reached on Friday between Dr. Hodza, the Prime Minister, and the Coalition Parties Committee on the draft of the language law, and on the law for the reform of the Administration. It is expected that these will be placed before Parliament next week.

An agreement on the nationalities statute has not yet been reached.

V.C. COLONEL PROMOTED.

COMMAND 2nd INFANTRY BRIGADE.

The "London Gazette" announces the appointment of Colonel C. E. Hudson, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., to be commander 2nd Infantry Brigade, with the temporary rank of Brigadier whilst so employed.

His promotion to the rank of colonel from June 30, 1938, with seniority from January 1, 1936, is also gazetted.

Colonel Hudson, who is 46, won the V.C. on the Asiago Plateau in Italy, and also holds the Italian Silver Medal for Military Valour, the French War Cross, the D.S.O. and bar, and the Military Cross. He was mentioned in despatches six times. In addition to service in France, Belgium, and Italy he was Brigade Major in North Russia from May to October, 1919.

On Thursday afternoon the Moderator of the General Assembly the Right Rev. W. J. Currie, D.D., visited the camp and spent some time inspecting the tents and talking to officers and boys. He was a much welcome visitor as he is himself a B.B. Chaplain, being Chaplain of the 1st Bangor Company which is strongly represented at camp. He addressed the boys at tea-time and afterwards had tea in the officers' mess, where he again expressed his appreciation of the work of the B.B.

On Friday Dr. Stevenson, missionary to India, visited the camp and addressed the boys briefly on his work. His visit was also of particular interest to B.B. members, as the boys of the Presbyterian B.B. Bible Classes have recently provided the mission hospital at Wadwan, where he is stationed, with a new operating table. He expressed his thanks for the help this gave him in his work and joined the officers at tea. After tea Mr. Purdy and Mr. M'Vicker expressed the appreciation of the officers mess, of the work of the C.O. and his staff.

The Rev. F. C. Jameson, B.A. (St. Mary Magdalene Church) conducted the closing devotional service at the camp on the subject of "Temperance." The campers arrive in the city this evening via Donaghadee.

CLOGHER VALLEY SHOW.

Captain J. H. King, president of the Clogher Valley Agricultural Society, presided at a meeting of the General Committee in the Courthouse, Ballygawley, on Friday evening, when all arrangements were made for the annual show in Ballygawley this month.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE PARTY.

The Lord Chamberlain wishes to remind their Majesties' guests that, as already announced in the Press, the afternoon party at Buckingham Palace will be held on Monday, July 18, instead of on July 21, as originally arranged.

The cards issued for admission on July 21 will, of course, be available for use on Monday, July 18.

EIRE PRESIDENT IN MOTOR SMASH.

CAR DROPS 10FT. INTO A BOG

HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

Dr. Douglas Hyde, President of Eire, had a narrow escape on Friday when his motor-car, in avoiding another car near Athlone, ran off the road and dropped 10 feet into a bog.

The President was uninjured, and was able to continue his journey to his private residence at Frenchpark.

Road Safety—By JOHN BLAKE.

In a recent digest on "Modern Traffic Enforcement Methods," First Deputy Police Commissioner John J. Seery, of New York City, said that "every driver considers himself an expert, particularly if he has company in the car"

The report also emphasised the fact that few traffic violations are committed with wrong intent. The driver generally makes a mistake, misinterpreting a traffic signal, or is ignorant of the law. Surveys have indicated that more than 90 per cent. of motorists are law-abiding citizens, willing to co-operate with authorities in reducing accidents, eager to comply with regulations when they know them.

One of the most dangerous drivers on the road is the timid, hesitant driver, who loses his head in a pinch and does the wrong thing at the worst possible moment. Our modern roads are so congested that one mistake can have serious consequences.

Last week I reached the scene of an accident soon after four cars had been seriously smashed and the occupants injured. One automobile caused the accident. A timid fellow had decided to make a "U-turn," but losing heart at the last moment, he swerved back into line. The oncoming cars would never have been in an accident if he had not changed his mind at the last minute. But his lack of decision caused a side-swipe. The side-swiping car hit off into another car, which was, in turn, knocked into a fourth. It was not a case of malicious intent. It was dangerous negligence.

• • •

I know one man who is a menace to traffic, whenever he takes hold of the wheel. His poor co-ordination makes him dangerous in a pinch, and his mental attitude makes him far more dangerous, for he considers himself an expert. He is full of stories about the stupid actions of others. He shouts, "Sunday driver" at cars he considers in his way. He boasts that he has never had an accident; although he must have caused more than one.

Such people are difficult to eradicate from the lists of those who legally qualify to drive a car. And they constitute a menace to the safety of all, so long as they are permitted to drive.

The annual toll of motor accidents is too high no matter how small in proportion to the number of drivers it may be. It will take more than a safety campaign to improve the situation.

Some of the self-styled experts will have to realise that driving a car is an occupation requiring something more than good intentions. Perhaps a rigid physical examination when application is made for a driver's licence will help to eliminate those who are unable to operate a car safely.

LINEN TRADE REVIEW

Making Flax-Growing A Profitable Crop

Extended Holidays—June Export Returns Analysed—Decline of U.S. Buying—War and Exchange Difficulties' Reactions—Next Week is Linen Week in Edinburgh—Uniform Flax Crops Needed—Ulster Committee Visiting Continent—Pulling Machine Invention—And What It may Lead To.

(From a Special Correspondent).

Bedford Street was deserted by linen men on Friday. Not an Ulster mill or factory but was silent this week. A few works will reopen on Monday, but the majority will not restart for another week or fortnight. Extended holidays are thus playing a part in the policy of curtailed production which has been generally adopted by the Ulster linen industry within recent months.

An unhealthy practice prevalent during previous depressions was to allow huge stocks of yarn and cloth to accumulate. These clogged revival, encouraged weak sellers and tended to depress prices when they should have risen sharply. To-day, however, we can look forward to a speedy recovery when the trade is convalescent, as linen stocks everywhere are low. When bulk buying restarts it will have an immediate effect on mill and factory production, which, prior to the holidays, was restricted to around 50 per cent. of maximum.

Unfavourable Condition.

The export returns for June, released this week by the Board of Trade, reveal the further decline which was expected in the case of United Kingdom shipments due to unfavourable trading conditions in the United States, China, Cuba, and Brazil. Last month the United Kingdom exported linen goods to the value of £369,090 as against £700,626 in June of last year. Linen trading in the first six months of 1937 was unusually good, and that for the past six months abnormally bad. Thus linen exports from the United Kingdom in the first six months of this year amounted to £2,801,523, as against £4,011,191 in the corresponding period a year ago.

On analysing the figures we find that this serious decline of £1,209,668 is largely due to poor buying on the part of our American cousins and the Chinese. U.S.A. imports of United Kingdom linen piece goods have dropped like a stone from £993,863 in the first six months of last year to £352,948 in the six months ended June 30, 1938. Worse still their purchases of our linen piece goods last month totalled only £28,142, as compared with £135,487 in the corresponding period of 1937. In June the United Kingdom shipped to the U.S.A. damask table linen worth £18,119 as against £40,098 a year before, while our damask shipments to the U.S.A. for the first six months of this year totalled £124,627 as against £202,926 in the corresponding period of last year. Handkerchief shipments have also been drastically curtailed as will be seen from the fact that those sent to the U.S.A. last month were valued at only £930 as against £9,593 a year before.

U.S. Wait and See Policy.

It is quite obvious that the States are now trimming their linen purchases in the confident expectation that linen tariffs will be drastically revised in the long-awaited Anglo-U.S.A. Reciprocal Trade Pact. It is certain that Transatlantic linen stocks are now almost as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard, and shipments to the U.S.A. should soar when the agreement goes through.

The varying fortunes of the Sino-Japanese clash have been reflected in the cambric and sheer shipments to China for the past year, as set out in our last report. Last month shipments of U.K. linen piece goods to China totalled only £8,538 as against £11,111 in May and £56,401 in the June of 1937. China has purchased U.K. linen piece goods to the value of £144,584 in the first six months of this year as compared with £294,155 in the corresponding period of 1937. It is reported that Soviet Russia plans to help her Chinese friends with linen supplies, but these will be coarse military linens, and not the fine types of linen which we supply to the China market for Oriental embroidery and final re-shipment to America.

Exchange difficulties and "frozen credits" are still to blame for light shipments to Brazil and Cuba. Last month Brazil purchased from us linen piece goods to the value of £13,664, slightly bettering the May figure by £687. However, her six months' figures, at £90,597 compares unfavourably with the £117,913 for the corresponding period of last year. Cuban imports of British linen piece goods declined sharply last month to £1,629 as compared with £4,290 in May and £7,852 in June of last year. In the last six months Cuba has purchased from us linen piece goods worth £104,286 as against £137,816 in the first half of 1937.

Good Friends.

The British Dominions and Colonies have proved good friends to the Ulster linen manufacturer during the trying times. Last month India imported linen piece goods to the value of £10,679 as compared with £9,072 in June a year ago, and New Zealand piece goods worth £8,462 as against £6,636 in June, 1937. Last month the United Kingdom imported linen and hemp piece goods to the value of £10,363, an increase of £703; other manufactures of linen and hemp £4,401, a decrease of £10,791; flax line and tow yarns £15,309, an increase of £10,197; flax £172,313, a decrease of £116,085, and flax tow or codilla £51,601, an increase of £1,922. The decline in flax imports is evidence of reduced spinning mill production.

Naturally, that linen trade barometer, the Board of Trade Returns, include the shipments made by our Scottish and English rivals. It is some consolation that the linen industry of Ireland is faring better than that of any other country, due undoubtedly to superior management and to our traditionally skilful operatives.

Mr. Athole F. Stewart, in his presidential address at the recent quarterly meeting of the Dundee Chamber of Commerce, gave a gloomy report on Scottish linen industry conditions. "There is always a little demand," he said, "but not nearly enough to keep the trade busy, and competition is very strong for any orders that are available." Dundee, the centre of the flax market of Great Britain, imported 5,754 tons of flax and 2,770 tons of flax tow in the first five months of this year as against Belfast imports of 12,716 tons of flax and 3,829 tons of tow in the same period.

The fact is that no textile is doing well to-day, not even artificial silk, that "Ford" of fabrics which caters specially for a buying public demanding style and appearance at minimum cost. Though backed by almost unlimited financial resources, the 20th century rayon industry is now feeling the draught. Courtaulds, Ltd., announced this week an interim dividend of 1½ per cent. on their ordinary stock as against 3½ per cent. at this time last year. In making this announcement the company stated "The business of our associated companies on the American Continent was quite unremunerative for the first half of 1938. With sales and production drastically curtailed in England also there was a serious falling off."

Our Continental competitors are complaining bitterly about declining linen exports and poor internal trade.

The Irish Linen Guild is to be congratulated on its energy, enterprise—and courage! Monday marks the opening of Irish linen week in Edinburgh, only a few miles from the centre of Scottish linen trade headquarters. Local celebrities will be entertained to lunch by the Guild, and there will be a lecture by Mr. G. A. E. Roberts and a social evening for retail linen sales folk at the North British Hotel. The Irish Linen Queen (Miss Maude Clarke) will call on the Lord Provost. In effect the Guild is a factory, manufacturing a material which makes it easier to get Irish linen into shop windows, and easier to get it off the shop counter at a profit to the manufacturer, the salesman, and the shop. The home market for linen is attaining increased importance, and the Guild deserves some of the kudos.

Not the least important part of the Guild's work is to protect the trade and the public from misrepresentation by careless or dishonest retailers. Recently there have been complaints of "linen" frocks advertised at ridiculously cheap prices that are really Japanese cotton, and of drapers who are a little careless in their window dressing proclaiming goods as Irish linen when in reality they were cottons and Russian linens. The Guild does not hesitate to take legal proceedings in flagrant cases such as these.

Continental Journey.

Leading members of the Ulster Flax Committee left Belfast on the evening of the "Twelfth" to investigate flax production methods on the Continent. "The better the day the better the deed."

The chief problem which confronts the Flax Committee is to make flax a profitable and attractive crop for the Ulster farmer, and the solution lies in helping the farmer to produce the types of flax which our spinners favour and to absolve him eventually from vexatious tasks such as pulling and retting. What can our Flemish friends teach us? Within comparatively recent years they have transformed the art of flax production from a peasant handicraft into a series of scientifically controlled operations in which the machine supersedes hand labour to a marked extent, thus cutting down costs and producing standard grades of fibre. The grower does not always appreciate the vital importance of the latter factor to the spinning mill.

Hitherto one of the chief defects of Irish flax from the spinners' standpoint has been that of necessity, it has varied so greatly in texture, strength, and colour. In Ulster types of soil and retting water vary greatly in different districts, thus leading inevitably to a tremendous range of grades, each of which demands different treatment in both the scutch mill and the spinning mill. Some of our farms are on hills, some in dales, and the flax which grows at the top of a hill differs from that which grows at the bottom. Irish flax has always been noted for its great strength, but up to now this virtue has been largely discounted by irregularity in quality and other important characteristics. Such drawbacks should be eliminated through the extended use of pedigree seed, improved methods of handling and retting in bulk under controlled conditions, leading in turn to the standardization of fixed grades.

Industry's Needs.

The linen industry requires large bulk consignments of uniform material—not driblets of fifty grades. Tests made by Ulster spinners have shown that Belgian flax is worth fully 20 per cent. more than present-day Irish, simply on account of its better yield, easier hackling, and better tow. Colour should be uniform, and silkiness and oiliness are essential to good spinning and satisfactory yield in the mill. Dry, bare fibre never gives the same results in working and always lowers the value of the flax. Fineness and distinctness of separate fibres are the real indication of quality, and can be judged by the splitting of the flax into separate fibres when rubbed with the finger nail.

It has sometimes been said that Irish flax can never rival Courtrai fibre, as Ulster does not possess a river comparable to the world-famed Lys. That this belief is utterly unfounded is proved by the fact that the retting of flax in the Lys, formery called the Golden River, has practically died out. Over 7,500 bales were retted in the Lys in 1927, as against only 350 bales last year.

This season there were not more than 50 crates of flax in the Golden River in a distance of five miles in and around Courtrai. Patent hot water retteries have sprung up along the banks of the Lys, and there are now some 1,200 flax retting stations in Belgium which handle much of the flax grown in Holland and France, besides that grown in Flanders. The new patent method of retting permits 5½ bales of flax to be retted in five days in one tank, as against ten days by the orthodox Ulster system. Warm water retting is bacteriological and natural as in the dam, but quicker, more regular, requires less labour, and may be carried out all the year round, whereas the retting season on the River Lys itself lasts only a few months.

The idea itself is not new as it originated in the fertile brain of an Irishman, O'Reilly, as far back as 1808. Later Schenk and Watt brought the system a stage further, and by 1853 there were 20 hot water retteries at work in Ireland alone. They failed mainly because the process had not then been properly worked out, and partially due to lack of adequate working capital.

The temperature of Irish flax retting dams is not much above 50 deg. Fah. in the retting season. This is too low, and the erection of modern retteries on the Belgian system, where water retted from 60 to 90 deg. Fah. is made to circulate slowly through the immersed flax, will accelerate and improve retting in the Six Counties.

Labour Problems.

Scarcity of labour is another important factor in Irish flax production, and here modern pulling machinery may help considerably. To-day it costs in the region of 30s per acre to pull flax by hand in Northern Ireland, and pulling machine enthusiasts forecast a saving of 20s per acre in this department alone. It is certain that mechanical flax pullers are of great assistance to Continental flax producers whose fields are large and flat. The first flax pulling machine was evolved in America about 20 years ago, but early models failed in Ireland as there was much belt slippage in wet weather and the hilly nature of many fields proved a great obstacle to the successful operation of the machine. Also these pullers were generally so bulky that they could not negotiate the average farm gate.

M. Maurice Soenens, a Flemish flax machinery expert, has now evolved a highly efficient flax-pulling machine, of which over 200 will be at work on the Continent this season. Of all-steel construction, it weighs a little over 7cwt. Mounted on two pneumatic wheels, it can be drawn by one horse, and the pulling mechanism is driven by a 3 h.p. petrol engine. This machine pulls a width of three feet, and deposits the flax regularly, and in very thin layers on the ground in its wake. It is noteworthy that the pulled flax is left down perfectly parallel, and with the heads and roots in perfect alignment. The capacity of the machine is stated to be 7½ acres per day, employing one horse, the driver, and a helper. This machine is said to be able to harvest flax under any conditions, even if "laid," lodged, or tossed, but like all previous pullers it pulls the weeds as well as the flax.

An important advantage of the new puller is that it deposits the fibre ready for dew-retting, but unfortunately this system is not practicable in Ireland, where dews cannot be depended upon long enough to complete the operation, and there is a strong possibility of a storm of wind scattering the flax, or rain causing it to lose half its value. In any case dew-retting produces fibre of poorer quality and yarns spun from it are inclined to be "stripey," and will not boil a clear yellow, as will water-retted spins. Several Soenens pullers have already been purchased by Irish organisations, and these machines will be demonstrated in Ulster flax fields this season, when their capabilities can be judged under local conditions.

Flax Pulling by Hand.

Flax pulling by hand is a man's job and hard work because of the stooping attitude necessary. Generally it takes four men to pull one acre in a day. In hand pulling the flax is grasped rather low down on the stem in small handfuls. The experienced puller generally seizes as many standing stems with his left hand as the reach of his fingers will permit. Simultaneously, with his right hand he gathers as many of the adjacent stems and continually adds them to those in his left until he has a sufficient number of stalks to make a reasonably good-sized handful; these he then grips with both hands and together with a peculiar twitch of the knee and movement of the arms he pulls the complete handful of stalks up by the roots, as free as possible from soil and weeds. These large handfuls are laid down on the ground for the women to collect together, even up and tie into larger bundles by twisting a few straws round the heads immediately below the seed bolls. Great care must be exercised in making up these bundles, which must be really neat and uniform with level root ends.

Several stones per acre may be saved by good pulling, and the evils of defective handling are never wholly removed in the after processes. Flax must not be cut, for while the quantity of fibre contained in the roots is very small, the cutting of the stems like corn leaves a square blunt end on the fibre which reduces its spinning qualities. The flax-pulling machine may play a star part in making the Ulster farmer flax-conscious, but its advantages are not so overwhelming here as upon the Continent. If mechanical harvesting is largely adopted in Ireland, we may witness the formation of companies which will undertake the pulling of the farmer's crop at so much an acre, a form of enterprise on the Continent which is becoming increasingly popular.

Advances in Flemish flax scutching methods, which are now being investigated in Courtrai by the Flax Committee, will be discussed in a later report.

TROPICAL DISEASE

LED TO DRUG ADDICTION.

BRILLIANT SURGEON'S DOWNFALL.

Saying that it would be a misfortune for him if his driving licence was ever restored, Mr. Justice Tucker, at Manchester Assizes on Friday, imposed a life driving ban on a man who was said to have contracted a tropical disease called ancylostomiasis (due to the presence of certain parasites in the small intestine).

He also sent to prison for 20 months in the second division the defendant, above mentioned, David Davidson Watson (35), of Springfield Road, Wigan, a native of Rothes, Morashire, who pleaded guilty to the manslaughter of Bertie Connor (21), of Wigan, and to being under the influence of drink or a drug to such an extent as to be incapable of proper control of a motor-car.

Before falling a victim to the disease, while he was employed as a ship's surgeon, Watson was stated to have had every prospect of a brilliant career.

Connor was knocked off his cycle in Warrington Road, Abram, Lancs, on June 17.

The Judge said to Watson—"I am not punishing you because you took drink or drugs."

TO RELIEVE PAIN.

Mr. T. M. Backhouse, for the defence, said that Watson took first class honours at St. Andrews University, and was senior prizeman of his year in surgery. After contracting the tropical disease he suffered a great deal of pain, and resorted to using drugs and alcohol to stimulate himself, and to save himself from pain. In the intervals between the recurrence of his illness, he was a clever surgeon, and had held many appointments in hospitals in England and Scotland.

"He tried to fight against this thing in every possible way," said counsel, "and on a number of occasions he has gone for long periods as a voluntary patient into hospitals in an attempt to cure himself."

Police evidence was given of previous convictions for driving a car while under the influence of drink, and of a conviction under the Dangerous Drugs Act.

It was stated that Watson had been called upon to resign his commission in the Royal Air Force Medical Service, as he was considered unfit to be in charge of dangerous drugs.

NAVAL GUNNERY.

COMPLEX MECHANISM.

SPECIALISATION NECESSARY.

Fleet orders announce that the Admiralty have had under consideration the non-substantive qualifications of personnel required for manning the guns of the fleet under present-day conditions.

The steady increase in complex mechanism and the rapid developments in anti-aircraft gunnery have made some measure of specialisation necessary, that is gunnery rating (except gunners' mates and gunnery instructors R.M.) will be required to know rather less about gunnery as a whole, but more about a particular section of gunnery.

Their lordships have accordingly decided to reorganise gunnery ratings (except gunners' mates and gunnery instructors R.M.) into four sections, which will specialise as follows:—

Quarters' Section—Gun numbers and in charge of guns (except close range A.A. guns), magazines and shell rooms.

Layer Section—Gun and director-laying and training (except at close range A.A. equipments).

Control Section—Rangefinding and control of fire (except A.A.).

Anti-Aircraft Section (seamen only)—A.A. look-out; loading, laying, and training at close range A.A. equipments; control of A.A. fire.

The first-class rates together with gunners' mates and gunnery instructors R.M. will in many cases be allotted in action to new and more responsible duties. Their duties will call for a high standard of proficiency and the pay for the first-class rates will be 1s 6d a day.

Gunners' mates and gunnery instructors R.M. besides carrying out the duty of a first-class rate in action, will be required to instruct in all sections of gunnery. Their pay will, therefore, be raised to 2s a day when the new organization comes into force.

Consolidated rates of pay have been approved for the new non-substantive rates, and will take effect from the date of the introduction of the new organisation.

QUEER JAP. CUSTOM.

GROUP TRIAL MARRIAGE REVEALED.

TAKAMATSU ISLAND CUSTOM.

A strange "group trial marriage custom has been revealed as the result of police investigations into reports that a girl of 17 has been severely beaten by a number of youths at the Japanese island town of Takamatsu.

They arrested the youths, who explained that the thrashing the girl received was the traditional punishment for violation of a peculiar island custom.

The youths of the island band themselves into groups. If a boy falls in love he and all the other members of his group leave their homes and go to live with the girl's parents.

If the girl decides she does not like the youth who made the first advances sufficiently to marry him she is entitled by custom to select another young man from the group. Once she makes up her mind which boy she prefers, the rest immediately leave and the marriage ceremony follows.

Throughout this "trial period" the girl lives the life of a queen, waited on hand and foot by her admirers. The only restriction is that she must not fall in love with any youth belonging to another group. A thrashing is the penalty. In the case the police investigated eight young men aged from 16 to 20 beat the girl so badly that she was crippled for weeks.

A number of islanders gave evidence in the youths' favour, but the court sentenced them to terms of imprisonment up to three months.

OFFER TO SELL AN EYE.

A financially embarrassed man is offering in the personal advertising column of a London newspaper to-day to sell one of his eyes. His announcement reads:—"Married man, financially desperate, will sacrifice sight one eye. Invites offers for healthy cornea."

The cornea is the thin skin covering the pupil of the eye. By the operation of cornea grafting sight has been restored to many people in recent years.

It will be recalled that Datas, the memory man, sold his head a few years ago to four American doctors who were anxious to study the brain that has such remarkable powers of memory. But Datas outlived the doctors and is now 62.

"DRAW STRAWS" FOR MURDER.

A prisoner's allegation that two 18-year-old girls "drew straws" to decide which of them should shoot a boy as part of a conspiracy to obtain 900 dollars (£180) insurance on his life, is a feature of a case at Waycross, Georgia, where, on July 25, the girls will appear before a Grand Jury.

The boy, John C. Nelson, was shot dead on April 10. His father, Harvey Nelson (40), a roadhouse petrol filling station operator, who is on bail awaiting his appeal against a sentence of 20 years' imprisonment for the manslaughter of his wife, was arrested in connection with the death of his boy and remanded to appear before the Superior Court on a charge of murder.

He at once confessed to taking part in an insurance plot, but denied that he actually shot the boy. There were, he said, two other conspirators, Verna Mae Fowler and Mary Kent, also 18, both of whom were employed with him at the roadhouse.

The girls, he alleged, "drew straws" to decide which should do the shooting. The girl Fowler drew the "long straw" and she it was who fired the fatal shot. Fowler alleges in reply that it was Nelson himself who shot the boy.

HOW TO BET AND WIN.

Two stories of wagers and how they are won, received from Central News correspondents in Australia to-day:—

Miss Lorna Reid, a little 19-year-old girl, who has won many prizes in riding events at country shows, was challenged to ride her hack, named Mahonga, from Sydney to Melbourne, in three weeks for a wager of £12. She and Mahonga accomplished the 450-mile journey with four days to spare, both horse and rider looking fit and fresh as they proceeded along the streets of the Victorian capital.

One of the conditions of the bet was that Lorna had to sleep in the open each night. She did this, indeed fulfilled all conditions of the wager, including the grooming of Mahonga before setting out each morning, sometimes as early at 3-30. This plucky girl described the adventure as a grand holiday, and forthwith decided to ride back to Sydney with a Shetland pony running along on either side of Mahonga.

The Queensland Director of Dairying, Mr. L. T. MacInnes, was invited to attend the Bonaldo Agricultural Society's Show by the society's President, Mr. N. Johnson, who made a sporting bet that if the official would oblige, he, Mr. Johnson, would attend the show in complete morning dress with tails, an immaculate topper, grey spats, walking stick, and gloves. Mr. MacInnes bet he wouldn't dare walk among the bullocks and other exhibits in such attire.

Hundreds of people waited at the ringside to see what would happen. Out came the President as bold and resplendent as a bridegroom.

The Dairying Director then publicly defied him to lead his own champion Hereford bull round the ring. Mr. Johnson won a second bet amid cheers.

HUSBAND CAUSED A ROW.

Hindu women, married and single, and of all ages, are joining a new cult in Hyderabad (Sind). The main principle underlying the cult is apparently the practice of Brahmacharya, or celibacy.

The founder of this new religion is Mr. Khubchand Lekhraj, a middle-aged man whose general appearance is that of an ascetic.

As far as the unmarried women are concerned there was not much opposition to their joining Mr. Khubchand's band of followers, but it was quite a different matter in the case of the married women.

After a month or six weeks a group of husbands, accompanied by some friends, proceeded to the meeting place, called the Om Mandli, there to tackle this new type of home-wrecker.

Timely intervention of the authorities, supported by a large force of police, prevented a serious breach of the peace. Later an appeal was made to the local Panchayat—a meeting of the elders of the community—with a view to the husbands being allowed to remarry. The Panchayat formed an Inquiry Committee, and gave an impartial hearing to both sides.

The opponents of the movement brought evidence to prove the treatment meted out to the unhappy husbands. Charges of vilification were brought, and definite evidence was produced of the wives' refusal to take up their marital duties. It was also deposed that the wives were quite prepared to allow their husbands to remarry, even going to the extent of selecting their successors themselves.

On the defence side it was maintained that Mr. Khubchand Lekhraj's teachings were those of a saint. It was unfortunate that married women had joined in such large numbers, but they were only sacrificing worldly well-being for eternal salvation.

The Panchayat, after prolonged deliberations, decided to ban the Om Mandli cult, and recommended that their premises should be closed immediately.

A tense situation, however, continues at Hyderabad, and the Om Mandli premises are being strongly guarded. The Government, meanwhile, have addressed the sponsors of the cult, asking them to state (1) whether they are prepared to confine the Mandli's membership to women only, excluding all men; and (2) whether they will give an undertaking that the express written permission of guardians will be made a vital condition of enrolment?

WHIRL OF 'DENUNCIATIONS'

GERMAN WOMEN SENTENCED.

BERLIN, Friday.—The whirl of political "denunciations," founded and unfounded, which has been giving so much trouble recently to Herr Buerekel, the Nazi Commissioner for Austria, is not, it appears, confined to the territory which Germany has acquired since the anschluss.

A Berlin woman and her daughter have been sentenced by the Courts to ten months' imprisonment for repeatedly sending anonymous denunciations of the caretaker of the house in which they lived to the secret police.

The letters alleged that the caretaker, of whom the two women were apparently jealous, was a secret Communist agitator, and had enriched himself with Communist money.

The Court found that there was no foundation for these allegations, and in passing sentence the Judge remarked—"The Courts must proceed with fire and sword against denunciators of this unpleasant type. Their activities are calculated to disturb the peace of the nation, for which the Fuhrer is striving."

BISHOP OF EXETER'S APPEAL.

The response to the appeal of the Bishop of Exeter for £100,000 for Devon churches and schools has now reached £30,000. Church building is proceeding in Paignton and Torquay.

"LADY GODIVA" INCIDENT.

CASE FINISHED IN 30 SECONDS.

It took only 30 seconds for the Feltham (Middlesex) Bench on Friday to dismiss the charge against Herbert Bartholomew, who is alleged to have pulled Teddington's 13-year-old "Lady Godiva" from her horse during a gala procession.

Bartholomew, who is 48 and lives in Ravenswood Road, Tolworth, was accused of using insulting words and behaviour with intent to provoke a breach of the peace.

Mr. Harry Fear (the Chairman) said—"We have a report about this case. The charge will be dismissed."

The case had been adjourned for a medical report.

"TARTAN NIGHT" AT PORTRUSH.

BAND PAGEANT A FEATURE.

HIGHLAND DANCING: FIREWORKS.

Scottish music, Highland dancing, and a big element of Scots holiday-makers helped to make "Tartan Night," promoted by Portrush Sports Committee on Friday, one of the most successful events ever. Hundreds of visitors attended at Ramore Hill and the Scots entered into the revels with customary enthusiasm.

A band pageant was a feature of a two-hour programme. The music, marching and counter-marching of the drums, fifes and bugles of H.M. 2nd Battalion the South Wales Borderers were especially pleasing items, while the performance, including Highland dancing, of the East Belfast and Sydenham Pipe Bands, under the leadership of Drum-Major J. W. M'Kiernan, was much to the taste of the Scottish holiday-makers.

A display of fireworks had many unusual and brilliant features, including impressive fire pictures of "The war from the air," and "The hanging gardens of Babylon."

Folk-dancing by boys of Malone Training School was another enjoyable item.

The performance concluded on an inspired note, the Borderers Band, pipers and dancers combining in an impressive tableau.

CZECH GIRL'S STORY.

SHE POSED AS A GERMAN.

LIVERPOOL CHARGE WITHDRAWN.

When Gertraud Arisin, the 23-year-old Czech girl, appeared on remand at Liverpool Police Court yesterday accused that being an alien, to wit a German subject, she landed in the United Kingdom without leave of the immigration officer, the charge against her was withdrawn, and she was set free.

Mr. H. A. Fry, for the police, said the girl was not a German, as she had stated, but a Czech. When the police were called to her in a Salvation Army house she at first refused to give any information regarding herself. Eventually she said she was a newspaper reporter working on behalf of several religious newspapers in Germany, and she stated that because of something she had written she had come under the notice of the German secret police. She said she had been in England twelve months and that her passport was in France. The police had made inquiries in France, but there was no trace of the passport. When she landed in this country on July 1 she was given a clean landing card and it would not be necessary for her to report for three months.

The girl, when asked if she had anything to say, shook her head and smiled. She then left the dock and was escorted from the court by a detective.

SWALLOWS DENTURE: DIES

BROKEN TEETH WORN FOR 2 YEARS

Dr. W. H. Davison, the Birmingham City Coroner, described it as extraordinary yesterday that a man who died after swallowing part of a denture should have worn a broken denture for nearly two years.

Howard Harris, a jobbing gardener, of Norwood Villas, Edgbaston, Birmingham, was stated by his wife to have done this because he could not afford to have his teeth repaired. He was dozing in his chair one afternoon when he coughed and swallowed them. He felt nothing for a week, but developed internal pains and was taken to hospital, where he died.

Medical evidence was that Harris died of peritonitis due to perforation of the colon by the denture.

Returning a verdict of death by misadventure, Dr Davison pointed out that the National Insurance scheme provided for all reasonable treatment.

"These schemes need the intelligent co-operation of the people who take part in them," the Coroner added. "If they do not have this they fail, as they did in this case."

MARCHING AND DEPORTMENT

Word For Bands In Church Parades

PAT ON BACK FOR WILLOWFIELD

Sir,—I was greatly impressed with some of our bands on Sunday last at the annual church parades. There seems to be an inclination by some bands to make themselves more attractive both in marching and deportment, also their playing of marches was just the right pace; not too fast as some of our bands are very apt to do. It is very irritating to see a band leading a procession at a nice pace, and then another band coming along at a pace quite different and so upsetting the rhythm of marching.

I was greatly struck by one band in particular, so much so that it prompted me to write this letter. That band was the Willowfield Military, and I want to say that I am no more interested in this band than any other. I would like to give this band a pat on the back for their neat work on Sunday last. They were all that a band should be on the march. One felt like marching a lot further than the Ulster Hall with them, and their discipline, I must say, was complimented on by many outside the hall. There was absent the slovenly manner in which some bands seem to treat marching. Bands like this deserve a word of praise. What has become of the cymbal in many of our bands, particularly flute? I think this instrument has been neglected in late years. Perhaps there is a reason for it.—Yours, etc.

"NINI."

THE THREE EXCLUDED COUNTIES.

Sir,—The decision to jettison the Counties of Cavan, Monaghan, and Donegal was, I believe, made by the Ulster leaders of that time on the advice of Sir Edward Carson, and nothing that has since happened would appear to render it judicious that they should be incorporated with Ulster now. However, as Sir Joseph Davison disclaims voicing any "present demand" for their return, perhaps the matter will have time to straighten itself out without any harm being done.—Yours, etc.,

"ANOTHER ULSTER PROTESTANT."

JOHN LAW, OF LAURISTON.

Sir,—John Law, of Lauriston, about whom your correspondent "A.T." inquires was a Scottish economist, adventurer, and gambler, born in 1671. A refugee from English justice, his arrival in Paris coincided with the financial difficulties which came to a head in the years of the minority of Louis XV. In 1716 Law succeeded with the help of the Regent, the Duke of Orleans, in establishing a bank, and put his theories regarding currency into practice. In connection with the bank he formed a joint stock company to develop lands and trade in Louisana—his famous Mississippi scheme—and the whole nation was gripped by a gambling madness which brought France to bankruptcy. Law fled in 1719 leaving behind him a financial disaster beside which our Glasgow Bank, Jabez Balfour, or Swedish Match scandals seem like nursery games. None the less, Law is admitted to be "a financier of the first order." Indeed his scheme with its paper money and abolition of gold currency bears a strong resemblence to some of the practices of to-day. "A.T." will find a good account of Law's scheme in the Encyclopœdia Brittanica.—Yours, etc.,

KATHLEEN COWAN.

Sir,—In answer to "A.T." John Law was born April 21, 1671, at Edinburgh. He was a famous Scottish financier and speculator, and the son of a goldsmith and banker, and proprietor of the estate of Lauriston, near Edinburgh. In his youth he early showed a very remarkable talent for arithmetic, algebra and kindred sciences. In 1688 after hte death of his father he removed to London, where he was admitted into the first circles of fashion. Handsome and accomplished in every way, he combined pleasure and study in an extraordinary way. Having to leave the country in 1694 after killing an opponent in a duel he wandered about from Amsterdam to Italy, where he gained a livelihood by gambling and planning gigantic schemes. About the year 1700 he returned to Edinburgh a zealous advocate of paper currency, but his proposals to the Scottish Parliament on this subject met with an unfavourable reception. He again wandered about different parts of the Continent, where he accumulated a large fortune by gambling, but sought in vain to win the favour of governments for his banking schemes. He settled in Paris in 1714, when he was worth over £100,000.

Two years later in company with his brother William he started a private bank with great success. His monetary visions captivated the Regent, who established the Royal Bank of Finance in 1718, with Law as comptroller-general of finance, and now one of the greatest personages of Europe. In 1719 he floated the great bubble Mississippi scheme, a company with the privilege of exclusive trade. In 1720 the combined bank and company failed owing to its prodigious quantities of bank notes far beyond the necessary security. Driven from France and his estates confiscated he fled to Brussels, then to Venice, where he died in indigence on March 21, 1729.—Yours, etc.

"J.H.L."

BELFAST TRAM STAGES.

Sir,—I think it is time ½d and 1½d stages were introduced for the travelling public; also at a reduced fare between 12-45 p.m. and 2-15 p.m. and 5-30 p.m. to 6-30 p.m. to suit working-class people. The Corporation would make money and the manager would have to employ extra men to cope with the people using the trams.—Yours, etc.,

W.B.

ULSTER AND PHYSICAL FITNESS.

Sir,—In you issue of Tuesday "Mens Sana" asks has Ulster lost her grip on modern progress, and proceeds to say that Ulster is far behind and that this is due to lack of enthusiasm and support since the Government passed a Phycial Training and Recreation Bill and proposed a grant of £65,000 to father it. Is "Mens Sana" correct when he states there are plenty of halls for the preliminary stages of physical training and that equipment, etc., can be added in the course of development.

If "Mens Sana" is connected with any of the existing gymnasium clubs, he is bound to admit that that is not so. As a matter of fact, that is where the scheme is likely to fail. Moreover, very few of the existing clubs have satisfactory accommodation—lack of shower baths, poor or no apparatus, and a limited number of nights per week.

Furthermore, few of the clubs can stage a public show to demonstrate the benefit of physical training and physical education for lack of spacious halls. Consequently it never obtained the exhibition and advertisement in Ulster that it desired. Precisely for the same reason we lag behind England, Scotland and Wales—and they in turn are behind most of the European countries.

The British Government passed a Bill and a money grant of £2,000,000 to set the scheme going. It made a good beginning, but was immediately superseded by the introduction of the A.R.P. Bill, and is practically dead to-day. I would ask "Mens Sana" will the Bill passed in Ulster encourage P.T. and physical education in the absence of accommodation. Were the parent body consulted as to the best method of spreading physical education; if not, why not? Were the County Councils invited to provide halls, etc., by striking a small rate? Had not the Red Triangle the greatest difficulty in obtaining a hall? Yes, Ulster, and Belfast in particular, have the best trained leaders, most of them certificated or in course of training for same.

The public is insufficiently informed in the matter of physical training and physical education, which by the way should begin at school, similar to hockey, cricket, football, etc. It is admitted some schools spread a little (a very little), but in fact training is discouraged in many cases. It is true some adults perform their daily dozen, but advise from the certificated instructor is necessary. I think it is purely a question of ways and means and not lack of enthusiasm.—Yours, etc.

"HAD-SOME."

THE GOSPEL MARCH PROPOSAL.

Sir,—Regarding the proposal to have a gospel march in our city as suggested by "Christian," I heartily endorse what he says. I may add a few suggestions. Let our Christian leaders take the matter up now, as did the Christian Workers' Unions a few years ago when many joined in a big gospel march through our city. Here is a chance to show our oneness in the Christian faith. If Orangemen can put up a big show, why not show Christianity, which is greater than Orangeism or any other ism can ever be. Its invitation is to all. Anything displayed is for people's own welfare. Tracts, bannerettes, booklets, etc., could be distributed on the wayside march. With our Salvation Army bands, Christian bands, etc., Belfast, could give all believers a chance to show the world just where they stand—not in pomp or ceremony, but with Bible in hand, our two-edged sword. Some central rallying point, viz., Ormeau Park, for instance, could be venue for a united day of real prayer for the nation and world at this time. God would bless such an effort. We are the salt of the earth. Let us keep seasoned by having salt in ourselves. If this proposal falls through it is a sad reflection on our Christian leadership of to-day.—Yours, etc.,

CAMPING SCOUTS.

END OF GREAT ANNUAL ADVENTURE.

18TH BELFAST IN SCOTLAND.

"BY YON BONNIE BANKS."

Ulster weather being what is is, summer camp reports would be incomplete without some story of a rainy day in camp. As was to be expected, every camp experienced rain in some form or another, and, indeed, it would have been a lucky Troop that chose a site where there was no rain whatever. Howver, by all accounts, the weather, though not ideal for camping, was moderately good, and Scouts at the man ycamps appear to have enjoyed themselves thoroughtly in a truly Scout fashion. To-day most of the Belfast Troops return home. The few remaining will arrive back in the city to-morrow. Thus closes for yet another year the great adventure of summer camp, and Scouts will now have to be content with the week-end camps which were begun early in the summer season.

The Willowfield Parish Troop (18th Belfast), under the charge of Assistant Scoutmasters J. Kirkpatrick and C. Moore, camped at Aughengillan, Stirlingshire. A fairly rough crossing acquainted some of the boys with "mal de mer," and on reaching Glasgow they shared a bus with the 1st Carrickfergus to the camp site.

On Sunday last the Troop attended "Scouts' Own" service, the speaker being Mr. Whitelaw, Camp Warden. The camp was visited in the afternoon by members of the 18th Rover Scout Crew. On Tuesday they went by bus to Balmaha, where they embarked on the Lady Jean for a cruise on Loch Lomond, stopping at Luss for refreshments.

Wednesday saw the 18th at the Empire Exhibition, where an enjoyable day was spent, the time being all too short to see all the sights. They were again joined by members of their own Rover Crew who were in camp outside Glasgow, and after leaving the Exhibition the Crew entertained the troop to tea. Scouting activities were not neglected, pioneering, woodcraft, etc., being practised, and on Thursday a cricket match was played between rival teams "Curlews" and "Woodpigeons," under Patrol Leaders T. Carter and B. Bell. The camp was early astir this morning and soon tents were lowered and gear stowed away.

Farewell having been taken, the troop left the camp for Glasgow to spend their last few hours on Scottish soil visiting the sights of the city. They hope for a smooth crossing to-night, and plenty of ham and eggs when they arrive in Belfast to-morrow morning.

ST. DONARD'S AT MAGILLIGAN.

73rd Belfast (St. Donard's) Troop camped at the Uulster official Scout camp, Magilligan. The boys were highly pleased with the idea lsite, the dry nature of the soil commending itself particularly. At this bracing spot they became acquainted with "Old Pete," in fact they burned it, an uncommon fuel for Belfast Scouts. The usual camp activities included cricket, football, bathing, climbing, Scout tests and camp fires. On the camping ground on Sunday the open air service, arranged by the Rev. Mr. Allen, was enjoyed by a large number of visitors, including Guides and Scouts. The Rev. J. T. Carson, Ballymena, and the Rev. S. M'Ilveen, Cullybackey, delivered very suitable addresses. The historical City of Londonderry was visited on Tuesday, Portrush on Friday, and a very enjoyable camp ended all too soon for the St. Donard's boys.

46th Belfast (Carlisle Memorial) boys camped near Larne during the past week. They had a beautiful camp site, and contrived to have a most enjoyable time despite some very wet periods. A very substantial camp-kitchen has been built and equipped with the necessary gadgets. Larne was visited, but most of the time was spent within the extensive demesne.

The world knows that Sir Abe Bailey has lost his two legs, but only a few realise what suffering he has borne before and since his operation. Yet, in spite of his suffering, he has not lost his Boy Scout smile and spirit. His comments to people, such as "You can't pull my leg now," and his words to the Chief Scout, "I will fight all with the two stumps I have left," are examples of his exceptional spirit. He is a vice-president of the Boy Scout Association, and has just been awarded the Cornwell Scout Decoration by the Chief Scout, the highest award for courage in the face of intense suffering. No one could be more proud than Sir Abe Bailey to receive the highest award from the Boy Scout Movement, a movement in which he has always taken a keen interest and still does. All holders of the decoration welcome him to the ranks.

H.R.H. the Duke of Kent was guest of honour at the banquet held on Thursday evening at Grosvenor House, London, at the invitation of the Chief Scout. Distinguished friends of the movement present included Lord Nuffield, the Earl of Clarendon, the Duke of Somerset, Lord Aberdare (chairman of the National Fitness Council), Lord Portal and Major the Hon. J. J. Astor, M.P. The banquet was attended by men only. Scouts will be delighted to learn that Lord Nuffield, who promised £50,000 to the Boy Scout Appeal Fund if the total reached half a million pounds, announced that his gift would now be made unconditionally. This brings the total subscribed to nearly £250,000.

Writing from Aughengillan, the Glasgow Boy Scouts' camping ground, Group Scoutmaster Con Boreland, 28th Belfast, described the camp site as a temporary Irish colony. In addition to his own troop there were the 9th Belfast, 18th, 22nd, 59th, 35th, Portadown, Tandragee, Lurgan, 1st Carrickfergus, and 1st Kingstown (Co. Dublin). Everyone enjoyed themselves thoroughly and on the Twelfth Day the Ulster boys combined to hold Twelfth celebrations. It was a great parade, not to be compared with Belfast parades, of course, the novel band equipment including hummers, mouth organs, bins, buckets, etc. A football match between the 22nd and 28th Belfast opposed to Portadown and Tandragee resulted in a win for the city boys by five goals to three. Excursions were held to the Empire Exhibition and there were hikes, and boating trips on Loch Lomond. The Scouts' Own service was addressed by the Rev. W. A. Kennedy, Group Scoutmaster of the 9th Belfast. The campers are extremely grateful for all the kindnesses and help from the Camp Warden, Mr. Whitelaw.

PETER KANE WANTS TO MEET JURICH.

8ST. CONTEST INTEREST.

LIVERPOOL-MANCHESTER RIVALRY.

Peter Kane (Golborne), who has been boxing as a bantamweight, is seeking a match with Jackie Jurich, the American, at the flyweight limit of eight stones.

Mr. Johnny Best, Liverpool promoter, is negotiating for this contest, and it is understood that Belle Vue, Manchester, will also be "in the field" as a bidder.

Kane had announced he would fight under bantamweight in future, but is convinced he can still make the flyweight limit. His injured hand, which was operated on, is progressing splendidly, and he is expected to be able to resume training in a month's time.

Jurich is to meet Phil Milligan, of Oldham, over ten rounds at 8st. 1lb. at Belle Vue, Manchester, on July 25.

MARKS BOWLS FINISH AT LARNE.

MAJOR BAIRD AND VICTORS.

WELSH WARMLY CONGRATULATED.

	Pld.	Wn.	Lst.	Shots. For	Shots. Agst.	Pts.
Wales	3	2	1	381	270	4
Ireland	3	2	1	297	301	4
Scotland	3	1	2	290	302	2
England	3	1	2	278	319	2

The final official note in the International Bowling Tournament at Larne was struck when, immediately at the conclusion of the Ireland v. Wales match (when Ireland was beaten by 41 shots), the players and officials of the various associations assembled on the green in front of the clubhouse and the "News of the World" Cup was presented to the captain of the successful team by Lady Dixon, D.B.E., J.P. Attending the ceremony also were a large number of the general public.

Major W. Baird, D.L., president of the Irish Bowling Association, presided, and set the keynote of the ceremony when he remarked, in opening the proceedings, "Some of us are sad and some are glad, but I heartily congratulate our fellow-bowlers from Wales on their great victory, and offer equally hearty congratulations to our own team upon being runner-up. Perhaps it was not the finish I would have preferred, but it was a great victory for Wales, who have the splendid record of having won six times in nine years." (Applause.)

Continuing, Major Baird said it had been a wonderful week, with a fine closing day, and Lady Dixon had come with Sir Thomas to present the Cup to the winning team. He did not know if Lady Dixon was aware that the formation of the Larne Club was due to a suggestion made by her good kind father to another Larne gentleman, Mr. James Ferris, and it was from that beginning that that beautiful ground came into being. (Applause.) Personally, he wanted to express his thanks to the officials of the Irish Bowling Association for their fine services, and especially to the honorary secretary, Mr. Arthur Chew, whose work in making the arrangements for that wonderful week was invaluable. (Applause.)

INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT.

Mr. Andrew Hamilton, J.P., president of the International Bowling Board, also paid a tribute to the splendid arrangements made by the Irish Bowling Association and the Larne Club. That was a beautiful green, and its keeper was entitled to all congratulations on its condition. (Hear, hear.) One of the happiest events of the programme was the visit to Lady Dixon at her beautiful house, where she so hospitably received them, and as a slight acknowledgment he had pleasure in asking her to present the Championship Cup to the Welsh bowlers.

Handing the Cup to the Welsh captain, Mr. J. Dummer, Lady Dixon congratulated him and his fellow-bowlers on their splendid play.

Mr. Dummer said he could not find words to adequately express his feelings, but on behalf of his fellow-bowlers he had to acknowledge the exceedingly fine sporting spirit displayed in the tournament from start to finish. He was extremely proud that his team had won the Cup, but he hoped that next year the Irish team would play as well at the end of the tournament as they played at the commencement of this one, and that they would be worthy winners. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. W. J. Cocks, president of the Welsh Association, added his tribute of thanks on behalf of his Association for all the kindness they had received. They were especially indebted to the Irish Bowling Association, Sir Thomas and Lady Dixon, the Earl of Antrim, and Major Baird.

Mr. Felix Hotchkiss, secretary of the English Association, followed in a similar strain, and Mr. Arthur Chew, acknowledging the compliment paid him by the chairman, Major Baird, thanked the officials of the Larne Club, and especially Mr. James Walker, for their co-operation in making the necessary arrangements.

THANKS TO LADY DIXON.

A cordial vote of thanks to Lady Dixon for attending to present the Cup and for all her kindness was accorded on the motion of Mr. David M'Nally, J.P., president of the Scottish Association, seconded by Mr. R. T. Alden, president of the English Association.

Major Baird suitably conveyed the thanks, and in reply Lady Dixon assured them it was a great pleasure to her to come there that afternoon and see such wonderful bowling. When she was young—which was longer than she cared to remember — (laughter) — she often played a game of bowls, for her father was a most enthusiastic bowler, and she knew he was very keen upon that club being formed in Larne. She was sorry the cup was not to stop in Northern Ireland, but she heartily congratulated the winners, who had a marvellous record to be proud of.

On the motion of Alderman R. F. M'Cartney, Mayor of Coleraine, chairman of the Irish Association, seconded by Mr. T. H. Barr, hon. treasurer of the I.B.A., a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the Larne Club for the use of the grounds and the members for their help, Mr. Barr mentioning in particular the names of Captain M'Ilwaine and Messrs. Cecil Walker, John Kane, A. P. Hunter, and John Girvan.

This was acknowledged by Mr. John Ross, president of the Larne Club, and in conclusion Sir Thomas Dixon asked the company to accord their heartiest thanks to Major Baird for all he had done to make the tournament such a success.

The vote was accorded with musical honours, "the bowlers' anthem" re-echoing round the green, and Major Baird suitably acknowledged the compliment. The singing of the National Anthem brought to an end a memorable ceremony.

HOOTON MITCHELL

MORE "PRIVILEGE."

PROBLEMS GETTING TIRESOME.

THE SPEAKER'S DECISION.

NEXT WEEK IN PARLIAMENT.

After consulting the experts and looking up the precedents, if there are any, the Speaker will on Monday announce to the House of Commons his decision on the new phase which has arisen in the breach of privilege case (writes the Press Association Lobby Correspondent).

He may decide to refer the whole matter back to the Committee of Priviledges, so that they can reconsider their verdict, or he may suggest that the Select Committee, which is now investigating several associated questions, should ascertain all the facts, and then place them before the Privileges Committee, so that, if any injustice has been done, it can be rectified.

SIMPLE ISSUE.

Controversy and rumour has, perhaps, obscured the issue a little. It is really quite simple. The Privileges Committee decided that a breach of privilege was committed when Mr. Duncan Sandys was summoned to give evidence before the military court, which was to investigate an official secrets leakage. It is a "breach" because Parliament was considering whether or not an M.P., such as Mr. Sandys, could be compelled to disclose his sources of information.

Now Colonel Heneage and Mr. Winston Churchill claim that they have new information, which may show that the Privileges Committee in finding there had been a breach blamed the wrong people.

This new information has not yet been disclosed, but it may be argued that the summons to Mr. Sandys to give evidence was decided upon before Parliament came to its decision to investigate the whole case. If dates could be satisfactorily established to prove this, a different complexion might be put on the matter.

Perhaps a more probable line of argument is that the summons to Mr. Sandys was sent before the military court was technically in existence—that is, before it actually met. If the court did not "exist" legally, it follows that it could not have sent for Mr. Sandys or committed a breach of privilege. But, if the court did not commit the breach, who did? This process would involve a backward search for ultimate responsibility.

LAWYERS UNIMPRESSED.

Some lawyers are not very impressed by this ingenious method of proving that the court did not exist. They point out that if no court had power to ask witnesses to attend until it was actualy sitting then a great deal of time would be wasted.

Others have analysed the wording of the Privileges Committee's report, which, they suggest, found that a summons had been sent to Mr. Sandys, but did not specifically say that the military court sent the summons.

It is, of course, quite possible that points totally different from these are being brought forward by Col. Heneage and Mr. Churchill.

M.P.'s are becoming a little weary of the contnual "surprises" in the breach of privileges case, and there is a general feeling that it will be a very good thing when the whole matter is finally settled.

In the adjournment debate at the end of the session, Mr. Mander, M.P. for Wolverhampton East, intends to raise the question of a national authority to regulate national parks. He will allege that the Government have done nothing about this. Two schemes have been suggested—one for a grant of £10,000 for five years and the other for a grant of £100,000 for the same period.

"GENUINELY SEEKING WORK."

Legal authority for the Unemployment Assistance Board to give an extra winter allowance without the formality of obtaining special Parliamentary permission will be discussed on Monday when the Estimates for the Board and the Ministry of Labour come up, in addition to the winter adjustment regulations. There will be some discussion of the old question of when a man is or is not "genuinely seeking work." This will arise on a passage in the Board's report which deals with the efforts a man makes to find employment.

Mr. Attlee and Mr. F. Anderson will speak for Labour and Mr. Richard Acland for the Liberals, and Mr. Ernest Brown, the Minister of Labour, will be assisted by Mr Lennox-Boyd.

On behalf or the seaside M.P.'s, Mr. Stanley Holmes will, on Tuesday, bring in a Bill, under the Ten-Minute Rule, "to provide for the protection of the coast of the United Kingdom against erosion and for other purposes." One object of the Bill is to prevent owners of land on the coast exercising the right to remove shingle and gravel in such a way as to increase danger of coast erosion.

Any further Lords' amendments to the Coal Bill will be taken on Tuesday, and there will be more discussion of the Holidays with Pay Bill, the measures to exempt from rating structures made as a precaution against air-raid damage, the Young Persons (Employment) Bill, the Isle of Man (Customs) Bill and others.

Scottish matters will monopolise the whole of Wednesday and Thursday, and the Lobbies will, no doubt, present their usual described appearance on these occasions, as all Scottish members are busy in the House, and English members go home or attend to other things.

Mr. Tom Johnston opens for Labour on the Department of Health for Scotland vote on Wednesday, and Mr. J. Westwood will deal with public education in Scotland on Thusday.

This will be followed by the votes on Scottish law charges and courts of law.

Colonel Colville (Secretary for Scotland) will have two varied and busy nights. Sir Archibald Sinclair and Mr. Dingle Foot speak for the Liberals.

NEW PEERS "INTRODUCED."

Viscount Weir, Lord Stamp and Lord Bicester will be "introduced" in the House of Lords on Wednesday. They may hear Lord Strickland, who has just returned from Malta, dealing with the relations between Church and State in Malta and calling attention to the political situation there and "the danger to democratic principles to which leaders in both Houses are pledged."

Lord Snell will ask for the Government's views on the recommendations in the recent report of the Oversea Settlement Board. Measures which will be carried a stage further in the Lords during the week, include the Essential Commodities Reserves Bill, the Anglo-Turkish (armaments credit) Agreement Bill and the Fire Brigades Bill.

SIR JULIEN CAHN XI FOR ULSTER.

STRONGEST SIDE SINCE WAR

VISITING SION MILLS AND BELFAST.

Sir Julien Cahn, whose love of cricket has found expression in tours overseas, munificent gifts to the Notts County Cricket Club and the assembly of a side of his own of great international repute, is sending to Ireland in August the strongest team that has visited this country since the war.

Here is the party:—R. C. Blunt (New Zealand), R. J. Crisp (South Africa and Worcestershire), C. S. Dempster (New Zealand), J. C. Hall, V. Jackson (N.S.W.), J. C. Lush (N.S.W.), C. R. Maxwell (Notts), D. P. B. Morkel (South Africa), H. Mudge (N.S.W.), G. F. Summers, J. Walsh.

Their engagements are:—August 5 and 6, v Gentlemen of Ireland, at Leinster C.C. Ground, Rathmines; August 8 and 9, v. Major P. G. Humfrey's XI. at Sion Mills; August 10, v. N.C.U. President's XI. in Belfast.

Dempster, Blunt and Morkel are three Test batsmen of proved skill—Dempster would probably be in any "World eleven" of recent years—Crisp is one of the fastest bowlers in the game, Maxwell is a wicketkeeper who has played for the Gentlemen and may yet play for England, and Mudge, Jackson, and Lush have all done well in Sheffield Shield cricket.

The M.C.C. have earned the displeasure of Irish cricketers by sending over elevens of the country house party type, but here is one that could take the field against any first-class county and start at evens. The best way in which to thank Sir Jilien Cahn and his men, and the way to ensure a repetition of a tour like this, is for the public to turn out in force at Dublin, Sion Mills, and Belfast.

The team is worthy of a great welcome from all lovers of cricket, and it is hoped the teams they will meet will be fully representative and capable of giving them an enjoyable time at least.

N.-WEST CRICKET.

JUBILEE OF THE UNION.

DERRY AND TYRONE RIVALRY.

The North-West of Ireland Cricket Union celebrates its jubilee this year, although the final of the North-West Senior Challenge Cup competition, between Strabane and Sion Mills clubs this year, is not the fiftieth, for there were gaps between 1898 and 1902, and also the years of the war. In the first year the cup was offered for competition, 1888, it went to Limavady, a town which was then as famous in Association football circles as it was in cricket circles, but since then the Senior Cricket Cup has not returned to the Valley of the Roe.

The Sion Mills club has the distinction of winning the trophy on 13 occasions, and the City of Derry club comes next with eight successes. The keenest rivalry has always existed between clubs in North Tyrone and in the city of Londonderry, and it is an interesting fact that the two areas are now equal in "points." Thus four Londonderry clubs have scored 18 successes and the two North Tyrone clubs have a similar number, but as this year's final is between North Tyrone clubs, that district will now take the lead, unless a success by the Dorset regimental team in 1919, when stationed in Londonderry, be added to the Londonderry list to make a tie. The military team contained several first-class players who had been on active service.

The Sion Mills club's 13 successes were in 1889, 1890, 1892, 1894, 1896, 1904, 1905, 1913, 1914, 1926, 1931, 1934 and 1935.

Strabane had five successes—1903, 1912, 1925, 1936 and 1937.

The first Londonderry club to win the cup was Ebrington. That was in 1891, and the success was repeated in 1893. Clooney Cricket Club, which succeeded Ebrington, had six successive wins. These were in 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911. After the break-up of the Clooney club the present City of Derry Cricket Club came into prominence by winning the cup eight times; in 1920, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1927, 1929, 1932 and 1933. Church Lads' Brigade, Londonderry, now known as Brigade, held the cup in 1921 and 1930. Apart from the county borough, the only Co. Derry clubs to win the cup were Limavady in 1883 and Fawney in 1928, a gap of 40 years.

The Union has clubs in Co. Donegal, but the Senior Cup has not yet found a temporary resting-place in that county.

Cricket seems to have been popular in Londonderry in the middle of last century. A Londonderry newspaper records two matches played in May, 1852, between Londonderry Cricket Club and the team of the 73rd Depot, then stationed in that city. The weather is reported to have been most propitious and the play on both sides "excellent." In the first game the civilian XI. won "with six wickets to go down," and in the other game the Londonderry club scored 125 runs and the 73rd Depot 48 runs.

COMING OF MRS. BRADMAN.

AUSTRALIAN CAPTAIN DELIGHTED.

After the receipt of the cable from the Board of Control Bradman said—"I am very delighted, both for my own sake and for the sake of the other members of the team."

Mr. W. H. Jeanes, the manager, said—"I don't think the players will be particularly excited. Bradman, of course, wants to bring his wife over this year, and that is what began it.

"Eight members of the team are married, but, so far as I know, they have not, with the exception of Bradman, expressed any intention of bringing their wives here. They may not want them over here. At least they have not said anything to me about it."

"CRICKETERS' WIVES" COMEDY.

MELBOURNE, Saturday. — The Australian Cricket Board of Control members consider that a settlement of the "cricketers' wives" controversy is necessary before the next Australian tour in England. It is thought to be most likely that the Board will permit wives to join their husbands in England after the team's last match there, as in the present tour.—Press Association Special.

THE A.C.U. TRIALS.

INTERNATIONAL CUP SAFE FOR BRITAIN.

SILVER VASE FOR GERMANY.

IRISH TEAM DROPS SIX MARKS.

Contrary to everyone's expectations, there was a smaller proportion of retirements yesterday than on either of the other days of the International A.C.U. Six-Day Trials at Llandrindod Wells.

Yesterday was the last of the five days' reliability tests and of the 90 who started no fewer than 82 returned in the evening.

Among them were each of the members of Britain's International Trophy team, and this means that Britain has definitely won the International Trophy for, whatever might happen to-day, they cannot lose sufficient marks to go into second place.

The victorious team comprises G. E. Rowley, V. N. Brittain, J. Williams, and W. S. Waycott

Czecho-Slovakia is in second place, but only one of Germany's four riders in the team remained in at evening.

In the Silver Vase contest the following teams remained:—Germany, Britain A, Ireland A, Czecho-Slovakia, and Sweden.

In the Huhnlein Trophy contest there were only two teams left—both German. They are the S.S.K.K. "B," comprising W. Schafer, H. Fruth, and H. Lodermeier, who has lost one mark, and the S.S. team, comprising P. L. Patina, K. Zimmerman, and W. Mundhenke.

One of yesterday's most important losses was that of K. Steinberger, a member of Germany's D.D.A.C. team. His side-car broke away and this mishap crushed the hopes of his team which had hitherto come through without loss of marks.

G. E. Rowley one of Britain's successful International Trophy teams, described yesterday's route as "jammy."

An Irish official says:

In the Six-Days Trial the British team have only to qualify in the speed test at Donington to win the International Trophy.

Germany should win the Silver Vase. The Irish team lost six marks per Moran (four) and Yeates (two)

To-day 84 competitors left for Donington, 45 having lost no marks during all the week.

SUMMER HANDICAP.

FIRST ROUND COMPLETED.

MEADOW GROVE'S TIME STILL BEST

The opening round of the Celtic Summer Handicap was concluded last night with the running of heats three, eight and nine, but none of the successful competitors bettered the previous best of Meadow Grove.

What should have been the best race of the night, the Harmonican Stakes, was marred by a bump on the first turn, which almost crippled two members of the quartet, leaving Urbanity and Claremont Mutton to fight out the finish.

LONDON DIARY of an ULSTERWOMAN

LORD and Lady Dufferin have received many congratulations on the birth of their son and heir. Lord Dufferin is an only son; his famous grandfather, who was Viceroy in India, had four sons, yet only one, the youngest, had a son. The baby heir to the title has two very pretty sisters with the unusual names Caroline and Perdita. The baby's names had not been decided when I inquired at the house. He and his mother are progressing very nicely.

The Queen has chosen an all white wardrobe for her visit with the King to Paris. British dressmakers have been responsible for every detail, and in sponsoring English workers the Queen has given a welcome fillip to the home industries. Young British designers specially have much for which to thank the Royal Family; at the Coronation the dresses and fabrics selected came from British houses, and ever since designers and manufacturers at home have noticed a welcome increased interest in their products. It had been the original plan of the Queen to bring coloured frocks with her to France, but the death of her mother changed her plans. After the French visit the Queen will return to mourning.

THOSE who have seen the Duchess of Gloucester at the many functions during the past year will appreciate her desire to have a really private holiday in Kenya. She is an extremely charming young woman, very natural, and, I think, so shy that appearing so often at public functions must still be something of an ordeal to her. Wherever she goes her Royal Highness wins all hearts, whether they be the hearts of grown-ups or of small babies.

Next week the Duchess goes to Sheffield to support the hospitals' appeal there for a million pounds for a new central hospital block of buildings. She and the Duke will leave for Kenya early in August, and it is expected that they will be away until November. It will be the first time since their marriage that they have spent a holiday abroad.

More and more jewels are being worn by women at the theatres and at parties. At one of the winding-up of the season parties given the other night by Lady Louis Mountbatten almost every woman, young or old, was bejewelled. It was a very smart party; there were some wonderful tiaras, and beautiful frocks. One of the youngest girls there was Lady Mairi Stewart; she wore jewels, a pearl necklace and long pearl and diamond drop ear-rings.

HER mother was one of the few who did not wear a tiara. She chose a pastel coloured gown, lovely amethysts and a headdress of paradise feather fronds. The Duchess of Kent was one of the most beautiful women there. Her frock of black tulle and lace was made in crinoline style with an off-the-shoulder bodice held with large sapphire and diamond brooches.

The Hon. Oliver and Lady Maureen Stanley were amongst those who accepted invitations to the dinner given by the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Kennedy the other evening. Mr. Kennedy is hoping to pay a visit to Northern Ireland shortly; he has not been in England very long, but already he has made himself very popular. His wife has a very methodical way of looking after her large family.

Also at the American Embassy party were the film star, Eddie Cantor and his wife. Eddie Cantor hopes, I hear, to raise huge sums while in this country for refugee children. The proceeds of some of his broadcasts, I am told, will be devoted to this purpose, but he also hopes to approach some wealthy families and "touch" them.

THIS SAVES SEWING

In order to fulfil their purpose, garment shields have to be washed frequently at this time of the year, and the constant sewing of them to the armholes of sleeves becomes a rather tedious necessity.

There are some new shields, however, of a very useful shape, too, which have tiny safety-pins attached at the four corners, enabling you to detach them from the sleeves for washing, and to fix them in place again in a very few seconds.

Barbara's Notes

HARLEQUIN effects are always very gay and colourful, though in the matter of interior decoration they have to be used with a certain amount of discretion.

For a room with neutral coloured walls and woodwork, and with no central theme of colour, it is an excellent idea to have a set of harlequin cushions.

In velvet they have a good effect, because all the colours show up so well, and you can combine cushions of cerise, emerald, violet, puce, royal blue, orange and so forth to your heart's content.

For a sun room, furnished with wicker-work chairs and settee, this idea is particularly charming.

Mixed Schemes Everywhere.

Indeed colours are very "mixed" nowadays, and new experiments are to be seen everywhere.

This mixture of colour, together with the striped effects which are now so popular, can give our houses a very cheerful air.

For instance, a hall and stairway papered in red and white stripes has a stair carpet in emerald green. Another room, papered in pale grey with a lavender-coloured ceiling has curtains made of striped fabric in deep raspberry colour and a much paler tone of pink.

Maps As Mats.

Leather is used for some of the latest table mats. New designs show birds and animal prints set into square, wide "frames" of leather.

Red leather, holding a small print, looks most attractive, while there are also mats made entirely of leather, decorated with a "tooled" design around the edges. In white and green they look particularly well.

Octagonal shaped mats consisting of maps make an amusing table set, while to the nautically-minded, old ships prints are, perhaps, preferable.

Views of old London are also to be found. All these mats are treated so that they do not soil easily, and also withstand heat.

THAT COLD JOINT

By ELLEN AINSWORTHY.

RE-HEATING cold meat may sound rather an uninteresting process, but to do it successfully is one of the greatest of the culinary arts. Do not therefore, despise cold meat cookery, but be, instead, determined to serve it up so that it can really be enjoyed.

It is important not to re-cook the meat, but only to re-heat it very gently. And when it is to be heated in stock or sauce, it should be left to soak in the liquor for half an hour or so before being heated.

Whether the meat is to be cut up or minced it should always be trimmed, the edges and hard brown bits being cut off.

All About Hashes.

Hashes can really be very appetising, but much depends upon the sauce or liquor in which it is cooked.

The liquor may be made in many ways, but here is a good basic one. A little minced fried onion and a little butter or dripping may be added to some strong stock or made meat essence. Add also a few white peppercorns, chopped celery, minced carrot, grated lemon peel—or maybe just a little mushroom ketchup. There are endless variations.

The liquor should be boiled for half an hour, strained, thickened slightly, and then cooled. The meat is soaked in it, then heated.

A few drops of marsala or sherry may be added, or a spoonful of red currant jelly, or the beaten yolk of an egg.

With Minced Meat.

The same liquor may be used for a mince instead of a hash—but, naturally, the mince will be rather dryer in consistency.

Mince may also be cooked in a fireproof dish with a layer of breadcrumbs, a few shavings of butter, and a sprinkling of chopped parsley or grated cheese on the top.

It is also very good served with little rolls of crisply fried bacon on the top, or with slices of lemon and a border of boiled rice.

Ham With Mutton.

Another very tasty mince is made as follows:—

Mince very finely a pound of cold lean mutton, without skin, fat or gristle, and add half that quantity of lean ham. Then moisten three tablespoonfuls of soft breadcrumbs with a little milk, and mingle thoroughly with four well-beaten eggs.

Add salt and a dessertspoonful of chopped capers, half-a-dozen sardines, boned and mashed, and a dessertspoonful of mustard made with lemon-juice instead of water. Mix with the meat, put the whole into a mould or basin, cover and steam for about forty minutes.

Onion sauce is very good with this "mince pudding," and other kinds of meat can be similarly cooked, but when veal is used it should be mixed with an equal quantity of ham or bacon.

PARIS ROYAL VISIT

PICTURES GOING BY AIR

TO CANADA AND THE U.S.

SHORT-MAYO CRAFT VENTURE.

Imperial Airways announce that, weather permitting, the Mercury, upper long-range unit of the Short-Mayo composite aircraft will fly from Foynes to Canada and the United States on Wednesday, July 20.

She will carry half a ton of freight consisting of newsreels, photographs, and newspapers dealing with the visit on Tuesday of their Majesties the King and Queen to Paris.

The Mercury's destination is New York via Botwood and Montreal. At Montreal newsreels, photographs, and newspapers will be unloaded for distribution in Canada. The exact itinerary depends on the condition of the weather.

The Mercury and Maia will fly separately from Southampton to Foynes on Monday. On Tuesday while the King's State drive through Paris is in progress final preparations for the flight will be completed at Foynes.

News-reels and photographs of the King and Queen's State drive will be rushed by air from Paris to Foynes via Croydon. Newspapers containing reports of the Paris visit will be taken on board at Croydon. At Foynes this freight will be transferred to the freight-hold of the Mercury.

WILL FLY AT NIGHT.

The Mercury will fly at night. She will, weather permitting, take off at Foynes from the back of the Maia, the mothercraft, on Wednesday evening.

She will be piloted across the Atlantic by Imperial Airways Captain D. C. T. Bennett. Wireless Operator A. J. Coster will complete the Mercury's crew. Captain A. S. Wilcockson, who flew the Atlantic six times last year in the Caledonia, will be at the controls of the Maia.

For the return journey the Mercury will take-off under her own power. She will fly back to Southampton by easy stages, refuelling at Montreal, Newfoundland, the Azores, and Lisbon.

The Mercury is a much smaller and lighter aircraft than the Cambria and Caledonia, which carried out the Atlantic programme last year.

Launched by the Maia, she will, however, have a longer range and consume less petrol and oil than the Cambria and Caledonia. In addition, she will be able to carry half a ton of pay-load.

Profiting by the meteorological and wireless data accumulated last year by the flights of the Cambria and Caledonia, elaborate preparations have been made on both sides of the Atlantic for this and subsequent transoceanic flights.

NOTED LIBERAL CRITIC

OF BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS.

"The House of Commons is the supreme guardian of our liberties, and its independence will be defended at whatever costs," said Mr. Arthur Brampton, past president of the National Liberal Federation when addressing a Liberal meeting at Carbis Bay, St. Ives, Cornwall, on Friday evening.

"I do not fear a frontal attack such as the Sandys case would have constituted had any attack been intended," he said. "The immediate and vigorous reaction by members, amongst whom Mr. Dingle Foot was prominent, has shown what would happen in case of such attack.

"What is to be feared is that the Commons will wantonly fritter away their own powers by setting up boards and commissions that discharge the functions of Parliament, manipulate taxation, deprive one man of his business to give it to another, interfere with our legitimate activities, but are responsible to no one for what they do.

"These boards and commissions consist of nobody knows whom, they carry on their deliberations nobody knows where, they make decisions having all the force of law on nobody knows what evidence.

"They are a body of petty dictators, each one usurping some function of Parliament."

CATHOLIC MAYOR'S OATH.

OBJECTED TO REVISED BIBLE.

During the hearing of a case at Old Street (London) Police Court on Friday in which a street trader appealed against a decision of the Stepney Borough Council not to grant him a licence, the Mayor of Stepney (Councillor J. J. Long) was called as a witness.

The usher handed him the New Testament and the Mayor, upon examining it, said he could not take the oath upon it.

The Magistrate (Mr. F. O. Langley)—What is your Church?

The Mayor—I am a Roman Catholic.

The Magistrate—Every Roman Catholic swears on that Bible.

The Mayor—I cannot say what they do. I am not taking the oath on that Bible.

Mr. Edward Fail, who appeared for the councillor—Will you affirm?"

The Mayor—I will do anything except swear on the Revised Version.

Finally he affirmed and proceeded to give his evidence.

FROSTS AND DROUGHT.

PUT COST OF LIVING UP.

At July 1 the average level of retail prices of the commodities taken into account in the statistics compiled by the Ministry of Labour (including food, rent, clothing, fuel and light, and miscellaneous items) was approximately 59 per cent. above the level of July, 1914, as compared with 55 per cent. at June 1, 1938, and 55 per cent. at July 1, 1937. For food only the percentages were 46, 38, and 40 respectively.

The rise in the index-numbers as compared with a month earlier was due mainly to the displacement of old potatoes by the new crop at exceptionally high prices owing to the effects of late frosts and drought, and to increases in the prices of milk also attributable to effects of the drought.

GREETING TO WORLD FLYERS.

WILD NEW YORK SCENES

CHEERING CROWD OF 100,000.

HUGHES AND ANXIOUS MOMENTS.

New York on Friday gave a Lindbergh welcome to Mr. Howard Hughes and his four companions who have flown 14,874 miles round the world in 91 hours and more than halved the time taken by the late Wiley Post in 1933, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent

It was one of the typically uproarious greetings traditionally reserved by New York for national heroes returning from exploits abroad.

The canyons between Manhattan's skyscrapers re-echoed the tumultuous cheers of 100,000 enthusiastic spectators as the airmen rode up Broadway and along Fifth Avenue through a blizzard of ticker tape and torn-up telephone books.

The pavements were packed while thousands of office workers craned their heads out of the windows of 60 and 70-storey buildings yelling themselves hoarse in infectious excitement.

Typists forgot their usual duties to dump overflowing waste paper baskets out of windows and screamed shrill greetings at the nation's hero riding in procession far below them.

The parade was an hour late in starting. Fifteen carloads of officials waited impatiently in the broiling sun while Mr. Hughes sat in his hotel suite dictating letters to his secretary.

Once under way, however, it was the gayest triumphal procession New York has seen since the city greeted Colonel Lindbergh on his return from his Atlantic flight in 1927.

Policemen lined the streets to prevent any recurrence of the riot scenes that marred Mr. Hughes's arrival on Thursday at the Floyd Bennett Airport.

The parade began at the Battery and ended at the City Hall, where the Mayor, Mr. La Guardia, extended the city's official greeting.

PETROL SUPPLY FEAR.

Mr. Hughes yesterday told his story of three occasions during his flight when disaster threatened his 'plane.

His first was at the start from New York 21 minutes after midnight (B.S.T.) on Sunday, when the monoplane, overladen with a huge supply of petrol, almost refused to take to the air as Mr. Hughes drove it down the runway.

Just in time to avoid an accident, he wrenched it off the ground, but not before the tail wheel was so badly damaged that repairs costing several valuable hours' delay had to be done in Paris.

The second threat of disaster came when the flyers were over the Atlantic, when it was feared that the petrol supply which the two 11,000 horse power motors were eating up much faster than was expected would not last to carry them safely to the European mainland. The machine arrived, but with only enough fuel to keep the engines turning.

GREATEST WING LOAD.

Threat No. 3 was over the desolate wastes of Siberia, where Mr. Hughes found the maps he carried erred by more than 3,000 feet in the altitudes of the mountains he had to cross. By pure luck he delayed his start from Yakutsk to Fairbanks until dawn. Had he not done so the 'plane might have crashed against the snow-covered crest of some erroneously chartered peak.

As Mr. Hughes said, "If I had stuck to my first plan to leave Yakutsk at night I don't think I should now be here."

His departure from New York, however, was really his most anxious moment as the 'plane proved to be too small for the amount of petrol it had to carry.

"We had a wing load of 57 pounds to the square foot, the greatest wing load I have ever heard of even for Schneider Trophy racers," Mr. Hughes explained.

"I actually took off with a 25,600 pound load, nearly 2,000 pounds more than we had carried in any preliminary test. Once in the air we had to push the engines so hard to keep the ship up that we found we had barely enough gasoline to reach Paris.

"We used as much as 90 gallons an hour for the twin engines. The tail wheel was so damaged that when the French mechanics saw it they just shrugged and said 'Rien a faire. C'est fini,' but my engineer Lund aided by another local American mechanic worked for eight hours and finally fixed it with angle irons.

TRIBUTE TO WILEY POST.

"We didn't see a single wave after leaving Boston. We saw nothing but clouds over the Atlantic and just glimpsed Ireland through a hole in the fog. Almost the whole way to Moscow and after leaving Moscow we had a lot of trouble with ice forming on the wings.

"Apart from weather hazards and physical strain, the rest of the trip was simple. My navigators were so accurate that we hit every spot on the nose, and all I had to do was to fly the machine. We slept little except for 'cat naps,' and ate almost nothing save an occasional tin of fruit.

"It's silly to compare our flight with that of Wiley Post. His flight can never be duplicated. How he did it alone I can't understand. It's like pulling a rabbit out of a hat or sawing a woman in two. I had the best crew in the world, and everybody, especially the Russians, co-operated magnificently with us, but I wouldn't like to make the trip again. Once is enough."

HOWARD HUGHES MARRIED?

NEW YORK, Saturday.—A suggestion that Mr. Howard Hughes and Miss Katherine Hepburn, the film star, are already married is made by the Hollywood columnist of the "New York Daily News."

He says that "close observers" in Hollywood believe that they were married secretly before the flight. It is reported that Mr. Hughes plans to spend the weekend in the county at Saybrook, Connecticut, Miss Hepburn's home is nearby.

'PLANE CRASH ON HOSPITAL.

BUENOS AYRES, Friday.—A Panagra-Douglas aeroplane carrying eight passengers and a crew of four, crashed on the top of a hospital at Ituzaingo, in the province of Buenos Ayres. One person was killed and 15 seriously injured.—Central News.

AUSTRIAN WOMEN'S COUNCIL.

The dissolution of the National Council of Women in Austria was intimated at the first council session of the Golden Jubilee Congress of the International Council of Women in Edinburgh on Friday.

Baroness Boel (Belgium), who presided, said that she had received a memorandum from Frau Hoheisel, president of the Austrian organisation, stating that fresh circumstances demanding fresh solutions had arisen, and the Austrian National Council as it stood had been dissolved. Frau Hoheisel hoped not to lose friendly touch with the N.C.W.

FROM JAIL TO COURT

MAYFAIR CASE RECALLED.

LONSDALE SUED BY MONEYLENDER

John Christopher Mainwaring Lonsdale, now serving a term of imprisonment for his part in the Hyde Park Hotel jewel robbery, was the defendant in a moneylending action before Mr. Justice Asquith in the King's Bench Division, London, yesterday.

He appeared in court accompanied by a warder.

Lonsdale was sued by Kent Trust, Ltd., moneylenders, of Duke Street, St. James's, for £230 16s 10d, due under a promissory note for £100 to which he was joint signatory with a man named Victor Hervey.

Lonsdale's defence was that the contract was unenforceable, that the rate of interest was excessive, and that the transaction was "harsh and unconscionable."

GERMANY IS BUYING MEXICAN OIL.

MACHINERY IN EXCHANGE.

It was learned in authoritative circles yesterday that an exclusive credit of £83,000 in payment for the first five shipments to Germany of expropriated British and American oil has been opened jointly by W. R. Davis and Co., of New York, and the German Government, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Mexico City correspondent.

This is the first time that the German Government has appeared openly in the oil transaction.

Mexican Government departments are compiling lists of machinery needed from Germany. This was formerly purchased from Britain and the United States. The Department of Irrigation is sending a representative to Germany.

Defendant, who expressed regret, was allowed off with a fine of 1s and costs.

SOVIET PARLIAMENT

OLD LEADERS MISSING.

UNKNOWNS IN HIGH PLACES.

LITVINOFF IN SEATS OF MIGHTY.

The supreme single-chamber Parliament of the Russian Federal Republic, as distinct from the two-chamber Council elected last year to represent the whole Soviet Union, met for the first time last evening in the former theatre of the Military School in the Kremlin, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Moscow correspondent.

There was considerable applause when Stalin entered, followed by his chief lieutenants, members of the Supreme Party Politbureau. These included the veteran President of the Republic Kalinin, the Premier Molotoff, Yezhoff, the active little Commissar for Internal Affairs and head of the Secret Police; Lazarus Kaganovich, Commissar for Heavy Industry and Railways; and Zdanoff, party chief for Leningrad.

Litvinoff was also in the seats of the mighty, although a considerable distance from Stalin and his inner circle. The presence of Mme. Litvinoff, formerly Miss Ivy Low, of London, in the guest seats, caused much comment.

This seems to dispose of the rumour that she has actually been charged as an "enemy of the people."

CONSPICUOUS ABSENTEES.

The presence of Petrovsk, the veteran Vice-President of the Soviet Union, sitting next, although not close to Yezhoff, who, it was reported abroad, had personally arrested him, also made a big impression.

The Ukrainian leaders Kossior and Chubar, both big Central Party Politbureau men, were conspicuously missing.

In spite of their former eminence, neither was elected to the Supreme Council of their native Ukraine or to that now sitting. This seems to confirm their disappearance from public life.

I noticed the Chief State Prosecutor, Vishinsky, whose blonde hair is now almost dead white, seated to the right of the stage among an entirely new batch of people's commissars of whom I did not know a single one even by sight.

This "Parliament," consisting og 727 members, elected on June 26, represents seven-eighths of the Soviet total territory, and something less than two-thirds of Russia's total population.

According to official figures 99.3 per cent., or just over 60,000,000 electors, participated in its election, and of these 99.3 per cent. voted for the official candidates.

Of these 568 belong to the Communist party and 159 are non-party. This distinction no longer means much.

There are 157 women members and the usual sprinkling of Cossacks and other picturesquely clothed persons.

HOUR'S SITTING.

The Supreme Council sat for only an hour to elect Zdanoff by acclamation as its president, and a Tartar called Genchereff, and a rather pretty 30-year-old woman textile worker, Makarova, as vice-presidents. One woman vice-president is now the rule for these assemblies.

The council will probably sit on an average of two hours daily for a week and then be prorogued. Its presidium, probably consisting of 24 people, to be elected by acclamation to-day, will be left to carry on with legislative business.

The famous Soviet airman, Kokkinaky, who is a member of this Parliament, was due to reach Moscow after a record flight from the Far East in time for the opening of the session at 6 p.m. He failed, however, to arrive on time.

THE EIRE ANOMALY.

IF those who are the responsible heads of the Government of Eire possess any of the essential qualities of statesmanship, they have been exceedingly slow in manifesting them up to the present. They give the impression of being very young and inexperienced people who exult in parading in the robes and uniforms of office without any practical knowledge or experience in the performance of its duties. Their grudging and forced acknowledgment of the closeness of the economic dependence of Ireland upon Great Britain has not been accompanied by any real change of heart, or acknowledgment of the folly of their separatism. The conclusion of a favourable trade agreement with Britain is attributed not to the forbearance and generosity of the "senior partner" but to Eire's own obstinacy in repudiating contracts and embarking on a conflict which cost the farmers of the South millions of pounds. In the same way the handing over of the ports hitherto garrisoned by British troops is not appreciated in its true meaning as a token of goodwill which probably no other Great Power in the world would have given in the circumstances. An almost childish delight is manifested when ships of other countries sailing into Queenstown Harbour salute the tricolour, but there is no acknowledgment of the benevolent attitude of the British Government which made this possible. Instead, we have Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister for Defence, apologising in the Dail for such an ordinary act of courtesy as proposing the King's health, which in international diplomacy would be regarded as an every day occurrence. The ambiguous position of Eire within the British Empire or, as some prefer to call it, "Commonwealth of Nations," is coming more and more into notice as time passes.

A Dublin newspaper, formerly Unionist in its policy, remarks plaintively: "Nobody seems to know precisely the international status of Eire. Is it a Dominion of the British Commonwealth or not?" The writer admits that "under the new Constitution it has all the external trappings of a Republic," but asserts that "everybody knows that it is not a Republic." Here we beg leave to join issue. There is no other British Dominion where the Union Jack flies no longer and the name of the King has been expunged with meticulous care from all public proceedings. There is little weight to be attached to the fact that the "Anglo-Irish Treaty" concluded in 1921 was solemnly registered in the League of Nations office at Geneva by the Cosgrave Government. Since that time the "Treaty," in so far as "Eire's" part of it is concerned, has been torn into minute fragments, and it only exists as a curiosity. Yet the "external association" of Eire with the rest of the Empire, of which Mr. De Valera has given a limited acceptance, persists. Passports for inhabitants of Eire travelling abroad are made out in the King's name and they enjoy all the privileges of British citizens to-day such as the chance of obtaining positions of dignity and emolument under the Crown, in all parts of the Empire. If Eire were once declared formally to be a Republic completely independent of the British Crown, her sons and daughters would be aliens in all lands of the Empire. Many of those who have found and are continuing to find employment across the Channel would have their way barred under the new regime. The journal referred to observes that "Eire is at present like Mohammed's coffin suspended between the Republican heaven and the solid earth of the Commonwealth." Yet by those who advocate the removal of "Partition" the Unionists of Northern Ireland are invited to cast in their lot with a State in such an anomalous and unstable position as that correctly described in the words quoted. Obviously such conditions cannot continue indefinitely in the Twenty-six Counties, and some day, sooner or later a crash appears inevitable when the casket suspended in mid-air will strike the hard ground with a bump calculated to awaken the most fanatical separatist from his dream. In the gathering up of the fragments which will follow, Ulster will not be primarily concerned.

Thoughts For The Times.

THE MODERN EXODUS

TO-MORROW throughout the British Empire special intercession is being offered by all Jewish congregations and by many Christian Churches on behalf of the sufferers of persecution for race or creed in Europe to-day.

Here is something in which we can all join, even if we cannot attend the specific services called for this purpose, for we all live upon the threshold of that Eternal Tabernacle of the human heart, which is God's chief dwelling place, and we may all direct, at the very least, the stream of our desire and the currents of our thought towards the helping of the unfortunate.

There are many people who still do not realise the intense suffering that is being inflicted upon Jews who are not fortunate enough to be able to join in the modern Exodus, but must continue to dwell beneath the heavy hand of tryanny.

The Nuremburg Congress of 1935 passed laws which relegated the Jews to serfdom in Germany. It forbade marriages between Jews and Aryans and nullified marriages contracted (even abroad) in defiance of these laws. This has led to 10,000 separations of married people in Austria alone quite recently. It is probably the most wholesale overriding of marriage sanctity ever perpetrated in history.

At present the German Jew has no civil rights; he cannot become a Civil Servant, a publisher or a journalist; he cannot speak over the radio, or become an actor on screen or stage before Aryan audiences; he cannot teach, give concerts, exhibit paintings, or even sell antiques, and if he is starving he can receive no help from charitable organisations, and his name has even been erased from the War Memorials of the Great War.

These are the people who are now being stripped of such wealth as remains to them so that Germany may yet outdo ancient Egypt in sheer brutality to a defenceless people, since the slaves that Moses led forth were at least allowed to take their personal jewellery with them.

THE silly artificiality of the scare about the Jews in the modern world is plainly shown in the figures of population. Never at any time have there been more than six hundred thousand Jews in Germany's population of 75 million, just as there are not more than five hundred thousand in Great Britain.

In face of these facts, the scare becomes a compliment, though rather painful, to the varied genius of the Jewish race. Probably no people have been so subjected to sheer panic-stricken libel as the Jews.

Only the other day I was in conversation with an English business man of some standing, who for 35 years has carried on a considerable business involving daily contact with Jewish employers and employes, and who could not speak too highly both of their integrity and their humanity. Both, in his judgment, were to be compared most favourably with the Gentile population.

It is a thousand pities that in view of the modern Exodus, the Jews should not be able to find their historic goal once more in their Promised Land, where there is room for at least a million more.

The reign of terror in Palestine is a most regrettable tragedy and is one in which religious people should be peculiarly interested because of the way in which it lets down the prestige of the three most important religions in the world—Christianity, Mohammedanism and Judaism. Without the last-named the other two could not have arisen.

✠

THEY owe an overwhelming debt to the Jewish people, and now is the time to pay it. Cannot Christian and Mohammedan leaders get together and bring the constraints of their respective faiths to bear upon the conflicting elements in Palestine?

A bold action of this kind, inspired by a strong and steady faith, might get much further with the problem than the efforts of either statesmen or military.

There is something particularly revolting in the sight of people being penalised for their race, for if there is one thing that none of us can help, it is the accident of birth. It becomes, moreover, ridiculous when it is directed towards a race which, more than any other on earth for its size, has produced genius in every realm of human interest, full of blessing for the rest of the world.

Would you rather be a Hitler or an Einstein? Would you rather be born to genius and suffer persecution or be born to power and remain a fool? It is a pretty dilemma.

One is surprised that a great people like the Germans should be guilty of a folly that is so cruel and a cruelty that is so foolish. Let us remember in our intercession to pray not only for those who suffer, but also for those whose lot is even worse, because they are guilty of inflicting the wrong.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO PARIS

NEXT week's visit of the King and Queen to France brings to the forefront the friendly relations between Britain's Monarchs and the French. On this page on Monday the first of four striking articles by Elissa St. John, well-known writer on British Royalty, will be published.

The articles reveal many little known facts of the relationships between France and Queen Victoria, Edward VII., George V., and Edward VIII., such, for example, as the occasion on which King Edward VII. played the role of corpse in a French theatre, and the dramatic semi-secret trips of King George V. during the war.

Monday's article describes how Parisians once hissed Queen Victoria.

Once a clerk in a Belfast solicitor's office, he is now the

Most Prolific Writer of Thrillers since Edgar Wallace

by

One Who Knows Him

JAMES CORBETT
He turns out annually a prodigious amount of novels, short stories and articles.

¶ It is not too widely known that James Corbett, the most prolific writer of thrillers since the death of Edgar Wallace, is a native of Belfast, where he spent his early years. He is now resident in Bristol, from which city he turns out annually a prodigious output of novels, short stories, and articles.

"One who knows him" writes this sketch of his career.

MR. CORBETT'S father was for 23 years in the service of Messrs. Lindsay Thompson Flax Street mills. I remember James when he used to toddle down to the mill, as a boy of ten, with his father's white coat over his arm. This was generally on a Saturday morning, and the white coat had to be specially laundered for the occasion.

I can also remember James at his father's funeral—he was then only thirteen—and, as the mill was stopped all that day, it was one of the biggest funerals for many years in Belfast. Mr. James Corbett, senior, was a most popular mill manager, never making the slightest distinction between Roman Catholic and Protestant, so small wonder the funeral was almost two miles in length as it passed down the Crumlin Road.

BEFORE he was thirteen James wrote fifty verses of poetry about his school, and those efforts were read by the headmaster before the school broke up for summer vacation.

With a widowed mother and three sisters to support, James gave up his cherished hope of going to Queen's University to be a barrister, so at 13 he went into the offices of A. J. Lewis, the Belfast Corporation solicitor, 83 Royal Avenue, and there he remained five years.

He gave Mr. Lewis a tremendous shock when, a few weeks after he commenced the law, he produced his first short story at 13, entitled "A Turf Romance," and this modest effort was published in "Ireland's Saturday Night."

"I won't get over this for a fortnight!" Mr. Lewis exclaimed, pulling his leg. "I thought you came here to be my Sessions clerk; now it looks as if I had engaged a Conan Doyle!"

☆

JAMES was overwhelmed by the fact that Mr. Lewis had read his modest effort, and when he was also congratulated by Mr. Edward Cooksey, who later practised as a solicitor; also by Mr. David Bell, the conveyance clerk, who later became clerk to Holywood Urban Council, he thought he had committed some terrible crime.

At any rate, it did not stop him writing, for he won 14 more competition story efforts in the same Belfast paper, then his stories began to appear in various papers; he made over £60 or £70 with these efforts before he was 17.

There is one amusing incident I must relate, and it proves that James has a real Irish "Paddy"! It occurred when he was working with Mr. A. J. Lewis, and indeed it actually happened before he had worked more than three months in that office.

As those who knew him are aware, Mr. Lewis, who was a most lovable man, had a fiery temper at times, although it only lasted a few seconds. As James was junior in the office, it was his duty to keep the fire replenished with coal, but as he had been sent out one morning to get certain deeds stamped at the Custom House the fire was a pitiable sight when Mr. Lewis returned from the Police Court at 12 o'clock.

The bell was rung furiously, and when James answered the summons, Mr. Lewis promptly flung the empty coal bucket in his direction, accompanying the act with a tornado of words, and giving no chance at an explanation. Seeing that his employer must be taught a lesson, James just as quickly flung the empty coal bucket back at his chief, and announced that he did not come there to be a navvy but to learn the law!

MR. Lewis gazed incredulously at the young rebel, then collapsed in his chair at the desk. Contrary to anticipation, nothing more was heard of the incident, and although the truant expected dismissal he was retained for five years as sessions clerk.

Indeed as James was an expert shorthand writer and typist, his duties were most comprehensive, for Mr. Lewis dictated lengthy briefs to him, confidential letters, "cases for counsel," and, into the bargain, the young clerk had to attend the law courts, take evidence in the office from witnesses, type conveyance drafts, agreements, briefs, then—in case that was not sufficient—supervise the dispatch of all letters to the post office. Before those letters were sent out, two or three copies had to be taken, so, when 6-30 arrived in the evening, it was a very tired sessions clerk who locked up for the night.

But James did not go straight home. He went straight to the Free Library in Royal Avenue, selected the leading article in the London "Times" and read it carefully seven times. He did that for years, with an occasional break to slip up to the gallery of the Belfast Theatre or Hippodrome, but most of his spare time was spent on the Cave Hill, and there, I think, he fostered his big ambition to be a writer of repute.

He went on from the law to Harland and Wolff, Ltd., where he spent another five years in the contracts department, and I know for a fact that James used to go down there long before the office was due to open at nine, in order to type his literary manuscripts. During the lunch-hour he would walk down by the river still thinking out his plots, and working hard on them when he returned home in the evening.

I can only ascribe his terrific energy to the fact that he has been a teetotaller all his life, that he smokes sparingly, and indeed I hear he has not touched a cigarette for the last ten months. When in Belfast, he was a keen member of the Lynn Cricket Club, but when not playing cricket he was generally found on the top of the Cavehill.

His friends always knew where to find him—"right on the top of the hill"—and always alone with his thoughts. He was a tremendous walker, and thought nothing of setting out for the Cavehill at any hour of the day or night. He appeared to live with his dreams, and, as he was gifted with a keen imagination, one could understand his wish for solitude.

Later he left Queen's Island and went to James Lindsay & Co., Ltd., then to the Presbyterian Health Insurance Society. He joined the Ulster Volunteers, was out the night of the gunrunning with the Fortwilliam battalion; at the same period he joined the O.T.C. at Queen's University, where he spent two years before the war commenced.

He had just returned from camp when hostilities began; he applied for a commission first thing, despite the fact there was no conscription in Ireland, and that he had a widowed mother and three sisters. His commission did not come through quickly enough, so he joined the ranks of the 3rd Somerset Light Infantry, and was carrying coal in Plymouth Barracks when he was commissioned into the 15th King's Liverpool Regiment.

☆

LATER he was transferred to the 3rd and 18th Welch Regiment—he saw service in France with the 18th Welch—then he joined the Royal Flying Corps as pilot. He was sent six months to Reading University, then to Northolt Aerodrome, and the last year of the war he was musketry officer to the No. 3 Officer Cadet Company, also assistant adjutant and staff officer to the same unit.

He came through the war unscathed, although he was in two gas attacks, and saw fighting round Hill 60, Vimy Ridge, Hohenzollern Redoubt, La Bassee Canal, also the Maroe sector between Lens and Loos. He had also two crashes in the Flying Corps, and, when the Defence Force was created after the war, he secured his commission again with the 6th Gloucester Regiment.

To show that fighting must be in his blood, or that he is a real Ulsterman, the War Office has now granted his application to join the Officers' Emergency Reserve in case of a crisis.

I know for a fact that James Corbett has three letters in his possession written to him by Lord Carson before his death, and he would not part with those letters for a big sum of money.

As regards his literary work, it has been stupendous since the Armistice. He wrote not a line during the war, but since then he has contributed for five years to the "Fortnightly Review," also to the "Nineteenth Century and After," the "Contemporary Review" and the "English Review"; his thrillers run to 28 books, and eight more novels still remain to be published.

He has just completed a big romance entitled: "We, Too, Must Die," running to 95,000 words and 52 chapters, and I understand he hopes that will make a hit. It is not a thriller, but a story of contemporary life, where the hero, a widower, and his son are in love with the same girl.

I venture to predict that James Corbett has only commenced; he is only fifty years of age, and he takes great care of his health. As he has a wide range, it is difficult to estimate how far he will go, but his Belfast friends will wish him continued success.

The Miracle of the Iron Lung

Technically known as the Drinker Respirator, the iron lung has been in the news this week—questions were asked in Parliament about it. In this article is told the romance of this remarkable lifesaving invention and how it works.

JUST ten years ago a young physiologist at Harvard University in the course of his work had to examine various pieces of apparatus designed to resuscitate people who, for one reason or another, had stopped breathing. The commonest reasons were suffocation through gas and drowning, and the apparatus consisted essentially of a device which alternately pumped air into the lungs and sucked it out.

The apparatus was not very satisfactory, and it immediately struck this young physiologist, Philip Drinker, that instead of forcing air into the lungs, it would be much more satisfactory to make the lungs do their own work.

Just at this time Drinker heard of the invention of a Swedish doctor designed for this purpose. It consisted of a room in which the air pressure was alternately raised and lowered. The effect was to push the chest in and out and force the patient to breathe, but the device was not a complete success. For one thing, the pressure altered not only on the chest, but also on the ears, eyes and mouth, and the patient felt uncomfortable.

"If I could make an apparatus that would alter the pressure on the chest, but leave the head free," argued Drinker, "there is no reason why a patient should not stay in it for weeks and even months." He started to build an apparatus in a basement. He was able to convince gas companies, concerned in many cases of suffocation, that his invention would be valuable to them and they provided money for development.

A large steel cylinder began to take shape. The motor from a vacuum cleaner provided the means of pumping in air. A trolley from a garage served to carry the patient into the apparatus. A piece of stout rubber sheeting made a collar which fitted tightly round the patient's neck, leaving his head outside.

At last the apparatus was ready. An assistant was pushed in. The motor was switched on. The "patient" tried not to breathe. The changes of pressure forced him to inhale and exhale. The "iron lung" had been invented, an apparatus that was destined to save the lives of hundreds of people who would otherwise have been doomed.

That was ten years ago. Now the iron lung appears with increasing frequency in the headlines. Over 300 iron lungs are available in the United States, and their number is likely to be increased immediately, and in a short time it is probable that iron lungs will be available in every civilised town in the world.

Not more than ten per cent. of them are ever likely to be working at the same time. But unless the apparatus can be obtained in a few minutes, at the most a few hours, it is useless. When six minutes have elapsed since the patient's last breath, no apparatus or drug known to Science can help. After these short minutes vital cells begin to decay, and nothing can repair them.

TO be of value, therefore, the iron lung must be instantly available. Men working in relays can apply artificial respiration only for a limited period, then the mechanical respirator must take over. Once the patient is safely inside it, the iron lung will keep him alive for weeks, months, even years, until the chest muscles recover their ability to work on their own account.

Mr. F. B. Snite has lived in an iron lung for two years, and may have to spend another seven years in it before he recovers completely from the infantile paralysis that struck him in China. A terribly long cure, you may say, but if the iron lung had not been available, there would have been no chance at all of Mr. Snite's recovery.

The iron lung is popularly associated with infantile paralysis, and it is certainly in treating cases where the paralysis attacks the breathing muscles that it has been most used. But it is effective in treating paralysis from any cause.

Children stricken with post-diphtherial paralysis, people suffering from electric shock, an overdose of certain drugs or lock-jaw may have their lives saved by the respirator. It was invented to deal with cases of gas poisoning.

Wherever in the past doctors might have tried Schæfer's "prone pressure" method of inducing respiration in a last desperate hope of saving life, they would now call for an iron lung knowing that if it could be obtained in time the chances of survival were high.

The principle of the iron lung is simple. Air is pumped into the steel cylinder and withdrawn a given number of times a minute, causing a difference in pressure of about four ounces per square inch. The "negative" pressure causes air to enter the lungs and the "positive" pressure causes it to be exhaled.

THUS the patient gets fifteen or so pints of air in and out of his lungs every minute. The amount of pressure and the number of "respirations" a minute can be regulated according to the age, etc., of the patient.

The first experimental respirator made by Drinker was quickly scrapped, to be built up again in improved form with an automatic valve for altering the pressure. There was drama in the construction of the second respirator, for when it neared completion a desperate case was brought into a nearby hospital. Drinker finished it in time to save the little girl, although later she died because the paralysis spread to her heart, and there is as yet no "iron heart."

WITHIN a few days another case came in and the iron lung went to work. In three weeks the patient was breathing for himself. The invention had proved itself, and ever since Drinker and other scientists have been concerned in improvements.

The Swedish scientist whose device provided the inspiration for the first iron lung has invented an improved type which does not require the whole body of the patient to be "immersed." The "lung" covers only his chest, and apart from other considerations has the great advantage that it costs only about one-fifth of the full iron lung. Various types of "lung" have now been developed, but the average cost is £200-£300.

For hospitals where the lung may be called upon frequently, a pressure room has been devised. In this several patients can lie at once, and doctors and nurses can enter and attend to their needs without disturbing them. Those who enter the chamber get the effect of changing pressure like the patients in the first respirator, and have to put cotton wool in their ears.

THE patients, of course, have their heads outside. If one of these rooms had been available, the authorities in San Francisco would not have had to make the hard decision that faced them some time ago. Two cases were brought in together requiring the iron lung. Only one lung was available, and they had to decide which of the two patients should be given the chance to live.

Improvements to the lung used by Mr. Snite enable him to make the best of his necessarily confined life. A periscope makes it possible for him to see everything about him, and now a lung in a caravan is being built for him so that he can watch races and go to golf matches.

The iron lung is one of the great triumphs of medical invention. The discovery of certain drugs and methods in the past has made it possible to say they saved life when the chances of death would otherwise have been great. The iron lung saves life when death would otherwise be certain.

"Round the World" Flights.

Tribute to Aerial Pioneers.

LONDON, Saturday.

Wiley Post.

WITHOUT wishing to detract in the least from the great flight Hughes made, it is important to remember that the phrase "round the world" is used in a very loose sense, for the journey made in four days was 15,000 miles, while it is another 10,000 actually and completely round the globe.

When this encirclement will be achieved is a matter of air history, for in no direction could it be undertaken without grave risk

The Hughes flight is a practical one, and in that lies its value, but, again, it has to be reckoned that the machine is an exceptional one (we have bought them for the Air Force) and this type was especially equipped. Also, it was manned by five experts.

These considerations make the accomplishment of Wiley Post, all alone and with the earlier type of aircraft, the greater to be admired. The pioneers, as always, point the way, but their deeds are often forgotten. Jules Verne's fictitious voyage remains a great one.

Japan and Olympics.

OLYMPIC Games usually produce a minor diplomatic disturbance over some trivial matter. Now a major event, the Sino-Japanese conflict, has raised a problem before the 1940 games are reached.

Japan was very wise, one must think, to withdraw, but it has left the succeeding nation, in this case Finland, very little time for preparing for the event, which takes a full four years of careful organisation to deal with it adequately.

The scope of the games has grown enormously out of all proportion to the Hellenic tradition, and it means an immense effort by the nation acting as host to see that the complex arrangements run smoothly.

The Finnish Foreign Minister, by a coincidence is here in London, and it is possible that he will discuss whether it would be best for Finland to accept her advancement in the Olympic rota which would fall to her normally in 1944. London, with its greater facilities for staging an international event compared to Helsingfors, might well fill the breach created by Tokio, leaving Finland to be the venue for the Olympiad in 1944.

Scout Rally Comedies.

Surprises at Jamborees.

Sausages As Candles.

INTERNATIONAL jamborees produce amusing situations, and I hope that one day Lord Somers, the Deputy Chief Scout, will put in book form the host of delightful stories he can tell of what happens when boys from strange lands assemble together under canvas.

At one jamboree it appeared that a certain tent was eating an amazing quantity of shredded wheat for breakfast—until it was discovered that the boys were using it for pot scouring.

At another such assembly boys tried to light the ends of sausages for candles. They had never seen sausages before, and when their first efforts failed to dispel the darkness they soaked the sausages in oil—and there was light.

Lord Somers speaks of a jamboree as a family speaking at least a hundred languages, which eats sharks' fins, reindeer meat, snails, chop suey, flapjacks, and hunters' stew with goodness knows what to drink.

From the Arctic.

AN Arctic trapper's observations with regard to freezing fish and game is responsible for the formation of a new company over here to bring the best summer foods to everyone all the year round.

Clarence Birdseye discovered that when frozen quickly at extremely low temperatures his food retained its flavour and texture when cooked even after it had remained frozen for long periods.

He explained that under the old method of slow freezing large ice crystals formed which burst the wall of the food cells causing the loss of wholesomeness and flavour. Quick freezing keeps the cells small and prevents this from happening.

A forcible example of the living freshness of such foods is given by the statement that certain fish quick-frosted alive will, on thawing months later, recover animation. The phenomenon actually occurs in cold regions where fish captured in solid ice during winter regain power of movement on the return of spring.

Swing Virtuoso.

COMING to London on holiday is a man who has been instrumental in making swing music the success which it is in his native United States.

Benny Goodman, clarinet virtuoso, and most successful band leader in America, has nothing in his appearance to suggest a "hot jazz man." This is not unnatural for this quiet-voiced southerner, who has made his name almost a synonym for swing, has also appeared in the strictly classical "pro arte" quartet of New York, and has gained some local distinction as a Mozart interpreter.

It was as a small boy in short trousers playing in a pit orchestra that the young Goodman started his musical career. From there he went to the river boats on the Mississippi. It was on these show boats that the modern type of swing music, springing directly from the negro blues, was cradled.

Louis Armstrong, the coloured trumpet player, his master, King Oliver, and the lesser-known and short-lived white trumpet star, "Bix" Beiderbecks, all played on them, and in Benny they found an eager pupil.

When for many "sweet" music was in the ascendant and "swing" in the doldrums, Benny Goodman, in common with other uncompromising swing musicians, went through a hard period, and like them was better known to enthusiasts in this country—through the medium of the gramophone record—than he was in his own.

Patience Rewarded.

VISITORS to the Children's Zoo in the grounds of the Regent's Park Zoological Gardens next week will see the latest addition, Sheila, a bady elephant which arrived at the Zoo a few weeks ago, a gift from the United Provinces Forest Department. Accompanying the baby elephant was a letter from the forest officer which explained how much trouble and patience had been required to ship Sheila to this country.

Children who pay a visit to this baby will gaze upon an elephant only a year old, which from birth has been in at the death of numerous game birds and larger game, including a leopard. She has been charged by a very angry tiger and sought refuge under the mother's stomach.

These frequent mother and daughter expeditions into the jungle incidentally formed the most trying part of her career as far as her keepers were concerned, for the task of separating mother and daughter when it was time for Sheila to come to England was anything but easy.

At first even the first five minutes apart was painful to them both, but gradually they got used to separation, although by their violent squealings and trumpetings mother and calf could hear each other calling at a good two miles range.

An Exception.

IT is a matter for wonder that Sir John Simon does not make more great speeches like that he made yesterday. I happen to have heard him speak for six days on the principles underlying the gyroscopic compass.

The subject may sound dry. Sir John Simon made it interesting. But when he gets into the political field his confidence seems to leave him. Count the speeches that he has made while, and after he was Foreign Secretary, and you will find few that are of outstanding importance. Yesterday's was an exception.

Punctuation All Important.

THERE was a time when Acts of Parliament contained no punctuation. Now it is different, and in recent years there has been an occasion on which it was alleged that the whole meaning of an Act had been altered by a comma.

It may or it may not be so, but M.P.'s are beginning to be worried about the punctuation of Government publications, and Mr. Alan Herbert has put down a question on the subject.

ARMAMENT BURDEN

SIR JOHN SIMON

AND A £1,000,000,000 BUDGET.

TAXPAYERS' GOOD RESPONSE

BRITAIN DID NOT SET PACE.

In the British House of Commons on Friday.

Captain EUAN WALLACE, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, moving the third reading of the Finance Bill, said that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had certainly made no attempt to angle for the title of "architect of the popular Budget," "but in fact," he added, "it has been widely recognised that this Budget is the best that can be done in the circumstances." The manner in which the public had received the extra burdens to be imposed was a characteristic of our people, which no Government could afford either to abuse or to ignore. A Budget of this character inspired more confidence throughout the country than one that relied upon ingenious financial or economic devices to ease the present burdens at the expense of the future.

"This Budget," he added, "has been well received because of the general feeling of relief that the Government has not been intimidated into cuts in our standard of living by the curtailment of social services and by the knowledge that at any rate we are getting both guns and butter.

"So long as the state of the world obliged us to defend ourselves upon the present scale, or anything like it, it would be foolish and indeed criminal to deny the existence of financial problems ahead or to minimise their gravity."

OUR FINANCIAL STRENGTH.

"But," he concluded, "this Budget and its reception both in this House and outside does provide a demonstration of the immense financial strength of this country which is no less impressive than the knowledge of our steadily growing defensive power."

Mr. BENSON (Lab., Chesterfield) said that the outlook was very melancholy. Next year was going to be even more difficult financially than this. "From now onwards," he added, "this country will be faced with annual budgets of not less than £1,000,000,000 a year. The outlook financially is unquestionably rather dull."

Mr. HELY-HUTCHINSON (C., Hastings) said that from start to finish in its general outline the Bill outlined the major problem with which we were faced. That was that while on the expenditure side "the horses are running away," on the revenue side taxation was reaching its effective limit. He could not see how they could solve the problem by the ordinary methods of party politics. As in the story of tweedledee and tweedledum, under the shadow of the "monstrous crow" of national bankruptcy in the years ahead, he hoped that they could look forward to greater co-operation between the two great parties of the State in solving the problem.

Sir STANLEY REED (C., Aylesbury), in his maiden speech, made a vigorous plea for administrative economy. He had listened, he said, to pressure being brought upon the Chancellor to make expenditure so prodigal that it would make a £1,000,000,000 Budget seem a comparative fleabite.

"I have sometimes wondered," he added, "whether I was sitting here in London or whether I was not back in the atmosphere of Versailles with unlimited burdens thrown upon people and never any consideration given to capacity to pay."

He asked the Chancellor to emulate Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and say "no" to the constant demands made upon him, and suggested that a saving of one halfpenny in the shilling could be made in the budget expenditure. This would amount to a sum almost equal to the new taxation proposed by the Chancellor.

"WHISKY TAX TOO HIGH."

Mr. BOOTHBY (C. Aberdeen E.) took a mournful view of the present whisky tax which, he said, was penal in its incidence. "I believe," he said, "that a moderate reduction in the whisky duty would bring increased revenue to the Treasury as well as greater prosperity to the farmers." He felt that there ought to be much more co-operation between the central Government and the local authorities. The Chancellor should do all in his power to increase overseas trade without increasing our adverse balance of trade.

Mr. GEORGE GRIFFITHS (Lab. Hemsworth) deplored the fact that the Chancellor had not seen fit to withdraw the tea tax. As to the suggestion that Labour should co-operate with the Government in solving the financial problem, he said, "If you can't manage this job and feel it is too big for you, clear out and we will do it for you."

Mr. BELLENGER (Lab. Bassetlaw) asked on what basis it was suggested that the Opposition should co-operate with the Government. It must be evident that there was a big division of opinion between the two parties as to what was the best economic system for the country.

PESSIMISTS REBUKED.

Mr. MAGNAY (L. Nat., Gateshead) congratulated the Financial Secretary to the Treasury on making the only cheerful speech of the debate. "We have had so many doctors giving their reasons for the ill-health of the patient," he said. "Some have been saying it is high blood pressure, others a slow pulse, and another a high temperature—a thousand and one reasons have been given why England is not doing well."

Any foreign Ambassadors present in the gallery would gain the impression that the country was in a parlous state. "I regret this bedside manner," he said. "One would think we were really down and out, and had only a few years to live. Once again I have confidence that the experts are generally wrong, and the patient has the will to live, and that is the thing that matters."

All the dreadful things happening in the world were the birth pangs of a new age, and if we applied ourselves with faith and confidence to the task, he did not think there would be a post mortem in three or four months' time, as suggested by speeches that morning. The best was yet to be.

CHANCELLOR'S REPLY.

Sir JOHN SIMON, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to the debate, said that it was well known that the course of world trade had not been too favourable since he presented his Budget. "But," he added, "making the best estimates we can on every ground, do not let us exaggerate the disappointments. I am all for the view that we want to face the facts and state them, and I have no sympathy whatever with the idea that you can avoid difficulties by dressing up the anxiety and assuming an unnatural and unhealthy cheerful note. "On the other hand, do not let us inflict an even greater injury upon the country by jumping to the conclusion that things are blacker than they are.

"The present situation bears no sort of resemblance to the situation that existed before the great depression of 1931. None at all."

"While everyone is entitled to entertain any fears he likes fears of that character appear to me to be quite ungrounded."

Of course the doctrine of self-sufficiency, which was being developed in certain countries in Europe, were the reverse of helpful to international trade, but conditions in the countries producing primary commodities were, generally speaking, much improved as compared with 1931.

We had secured a far better and surer share of the home market than in 1931 and were much less dependent on the fluctuations of foreign trade. It would be very unjust, and probably disastrous, to take an unduly pessimistic view.

REARMAMENT EXPENDITURE.

"Rearmament," he said, "cannot be regarded as an unmixed good or an unmixed evil. Rearmament expenditure has undoubtedly done much to improve conditions, particularly on the North-East Coast and on the Clyde, which suffered so severely from the former depression."

He did not think it was realised how much the falling off in world consumption had been due to happenings in the United States in recent months. But if they excluded the United States world consumption had shown no special reduction in the first five months of the year.

"If anyone suggests that the Treasury watchdog has ceased to growl and bark and worry, they are very much mistaken," he declared. The difficulty of exercising complete control on the subject was well understood. Every item and detail was examined to see that money was not squandered.

Dealing with armament expenditure, he pointed out that modern methods of defence were much more complicated than they were years ago. Aeroplanes provided 20 years ago for use in Flanders were not the kind that would be accepted for a moment by the Air Force to-day. The consequence was that the price of each of them went up, because it was bigger and much more complicated and ingenious.

In 1912 a destroyer of 1,000 tons could be built for £140,000, but to-day it would be 2,000 tons and would cost four times as much. A cruiser cost £400,000 in 1911 and now cost four times as much, and a battleship in the 1936 programme was 35,000 tons and cost £8,000,000, as against 28,000 tons in 1911 at a cost of £2,350,000.

ENCOURAGING SYMPTOM.

In spite of the heavy programme in which we were engaged, Government stocks of all classes stood uniformly higher than 12 months ago and the increase in some cases was as much as 5 or 6 points. This should be observed as an encouraging symptom.

Sir John referred to the staggering fact that the whole world was pouring out more and more treasure in preparation for the possibility of war. Our figure had now become so immense that it seemed that we were preparing to spend sums which would have been regarded as fantastic 50 years ago.

He recalled that as a boy he read with great delight Jules Verne's book "Round the World in Eighty Days" and yet on Thursday an American completed a round the world trip in 91 hours. "If we go on like this," he added, "and a machine is ever devised that will fly at 1,000 miles an hour a man will be able to start on the equator, and remain on the equator, and if he goes round, the occupants of that machine will know nothing of the passage of time."

The developments in this respect were no more fantastic than the contrast in armaments expenditure, because 30 years ago our defence expenditure was less than £30 millions, and, if they took the world as a whole, the contrast was even greater.

"It is not with any pride and exultation," added Sir John, "that I have to present a £1,000,000,000 Budget. We can take pride in the courage and resolution with which our fellow-countrymen shoulder the burden. We can get some satisfaction and justification in the thought that it is not we who set the race or the pace.

SEEKING A SOLUTION.

"We can get some comfort in the fact that this country can endure at least as well as the rest of the world to bear the burden, but I must say, for my part, that my overwhelming feeling is one of revulsion and resentment that humanity is really engaged in mortgaging so immense a part of its resources in preparation for possible Armageddon when so much might be done with those resources if only a solution could be found."

The Government was, therefore, pressing forward to try to find a solution so that this piling up of armaments might end.

"After all," he added, "Tutankhamen was forgotten until he was dug up, and it is very possible that the things that are affecting our civilisation are more slender than is sometimes thought." Therefore he believed it was right that they should, in a spirit of sober responsibility and not by any means in a spirit of depression, pass the Finance Bill.

We had the capital, the courage, and the history which would see us through. "But," he concluded, "make no mistake. If we do not succeed and the world does not succeed in finding some way by which we can stop the folly of this ever-increasing expenditure on armaments, then, indeed, the future that we are preparing for our children is one at which we might well shudder." (Cheers.)

The Bill was read a third time without a division, and the House rose.

Mr. E. Morgan Cartwright presided at the organ, and at the conclusion played the Dead March in "Saul."

The Benediction was pronounced by the Moderator of the General Assembly.

BANKRUPTCY DISCHARGE.

ENTICEMENT SUIT RECALLED.

Mr. William M'Elroy, of Queen Court, Guilford Street, London, described as a coal factor, who was involved in an enticement action which his wife instituted against another woman, was granted his bankruptcy discharge at the London Bankruptcy Court yesterday.

Mr. Registrar Parton, suspending it for three years and six months, described the case as a serious one. The Official Receiver (Mr. H. H. Gaine) said that a verdict of £3,000 was obtained by Mrs. M'Elroy in the enticement action. Mr. M'Elroy failed in March with liabilities of £55,342. Assets amounting to £104 had been recovered, and it was anticipated that a further £300 would be recovered.

BRITISH AIRWOMAN GETS THRILL.

EXPERIENCE IN BUSH.

NATIVES TO THE RESCUE.

BANANAS AND CHICKEN DIET.

Miss Joan Parsons, the Leamington airwoman, who was forced down in the bush in Tanganyika while flying to England from the Cape, arrived at Nairobi yesterday, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. She gave a graphic account of how she lived in the wild country until rescuers arrived.

"On the evening of July 4 I got completely lost," she said, "as night was falling, and I realised that it was necessary to land before dark.

"I circled about seeking the flattest place for landing. I found a spot clear of stumps and trees, and brought the 'plane down into very high grass. After about 20 minutes a party of natives peered through the long grass.

"Meanwhile I certainly made enough noise. I amused myself shooting off the waving heads of the tall grass, practising in case I should be obliged to spend the night among wild animals.

TWENTY-MILE WALK.

"I got the natives to understand that I wanted sleep, and they led me to an empty hut at a mission station. I slept on rush matting on the floor, there being no bed.

"Bananas and chicken were my only food. I remained there for two days. A letter was sent to missionaries and to the district officer, Mr. Theodore Pike.

"Meanwhile I walked 20 miles to Mpanga Mission, and there I stayed bathing and walking and whiling away time for five days. Mr. Pike then reached my machine, and I joined him after walking the 20 miles back.

"While the natives were cutting a runway for the 'plane in the thick grass, Mr. Pike and I bathed, shot game, and lived well on good food. When the 'plane took off yesterday it only just cleared the long grass at the end of the runway."

Miss Parsons will continue her flight to-morrow.

HARD LABOUR SENTENCES

FOR RACE TRACK ROGUERY.

Thomas J. Murphy, Tuam, Galway, and Patrick J. Burns, Brownswood, Abbeyfeale, Co. Limerick, who pleaded guilty in the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court to charges of conspiring to defraud dog-owners by substituting greyhounds at various race meetings, were sentenced to four months' imprisonment, with hard labour, on Friday.

Sentencing them, Judge Shannon said: "Both of you would be indignant if it was suggested that you stole so much as 2s 6d from anyone's purse, but you and a large number of people appear to think that it is neither morally nor criminally wrong to defraud bookmakers and other people associated with greyhound racing. The only way in which it can be made known that such offences will lead people into the dock is by imposing appropriate terms of imprisonment."

PLAN FOR REFUGEES

EVIAN WORK FINISHED.

U.S. EXPERT ON GERMAN VISIT.

EVIAN LES BAINES, Friday.—The Inter-Governmental Refugee Committee finished its work this morning and will resume in London on August 3.

Mr. George Brandt, United States immigration expert, left Evian last night for Germany on a tour of investigation, writes the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. He will visit Vienna, Stuttgart, Liepsig, Breslau, and Hamburg, and possibly Berlin.

He will endeavour to collect the most accurate and recent information on the condition of prospective refugees in Germany, and will report to the Inter-Governmental Committee when it meets in London next month.

Evian circles regard Mr. Brandt's tour as most important, since it shows the keen interest taken by the United States Government in the German refugee problem.

Between now and August 3, when Lord Winterton takes over, Mr. Myron Taylor, chairman of the Inter-Governmental Committee, will continue to act as chairman, and will be a clearing house for confidential information from the Governments on their absorption possibilities.

Generally speaking, the Evian Committee is considered to have done good work. It has laid the foundations of a real international collaboration on the refugee question.

Lord Winterton to-day described the Evian meeting as the "first fruits of the wise and courageous initiative of President Roosevelt."

BRITISH POLICY.

At the final meeting of the committee to-day Lord Winterton made an important statement on British policy in respect of the refugees, in particular as regards Palestine. It has been said, said Lord Winterton, that the whole Jewish question could be solved if only the gates of Palestine could be thrown open. This proposition is wholly untenable. Palestine is not a large country, and the present local conditions are not propitious for Jewish immigration on a mass scale. H.M. Government has done everything it can possibly do to favour Jewish immigration. Since 1920 some 300,000 Jews have settled in Palestine and over 40,000 German Jews have been settled in the last few years, i.e., since 1935. "We cannot do more," said Lord Winterton. He pointed out that the Palestine Commission was now reporting, and while it was at work Jewish immigration must be restricted to certain temporary limits.

As regards possible Jewish settlement in Kenya, Lord Winterton said that there were certain possibilities for small scale settlement on the land of Jewish refugees. He told the conference that the private organisations had recently sent out an expert to report from Kenya. That expert is understood to have reported favourably, but Lord Winterton warned the conference that there could be no question of mass settlement.

THE MAGHERA AFFAIR.

INJURED POLICE GO HOME.

Sergeant A. Sturdy and Constables Black and Anderson, who were injured in the riot at Maghera, Co. Londonderry, on the eve of the Twelfth and had been detained in the Royal Victoria Hospital, were allowed to leave for their homes on Friday afternoon.

SALES AT ALLAM'S MART.

Yesterday Messrs. R. J. Allam, Ltd., held their weekly sale of fat sows and boars in the Oxford Mart, Oxford Street, Belfast.

With a full attendance of buyers present and quotations from cross-Channel markets firm, a fast trade was experienced. Top quality Yorks sold from 44s to 47s 9d per live cwt., second grade 42s and 43s. Only a few rough lots sold under these prices. The highest figure received for sows was £11 12s 6d, and boars £4.

The mid-monthly sale of horses, vehicles, harness, etc., was also conducted yesterday. The entries included 21 horses from Messrs. A. Cleland, which were being offered owing to the completion of a contract. Prices for these ranged from £6 to £18.

MURDER OF MOTHER.

SOLDIER TO BE DETAINED

DURING THE KING'S PLEASURE.

Arthur Edward Woodman (30), soldier in the Border Regiment, was found guilty but insane at Hampshire Assizes at Winchester yesterday of the murder of his mother, aged 60. He was ordered to be detained during the King's pleasure.

The trial was postponed on Thursday because three important woman witnesses could not be found. They were later discovered waiting in another court.

A fresh jury was sworn yesterday.

Mr. Scott Henderson, prosecuting, said that Woodman was alleged to have said that he was "going to murder" somebody, and when he went home on leave to Portsmouth stabbed his mother in the back with a knife.

Dr. Fisk, of Portsmouth, said that Woodman had made a rambling statement and his attitude pointed to delusions.

Another witness said that he considered Woodman was suffering from a form of delusional insanity.

The jury reached their verdict without leaving the box.

SCENE IN LISBURN-BOUND 'BUS.

TWO PASSENGERS FINED.

ONLOOKER ON WHAT OCCURRED.

A quarrel in a Lisburn-bound omnibus on Thursday, May 26, had a sequel at the Newtownbreda Petty Sessions, when two men were summoned for interfering with the comfort of other passengers while travelling in an omnibus on that date.

The defendants were Thomas M'Clurg, Tullyard, Lisburn, and James Kelso, Drumbo, Lisburn.

District-Inspector M'Kinley, who prosecuted, said the conduct of the defendants led to the breaking of a window in the bus, and that other passengers became frightened and left the bus hurriedly.

James Carmichael, a passenger in the bus, said he heard Kelso, who had drink taken, refuse to pay his fare. Subsequently he paid the fare, and then began to use offensive language. M'Clurg, who also had drink taken, went to the back of the bus to chastise Kelso, and they began to quarrel. A window was broken, but witness did not know which defendant was more to blame. Matters became so bad that passengers got frightened and left the bus. When forced to leave the bus the defendants quarrelled on the roadside.

District-Inspector M'Kinley said other witnesses summoned had failed to appear.

Kelso said he was not using offensive language and that M'Clurg struck him.

M'Clurg said he did not strike Kelso and was taking him to task because of his language before ladies. He alleged the conductor had not control of the bus.

Mr. J. C. Austin, R.M., said he held defendants equally to blame, and imposed a fine of 10s with 11s costs in each case.

THE ROYAL ULSTER REGATTA.

FEMININE VIEWPOINT.

FLOWER-DECORATED CLUBHOUSE.

Although the weather was bright and sunny there was a cold wind blowing across the lawn at the Royal Ulster Yacht Club on Friday afternoon. Regatta Day is always an important social function and a large number of members and their guests gathered for the event.

The flowers decorating the clubhouse invariably are beautifully arranged. They were quite up to standard, which is saying a good deal—the spirea in pink and white were particularly effective, and also some lovely white syringa. The room with its flowers and the table laid out with its array of handsome prizes and with a bright fire burning in the grate looked particularly gay and cheerful.

Owing to the cold the majority of the ladies were well wrapped up.

Lady Bangor, who was sailing with her husband, was in a navy yachting suit with peaked cap.

Mrs. Yeames and her daughter were also sailing.

Mrs. James Andrews was wearing a navy costume with flower-trimmed hat to match.

Miss Helen M'Connell's striped silk gown was worn with a brown hat and coat.

Miss Agnes Andrews was in a floral gown with wool lace coat of nigger, and brown flower trimmed hat.

Mrs. Petherick's suit of fine cloth was of pearl grey with navy relief, the hat banded in blue, and blue scarf.

Mrs. Donnan came in a silk suit of navy and white, with navy hat.

Mrs. J. W Blackwood's grey suit was worn with a black hat trimmed with cire.

Mrs. Cullis wore a two piece suit of black, the frock inset with lemon, which also appeared as revers and was the colour of the felt hat.

Mrs. Johns, Carrickfergus, had a floral gown with dark blue coat, and flower-trimmed hat.

Mrs. E. D. Rutherford's coat was black, worn over a floral gown in multicolour, and a high-brimmed hat was also black.

Mrs. Beggs, Southport, wore a navy coat and anemone trimmed hat with a floral gown.

Miss Forrester's costume was of navy with a blue straw hat. Her sister was in blue of a lighter shade, with flowers in her blue hat.

Also in dark blue was Mrs. Logan, and Mrs. Cowan's two-piece tweed suit was strawberry colour.

Mrs. Alan M'Kibben looked very smart in a wool suit of blue with relief of white and a beaver cape.

Mrs. Stevenson wore a gown of floral green with a ribbon trimmed coat of blue and a big blue hat, and her daughter was in strawberry.

Mrs. W. D. Scott's silk gown was of pale pink, with a large blue hat of coarse straw and beige coat.

On the lawn the band of the R.U.C., under Mr. Geo. Ferguson, D.I., gave an excellent programme of selections.

LICENSEE TELLS OF RAID.

HOW HE BROKE CAR WINDOWS.

An early morning raid on "The Walnut Tree" Inn at Runcton, near Chichester (Sussex) was described to the Worthing magistrates yesterday.

George Edward Ayling and Frederick Henry Ayling, of no fixed abode, and Edith Maud Carlyle (19), of Jarrow-on-Tyne, appeared on remand charged with breaking and entering a house on the Findon by-pass road and stealing property valued at £7 9s 6d, the property of Hilda Clark.

Further charges of burglariously breaking and entering the house of George Arthur Halliwell, known as "The Walnut Tree" Inn and stealing cigarettes, cigars, a safe to the value of £15, the sum of £67 4s 8d, three cheques valued at £19 3s 4d, and two postal orders valued 11s 2d, and stealing a bottle of milk and a basin of dripping from a house at High Salvington, near Worthing, were preferred against them to-day.

All three were committed for trial at West Sussex Quarter Sessions.

Mr. Halliwell, licensee of "The Walnut Tree" Inn, said that after being awakened by his wife about 4-30 on Monday morning he ran downstairs and saw a safe on the ground beside a car. As the car started to move off he smashed the two back windows with a truncheon.

THE BIGGEST ORDER EVER

AT NUFFIELD FACTORY.

1,000 HIGH SPEED FIGHTERS.

HIS LORDSHIP GIVEN FREE HAND.

The biggest-ever aircraft order for a single firm has been placed with Lord Nuffield by the Air Ministry.

It is for 1,000 high-speed Spitfire fighters and it is the Ministry's immediate initial order for the new Nuffield Aircraft Factory which is to be built at Birmingham.

Sir Kingsley Wood, the Air Minister, made these announcements yesterday when he cut the first sod on the site of the new factory, which is situated near the site of the Castle Bromwich Aerodrome.

It has been stated that Lord Nuffield has put £3,000,000 into the venture, which will find employment for between twelve and fifteen thousand men.

After the ceremony, Sir Kingsley said that the new factory would be the largest single unit of its kind in the country and would be an important and permanent accession to our air defences.

In Lord Nuffield, he said, the country had a great master of mass-production methods, and he was to have a free hand in the methods he adopted for the production of aircraft.

The order which they had placed with him would also give the widest possible scope for any new methods that it might be deemed advisable to adopt.

Sir Kingsley mentioned that Lord Nuffield had informed him that "he did not wish to be remunerated himself for the considerable services that he personally would be rendering."

Lord Nuffield, replying, said, "We are engaged in building one of the most formidable air forces in the world which, together with our Navy and Army, will be a sure guard for our country and one which will always be used not for the purposes of aggression but in the cause of world security and peace."

The Spitfire is the fastest military aeroplane in the R.A.F. Its speed approaches 350 miles an hour.

BANGOR CARNIVAL.

DELIGHTFUL BAND DISPLAY.

QUEEN OF BEAUTY ATTENDS.

Miss Frances M'Cullough, the Carrickfergus Queen of Beauty, received a resounding ovation as she drove with her retainers through the arena at a carnival in Abbey Park, Bangor, on Friday evening. The Queen and her attendants were received at the platform by the Mayor and Mayoress of Bangor (Alderman Dr. R. M. and Mrs. Bowman).

The carnival, which was organised by the Bangor Chamber of Trade, was attended by about 2,000 people, many of whom availed themselves of the opportunity to dance in the open-air by floodlight after the conclusion of the entertainment proper.

Popular songs and marches were contributed by the combined bands of the First Battalion the East Lancashire Regiment, under the conductorship of Mr. J. H. Dought, A.R.C.M. The bands also gave displays of marching and counter marching, while members of the Belfast Centre of the Women's League of Health and Beauty were well received when they gave a display of physical exercises. Irish dancing was demonstrated by the pupils of Mr. Paedar O'Rafferty, L.I.F.D.S., instructor to the Belfast Folk Dancing Society.

A five-a-side pushball match, between the Women's League of Health and Beauty and lady visitors to Bangor resulted in a win for the League by nine points to nil.

The entertainment concluded with the Beating of Retreat by the corps of drums of the First Battalion the East Lancashire Regiment, under the direction of Drum-Major A. W. Camp.

AT THE C.L.B. CAMP.

PARADE TO WAR MEMORIAL.

DETAILS OF SPORTS.

Weather plays an important part in camp life, and its improvement during the past few days has put the finishing touch to the enjoyment of the Belfast Battalion Church Lads' Brigade Camp at Cleveleys, Blackpool.

Bathing parades are now the order of the day, while the morning physical training classes, conducted by the Army instructor attached to the camp, are well attended, the lads being in a very fit condition.

The Battalion, headed by massed bands, paraded to the local War Memorial, where a wreath, contributed to by all ranks, was placed by Lieut.-Colonel Waring, Camp Commandant, in memory of the comrades who fell in the Great War.

A football match was played between a team selected from the Battalion and the Cleveleys Young Men's Club, resulting in a win for the latter by one goal to nil. The following represented the C.L.B.—S. Sturgeon; Parker, Taylor; Feeney, Williamson, Bell; Dowling, Bell, Gorman, Shannon, M'Kinley. The following cricket team defeated the Young Men's Club by four wickets:—Lappin, White, Taylor, Porter, Fryer, Robinson, Cathcart, M'Conell, Smyth, Topping, R. Taylor.

A concert was given in the Parish Hall, when a number of the lads competed for a cup presented by the Camp Chaplain. This was won by a member of the Burnley Company.

The official inspection of the camp was made on Thursday by Rev. J. F. Peerless, general secretary at Headquarters, London, who in company with the Bishop of Blackburn addressed the Battalion following the inspection, and expressed his appreciation of the high state of efficiency.

At the camp sports a number of Northern Ireland visitors were entertained by the officers. The following are the sports results:—100 yards (under 16)—1, H. Corken; 2, V. Parkinson. Three-legged race—1, S. Martin and D. M'Corr; 2, H. Corken and J. M'Neill. 100 yards (over 16)—1, E. Lamont; 2, H. Cathcart. Putting the weight (officers)—1, H. Aspden; 2, Rev. J. Elliott. 220 yards (under 16)—1, H. Corken; 2, V. Parkinson.

Wheelbarrow race—1, E. Martin and D. M'Cord; 2, J. Simpson and J. Dawson. 100 yards (Training Corps)—1, H. Chadwick; 2, J. Hardward. 200 yards (over 16)—1, A. Lamont; 2, H. Cathcart. Sack race—1 W. Haughton; 2, H. Corken. Officers' race—1, Lt.-Col. Waring; 2, Capt. Brooks. 440 yards—1, A. Lamont; 2, T. Wright. Band novelty race—1, V. Parkinson; 2, R. M'Cord.

Ladies' race—1, Miss Nutter; 2, Miss Erger. Half-mile—1, A. Lamont; 2, H. Cathcart. Throwing the cricket ball—1, R. Harrison; 2. H. Cathcart.

The prizes were presented by Mrs. Hewitt Thompson, an old friend of the Battalion.

Camp will be struck this evening, the Battalion returning to Belfast via Heysham.

ARMAGH BARRISTER AS R.M.

WELL-KNOWN IN HUNTING CIRCLES

An Armagh man, Mr. William M'Crum Miller, barrister-at-law, has been appointed a temporary Resident Magistrate.

Mr. Miller is the eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. Miller, Drumsill, near Armagh. He is well known in hunting circles and is a member of the committee responsible for the arrangements in connection with the Tynan and Armagh Hunt and Richhill Harriers' point-to-point meeting.

KING'S CUP WINNER

TRAM DRIVERS' BIRD BELIEVED FIRST.

NEWTOWNARDS SECOND

ANALYSIS OF THE RESULTS.

HOW THE DISTRICTS FARED.

The racing pigeons competing for the King George V. Cup in Ireland, Grand National race from Redon, France, were to be liberated on 11th inst, but the weather conditions were so adverse that Armer was forced to hold up liberation until Wednesday morning, the special weather forecasts being then favourable. These forecasts were sent to him each day after the probable conditions had been gathered by specialists, who telephoned direct to Armer at Redon Railway Station, and the system, if costly, was well nigh perfect.

The 600 pigeons were confined eight to a basket, and as these normally hold about 20 birds, the comfort of the inmates was most noticeable.

With a 6-30 a.m. liberation it was fully expected that some of the gallant band of pigeons would arrive home on the day of liberation, but the rainstorm which developed in the evening made it an utter impossibility of any birds getting through. How true was this is proven by the fact that the first pigeon clocked in the great test was at 6-26 a.m. on Thursday by the proud owners, Messrs. M'Bride & Brown, 18 Coburg Street, Belfast. This is a wonderful performance when it is taken into consideration that the partners sent only one bird.

Until the clock variation and the distances of the respective successful lofts have been fully dealt with it would be unsafe at this juncture to acclaim the actual winners, but undoubtedly Messrs. M'Bride and Brown are the probable winners of the race and the King's Cup, thereby creating a record as no other loft or fanciers residing within the city boundary had previously won the coveted trophy.

THE WINNING PIGEON.

The new prospective champions are both employed by the Belfast Corporation as tram drivers, and their great win proves the contention that success cannot be bought in pigeon racing and that the back yard small loft stands as good a chance as the more palatial; indeed, in the small loft the pigeons are under greater control and the coming into condition is easier noticed in the smaller space. The winning pigeon is a blue hen, bred in the year 1934, and has much experience, having been raced since then as follows:—1934—Wexford (as a youngster); 1935—Yeovil; 1936—Yeovil; 1937—Brixham; 1938—Arklow, Milford Haven, Bude and then Redon. The pigeon was sent to the race sitting on eggs seven days, and it had moulted four primary feathers, the new fourth feather being just burst, therefore quite a safe wing.

M'Bride and Brown have now created another record, as they won first and second in the Young Birds National of last year from Skibbereen. The partners are of the quiet unassuming type of hard-working Belfastmen and deserve the greatest credit for turning out such a champion pigeon in such beautiful condition and for bringing credit to the city and fame to themselves. This big win will do more to prove that every entrant has a chance and that numbers do not count.

Their bird is a form bird, and it can safely be stated that but for the rain on Wednesday evening the gallant bird, with others, would have homed on the day.

The official distance to Coburg Street is 507 miles 496 yards.

These fanciers deserve all the congratulations which have been and will be showered on them for a really great performance of outstanding merit, with but one entry justly earning the King's Cup. The pigeon homed in excellent condition, a tribute to the care Armer must have given the bird, as not alone do the champions speak so highly of the surprising condition of their bird but all the other lucky fanciers were most agreeably surprised at the good form of their favourites.

THE SECOND BIRD.

The second bird clocked belongs to Messrs. Boyce and Martin, of Newtownards. The pigeon, a red cheque male, was bred in 1936 and was recorded at 6-39 a.m. Messrs. Boyce and Martin have a National record second to none, and they have for years maintained their position in this series. The distance to their loft is 504 miles 826 yards. This bird is of the same family as their previous years National pigeons, and there are no flukes in their long-distance racing. The partners sent three pigeons.

Morrow and Son, of Ballynure, follow at 7-2 a.m., but as their official distance is 519 miles 1,342 yards, this may make a difference in the final placings. The pigeon, a 1936 bred grizzle coloured hen, is one of two birds sent by owners, and this again proves a good selection.

Todd Brothers, of Newtownards, sent two birds and clocked both, which takes some doing in a 500 miles National, the first at 7-11 a.m. and the second at 10-10 a.m., These birds were bred in the years 1935 and 1936 respectively. Newtownards at this time was going strong, and more was to follow.

Collins Bros., of Galwally Avenue, Belfast, announced an arrival at 7-22 a.m. Their bird being a blue cheq. white flighted hen bred in 1935. They sent four pigeons and their performance kept up the Belfast end so ably started by the winner.

John Blair, of Ballyclare, timed at 7-33 a.m. a blue cheq. cock, bred in 1936, flying 518 miles 1,746 yards. The pigeon was his sole entry—a great record!

BANGOR MAN'S BEST.

Charles Neill, of Bangor, at 7-41 a.m. maintained his record in the Nationals. This Bangor pigeon is a red cheq., bred in 1936. He sent 10 pigeons, and the distance to loft is 508 miles 1,669 yards.

Fireworks from Newtownards, Wm. Mayne, of Mountpleasant, sent a good team of 15 pigeons and breaks records by having seven home on the second day. Here are his times—8-50 a.m., 9-23 a.m., 12-3 p.m., 12-13 p.m., 12-23 p.m. and 1-40 p.m. and 4-2 p.m.

The first bird, a mealy hen, was bred in 1936; second, a blue cheq. pied cock, in 1934; third, a blue hen, in 1937; fourth, a blue cheq. cock, in 1937; fifth, a blue cheq. hen., in 1934; sixth, a blue cheq., in 1935; seventh, a black hen, in 1933.

Up to this the yearling pigeon which had been so successful in former events had failed and this Newtownards record included two yearlings. It is a great feat to clock seven pigeons when many others had not an arrival, and Mr. Mayne deserves much credit; his birds must have been in perfect condition.

R. Elliott, of Ballyclare, bird flying a distance of 519 miles 1,200 yards, was timed at 9-20 a.m. He sent two pigeons.

Newcastle came to the fore by the announcement that R. M'Cracken's sole entry, a red hen, bred in 1935, had arrived at 9-6 a.m.

Cullybackey, not to be denied with a distance of 532 miles 1,603 yards, found Harry M'Fall an ideal champion with a blue cheq. cock, bred in 1936, and timed at 9-43 a.m. He sent two birds.

Mawhinney and Green, of Groomsport, whose record is well known, sent three good pigeons and had two returns at 9-52 a.m. and 12-45 p.m. The first being a yearling and the second an experienced bird, bred in 1934.

Harry Fleming, of Antrim, one of the oldest fanciers connected with the sport, whose long distance record is well known, times a bird at 9-40 a.m., a red hen, bred 1936. He sent six to the race.

Wm. Smyth, of Lisburn, sent one bird and timed at 10-5 a.m. A splendid performance.

E. A. Robinson, who had top entry of 32 birds, and who holds the record of having won the King's Cup twice and of never having failed to record an arrival in all races from France, timed three pigeons at 10-16 a.m., 12-36 p.m., and 1-36 p.m.

Alex. Mairs, of Ballyclare, timed at 10-20, so Ballyclare has a good record.

Tom Henry, of Ballymena, at 10-30 and 11-23, keeps up the long-distance performance of the town.

James M'Kinty, of Cloughfern, at 10-53 a.m.; J. Mallon, Ballyclare, 11-4 a.m.; James Kirk, Bangor, 11-16 a.m.; J. W. and T. Harper, Ballymena, 11-27 a.m.; W. Pedlow and Son, Finaghy, 11-31 a.m.; J. Elliott, Dromara, 11-34 a.m.; S. Turkington, Moira, 11-33 a.m. and 11-34 a.m. (it is most unusual to have two birds homing together in a 500 mile race); W. M. Thompson, Belfast, 11-54 a.m.; W. J. Armer, Belfast, 12-26 p.m.; Edward Deane, Lisburn, 1-12 p.m. and 3-53 p.m.; Fred Best, Lurgan, 1-32 p.m.; T. Skelton, Clady, 1-41 p.m.; Tom Dempsey, Whitehouse, 1-57 p.m.; Beattie and Patterson, Bangor, 2-9 p.m.; Geo. Donnelly, Lurgan, 2-28 p.m.; Caughey and Corken, Comber, 2-38 p.m.; Thos. Nicholls, Bangor, 2-20 p.m.; G. Newman, Clough, 4-3 p.m.; Jack M'Cormick, Lurgan, 3-56 p.m.—is a former King's Cup winner; J. C. Love, Ballymena, 3-11 p.m.; R. M'Cracken, Newcastle, 5-46 p.m.; Hutchinson, Ballymoney, 7-14 p.m.; H. Plaitt, Coleraine, 12-28 p.m. This is splendid time for the distance. Keilty and Law, Ballymena, 3-45 p.m.; A. Thompson, Ballymena, 2-16 p.m. To-day is the third and closing day. S. M'Millan, Belfast, 8-35 a.m.

RACE A GREAT SUCCESS.

The race must be written down as a great success. True the returns could be better, but when one takes into consideration the distance, and the bad weather which had to be overcome, over 50 pigeons on the second day is good.

These long distance pigeons must not be confused with the short distance or common pigeon. They are specially bred and prepared for the job, and those missing at the moment have plenty of stamina to eventually work home.

The result of the race again fully demonstrates the true worth of the Ulster pigeon, which is second to none in the world, for in no other pigeon route have the birds to cross 250 miles of water, and it should be understood that although the measured distance as the great circle system shows over 500 miles the birds would fly at least another 100 miles owing to wind and other influences.

It takes years of study to organise and carry out a national pigeon race, and the promoters, the Irish Grand National F.C. and the Ulster Combine, must be congratulated on the success of the latest venture. The officials are:—Messrs. E. A. Robinson, John Jack, R. B. Andrews, N. Moreland, and the timing clocks were handled by T. Rainey, J. Mackey, W. J. Moorehead and R. B. Andrews.

The velocities when made up will show a wide difference in the placings as the distances have to be reduced a sixtieth and the actual flying time, after deduction of the hours of darkness, to seconds, and the one divided into the other gives the mean velocity in yards per minute.

Many prominent fanciers and lofts have so far failed, but any bird returning to-day is very valuable, and there is plenty of time to turn failure into success.

Although the times given above are official, the official result will not be known for some time, as distance measurements in all cases are not to hand, and we are asked to state that the details given are only preliminary and subject to correction when officially checked.

The race from Redon is the longest distance race into Ireland and is truly national in character, no approved fancier being barred. It should be stated that Messrs. M'Bride and Brown are members of the Ulster Combine.

ADDITIONAL ARRIVALS.

Gordon Baines, Banbridge, timed a mealy male pigeon, bred in 1936, at 8.35 a.m.; Wm. J. Green, Ballymoney, timed at 9.20 a.m. a red cheq yearling; Dr. J. B. M'Kinney, of Antrim, clocked a mealy hen, bred in 1936, at 3.4 p.m.; Charles Neill, of Bangor, clocked the last pigeon at 7.20 p.m., a 1937 bred blue cheq hen.

The race closed officially last night.

'PHONE MESSAGE TO PIT.

MOBILE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE NOW

Guests heard Sir Walter Womersley, the Assistant Postmaster-General, speaking by telephone to a collier working 500 yards below the surface in the Silkstone pit of the Barrow, Barnsley, main colliery, at the opening ceremony on Friday of Barnsley's new automatic telephone exchange.

Sir Walter said that a mobile automatic telephone exchange was now being developed for use as a small, temporary exchange in an emergency.

The undercarriage of the machine, one of the new "Bloch" 'planes, and both propellers were smashed, and one wing tip broken.

END OF NURSES' STRIKE.

AFTER STOPPAGE OF TWO DAYS.

The twenty nurses of the London Homœopathic Hospital, Great Ormonde Street, Bloomsbury, who have been on strike for two days over a grievance which is described as "internal," resumed their normal duties yesterday evening after consultation with the chairman and pending a decision by the Hospital Board of Management.

The action of the chairman in persuading the nurses to return came at the last minute, for yesterday marked the end of the 24 hours, at the end of which the skeleton staff at the hospital would have been unable to carry on, therefore necessitating the replacement of the nurses concerned or the engagement of additional staff.

DOCTORS DISCUSS BUNIONS

WHO SHOULD TREAT THEM.

Bunions and their treatment was a question raised at the British Medical Association Conference at Plymouth yesterday.

Dr. P. Bone, of Luton (Beds), moved an amendment for the omission of bunions from a resolution advocating a measure of recognition to chiropodists, in which he argued that bunions should not be treated by chiropodists until the cases had been vetted by a surgeon.

Professor A. H. Burgess, of Cheadle, said he had been favourably impressed by the dexterity of chiropodists.

"I feel quite convinced that the average chiropodist can apply pads and strappings to a bunion better than the average consultant or specialist, and not inferior to the average general practitioner," he said amid laughter.

The amendment to remove bunions from the sphere of chiropodists was lost.

SIR JOHN SIMON: A Biography by Bechhofer Roberts (Robert Hale, 12s 6d)

MR. ROBERTS once wrote a biography of Mr. Baldwin in which he wound up sarcastically by observing his retirement was a great loss to Worcester County Council. Sir John Simon is evidently a greater favourite of the author than the ex-Premier, for he has no hard things to say of him; in fact, he sums him up as a man of "courage, determination, and warmly generous instincts."

Lord Carson's friend

Probably he is, but in the public mind he is still regarded by many as a somewhat aloof and cold figure. Certainly he has been a remarkably successful man, and it remains to be seen whether 11 Downing Street will prove for him, as for others of the recent Chancellors the stepping-stone to No. 10.

To visualise such a happening one has to assume that the National Government will continue, because there is no likelihood of the Liberal Party, even it became a united force, being able to form a Government in the next decade, if ever.

*

A POLITICIAN FIRST.

THERE is no doubt that the brainiest of the Liberals support the Coalition, and in Sir John Simon they have a singularly able man. Mr. Roberts sketches his career sympathetically, doing full justice to his great legal attainments, but naturally dwelling more on his political career, for the Chancellor has always preferred to be a politician first and a lawyer afterwards.

He will probably remain of that mind until the end of the chapter, unlike his contemporaries, Gordon Hewart, who forsook Parliament for the Chief Justiceship; Lord Hailsham, who went to the Woolsack; or Rufus Isaacs, who also took to the Bench.

Ireland is scarcely mentioned in the book. There are some passages about the Home Rule struggle and very little about the changes which set up the Free State. But there are interesting references to his great friend, Lord Carson, who proposed his health at a dinner given in his honour when he took silk in 1908. He had devilled a lot for Carson in his early days and they were fast friends, although politically opposed to each other.

ATTITUDE TO ULSTER.

SIR John Simon was a strong Free Trader, yet he lived to serve in a tariff Government. He was anti-Ulster in pre-war days, but in the changed circumstances after the war he became a supporter of Ulster's viewpoint. He fought Conscription tooth and nail and then joined the Army to serve in France. He was a Radical, and he did more than anyone to smash the Labour Government after the Campbell affair, and to break the General Strike by his great speech on the legal position of the unions. He fought the Tories for years, and wound up by becoming Foreign Secretary to a Tory Prime Minister.

All this and more is admirably told by Mr. Roberts, who foresees the time when he will be Prime Minister. It may happen, but there are those who are not so sanguine, not because he lacks ability but because of the lay-out of the political parties as they are and are likely to be for some time.

Like Lord Carson, Simon has more than once sacrificed his prospects to his principles. The sincerity of a man of that type is always admired by the public. It gained Carson the undying affection of Ulster, and it has won for Simon the respect and goodwill of those who think seriously on the politics of our time.

His biographer has presented the man as he is in a most interesting volume which never becomes so wordy as to be tedious.

SELF-EXPRESSION

Alan Monkhouse writes our Seventh Six-Minute Story

I HAD not taken particular notice of him when I got into the carriage, but at his sudden exclamation I lowered my paper to look at him. He was an elderly, neat little man with the aspect of a respectable ratepayer, but, for the moment, he was overcome with alarm or chagrin. This was so apparent that I felt I must take some notice of it; he was the only other occupant of the carriage. I said: "What is the matter, sir?"

He said: "Most annoying, most annoying," and he glared at me as though I had been to blame.

"What is annoying?"

"I have just thrown my glasses out of the window," he said.

"Indeed!" said I. "Whatever did you do that for?"

"What a question to ask!" he said. "You don't suppose I did it on purpose?"

"Then why the devil did you do it?" I said. His tone annoyed me.

"I must have mixed my hands," he said.

"Mixed your hands! How d'you do that?"

Excess Of Hands

"DON'T you see?" he said. "I was smoking a cigarette and I meant to throw the end out of the window. I had the glasses in one hand and, of course, I thought it was the other hand. Now this hand—no, I mean the other hand——"

"Your trouble seems to be an excess of hands," I said unfeelingly.

"I suppose it's too late now to pull the communication-cord," he said.

I advised against it, and he said: "But it's extremely annoying. Do you realise that?"

"As a joke it will last you a lifetime," I said. "Do you realise that?"

"There is no joke whatever about it, sir," he said. "Your attitude is most unfeeling. Why didn't you stop me?"

"That seems to me an unreasonable question."

"Is it reasonable to expect me to be reasonable in the circumstances? Now, if you had been a man of rapid and decisive action——"

"Don't talk nonsense," I said.

We were slacking before a station. "I shall give them notice about it here," he said. "What are the chances of my recovering them?"

"Negligible," I said.

"But they were made by a leading optician. I shall insist——"

The Stationmaster

THE train was stopping, and he put his head out of the window, shouting: "Guard! Stationmaster! Quick! Do not dally."

A porter came up, but he wasn't very quick. He didn't seem to understand my companion's explanations. He said we had no business to throw things out on the line; a pal of his had been nearly killed by a ginger-beer bottle. My impulsive friend told him he was a stupid fool, and again shouted for the stationmaster, who presently hurried up.

He was unsympathetic, possibly biased by the porter's audible opinion that the gent. was off his nut. He turned to me, and I tried to explain that it was a simple case of mixing hands. "There are two of them," he said. "The train's late already."

He waved his hand, the guard whistled, and off we went. My friend's language was terrific, and he shook both his fists at the receding stationmaster.

But as we drew out of the station he caught sight of its name on the board, and his outcries took a sharper note. "What station is this?" he cried. "Why! This where I get out. This is the junction."

"D'you mean t-say——" I began, but he was snatching things off the rack, shouting meanwhile: "Stop it! Stop it!"

"Don't be an ass" I said. "You can't stop it." I thought he was going to open the door, and I caught him round the waist. Struggling, we fell to the floor. "All right, all right," he said. "Don't make a fool of yourself."

Luck Was Out

WE scrambled up and sat down opposite to one another. I watched him closely. He said: "My luck's out to-day. I didn't like the look of you when you got into the carriage.

"As to that," I said "my thumbs began to prick the moment I saw you."

"What on earth do you mean?" he said. "Do try and talk intelligibly."

"Very well," I said. "I will try to keep down to your level."

"We shall quarrel if you are not careful," said he.

"I shouldn't wonder," said I, "but it would be interesting to see what you consider quarrelling."

"It might give you a shock,'" he said.

"Well," said I, "I shall soon be rid of you. I presume you'll get out at the next station."

"Why should I?" said he. "I might prefer to stay and refute every point you make."

"You haven't refuted anything yet," I said.

"You've merely behaved like a Tomfool. If this is a sample of your behaviour, your life must be a turmoil. Your relations with everybody about you——"

He interrupted me. "As I might have expected," he said, "you are utterly and precisely wrong. I am a man of the most careful and regular habits, a punctilious husband, a model parent, an exemplary citizen."

"I know nothing about that," I said. "You seem to be a man of wildly erratic habits——"

"Jekyll And Hyde"

"STAY!" he cried. "I mention a simple point. Did you ever meet a man who changed his bootlaces before they broke?"

"Never," I said. "I don't believe there is such a man."

"I am that man," he said.

"Perhaps you have a dual personality like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?" I said.

"No," said he, "but I will tell you this: I will give you my confidence so far. There are times when I feel that I do not assert myself sufficiently. To do so at home would be—well, inconvenient. But to-day, for instance, I have been provoked to a form of self-expression that is vital to my being. It is a natural relief."

"I think I understand," I said. "I have heard of henpecked husbands before, and I accept your apology."

"There is no apology," he said. "Don't make any mistake about that. I am merely trying to cram a little sense into your thick skull."

The train was slowing down. "It is some satisfaction to know that we are not likely to meet again," he said.

I disgraced myself I admit it. As he got out I cried: "Henpecked! Yah!" I reverted to the worst period of my boyhood, and I am sorry to say I enjoyed it. I was hardly surprised to see him sprinting along the platform. He seemed to be shouting indiscriminate abuse.

And then I caught a word that startled me. I drew in my head and looked round hastily.

The fool had taken my suitcase instead of his own.

A PLAIN MAN'S SERMON

Know Your Soul

WHAT is meant by a man's soul?

The popular idea, existing in most people's minds, is that the soul is a kind of invisible spirit, housed in the body, which will take wings at the moment of death and soar through unmeasured distances of space to a place called "heaven"—or to some other place! But that is an obviously crude idea which will not satisfy any thinking man.

It is perhaps not very easy to define the meaning of "soul," but it may help us, for a start, to know that, in the New Testament, the Greek word which is used (psuche) is the same word as the word for "life." When our Lord said, "He that will save his life shall lose it," He employed this word; and it is plain that by "losing one's life," He did not mean dying, but surrendering one's life in self-sacrificing service. So we might begin by saying that a man's soul means his life as he lives it in this world.

This is much the same as saying that a man's soul means the man himself as he is; his personality; his character; his mind; his ideals; his principles. It is the essential man—not merely as he appears to others, but as he actually is in his inmost secret life.

It is this self which will pass on at death—a fact which ought to remind us, and warn us, that death will not change us. When a man dies, he passes on into the next life just as he is when death overtakes him. "Where the tree falleth, there shall it be."

And that is why a man's soul matters more to him than anything else. No matter what power, wealth, fame, position, or anything else he may gain in this world, if he has done so at the expense of the moral deterioration of his soul, he has made, not only a bad, but a fatal bargain.

A SACRED TRUST.

THIS is why the New Testament lays stress on the duty of keeping our soul and taking care of it. We come into the world made in the image of God, bearing His likeness. We have therefore something committed to our charge which is a sacred trust.

"Keep that which is committed to thy trust," writes Saint Paul to Timothy. But how careless we are about this extraordinarily precious possession; how very little attention do we pay to Christ's warning words!

An enormous amount of attention is being focussed at the present time on the importance of taking proper care of our bodies. The National Fitness Campaign aims at bringing home to all and sundry that they have a duty, not only to themselves, but to the nation, to make and to keep themselves as strong, healthy, and fit as they possibly can. And the necessity for this, no one would for a moment question.

But some of us believe that there is something called "the soul of Britain" which matters even more than the physical condition of the bodies of her citizens; and that a nation which was composed exclusively of athletic giants, but which had allowed its soul to deteriorate, would have but little on which to congratulate itself.

If we look abroad, we can see nations where this is actually happening; and if I were asked to choose between national physical fitness on the one hand, and the keeping strong, bright, and unsullied that which we call "the soul of Britain," on the other, I should have no difficulty whatever in knowing where my choice would lie.

What applies to a nation applies equally, or even more so, to the individual. Important as it is that a man should keep his body fit and take every possible care of it, it is yet more important that he should care for the health of his soul. For it is by this inward quality of a man's life that he exercises an influence, either for good or ill, upon those with whom he comes into contact, and, in his measure, makes the world a better or a worse place.

It is not really a man's position or attainments or wealth that carry the most weight, but it is what the man is himself, his inmost heart and character.

UNIVERSAL LAWS.

A BOOK which is now largely forgotten — Drummond's "Natural Law in the Spiritual World" — was written to show how the laws of the material world run up into the spiritual world and hold good there. And so we find that the rules which govern the health of the body are precisely those which govern the health of the soul.

In the first place, cleanliness. "Make within me a clean heart, O God." "The pure in heart shall see God." What dirt is to the body, uncleanness is to the soul. It does matter what our conversation is, what books we read, and whether we indulge in "dirty" dealings or not. "For, from within, out of the heart of men, evil thoughts proceed and defile the man."

And then fresh air. It is easy to think that Sunday worship, daily prayers, and a knowledge of the New Testament can be dispensed with; but it is here that we give our soul a chance to breathe a purer air. How stale, unprofitable, and sometimes tainted, is the atmosphere which we breathe during the greater part of our working day and common life! Small wonder if the vital forces of our soul become sickly and enfeebled in this lower, denser atmosphere. Can we, without paying the penalty for it, neglect entirely such chances as there are for drinking in draughts of fresh air for our souls?

And, lastly, exercise. The unused muscles grow flabby and tend to atrophy. It is by using them that they become strong and vigorous. Will-power is the muscle of the soul. If we allow our wills to lie inert and never exert them, they, too, will weaken and waste away.

"What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" asks Christ. It is a question which needs no answer, because the answer is obvious. There is nothing which can compensate a man for the loss of his soul.

"If he gain the whole world and forfeits his own soul, what profit will it be to a man?" That is another of Christ's unanswered questions.

Holiday Health

THERE is a tendency to overdo things during holidays, and people who lead a sedentary life at home may overtire themselves by unaccustomed exertion. Again, sea air stimulates the appetite, but there is often digestive trouble when holiday-makers indulge in a diet greatly in excess of that to which they are accustomed at home.

Everybody knows, of course, that over-exposure to the sun has disastrous results, but this is sometimes forgotten.

If and when the sun does come out, cases of sunstroke and severe sunburn are not uncommon amongst people who do not take ordinary precautions. Young children, especially, should be protected from the direct rays of the sun.

SURNAME SIDELIGHTS
PORTER

THE surname Porter is familiar in almost every part of Great Britain. It was derived from the occupation, but this requires explanation. The word has undergone a change We now take it to mean a railway porter or one who carries parcels or runs errands.

The ancient Porter was the guardian of the castle or family seat. For instance, according to Carew, the old Cornish family of Porter got the name from the office of porter of Trematon Castle, which was held under the Dukes of Cornwall and was hereditary. This instinctively brings to mind the porter who plays such a famous part in the "knocking at the gate" scene in "Macbeth."

It would seem that there were also porters who were virtually gaolers. Thus it has been observed by an eminent legal writer that the porter's lodge is frequently mentioned in the old dramatic poets as a place of legal punishment, but that that was what it really was has never yet been explained. The many functions of the porter would account for the popularity of the surname, which Lower also included among the Scottish family names he had traced.

* * * *

It was a well-known name in London four centuries ago, when we find that of William Porter a sergeant-at-arms. A Durham family made history Jane Porter one of our early women novelists, was born there, and among her romances "The Scottish Chiefs" is still read. Her sister Anna, and a brother Dr. William Ogilvie Porter, were novelists, while another brother, Sir Robert Ker Porter, went with Sir John Moore on his expedition and was famous as a painter of battle pictures.

Eddymion Porter fought for Charles I. in the Rebellion and was his Groom of the Bedchamber. Sir George Hornidge Porter was a distinguished Irish doctor who was surgeon-in-ordinary to Queen Victoria and became the first baronet. John Porter, a famous racehorse trainer, was a native of Staffordshire.

* * * *

Sir John Scott Horsbrugh-Porter succeeded to the baronetcy conferred on his father, who was successively Attorney-General and Master of the Rolls in Ireland. He was senior clerk to the House of Commons.

Sir William Henry Porter, who has his seat in Hampshire, was the son of the noted Irish surgeon, and became the second baronet forty-three years ago. He was called to the Irish Bar fifty years ago, and was a captain in the 3rd Batt. Royal Irish Regiment. For many years he served on the London County Council.

Colonel Sir Harry E. Bruce-Porter is the well-known surgeon, who has been president of the Hunterian Society. Sir William Haldane Porter was for many years at the British Home Office

EDERNEY ROBBERY

FERMANAGH TRIAL

THE LOCKED UP JURY

UNDER GUARD IN HOTEL

EVIDENCE FOR DEFENCE

ACCUSED AND HIS MOTHER

THE HEARING OF EVIDENCE IN THE EDERNEY BANK ROBBERY CASE AT FERMANAGH ASSIZES WAS CONTINUED TO-DAY, WHEN A NUMBER OF WITNESSES SUPPORTED THE ALIBI SET UP BY JAMES M'GUIGAN, FORMER MEDICAL STUDENT IN DUBLIN, OF CORNAMUCKLA, WHO HAD PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO HAVING BEEN CONCERNED IN THE RAID ON THE BANK ON JUNE 14 WHEN FOUR MEN CARRIED OFF £721 17s 2d AT THE POINT OF THE REVOLVER.

THE OTHER THREE ACCUSED, OWEN CAMPBELL, LABOURER, CORNAMUCKLA; PATRICK JOSEPH GOODFELLOW, MECHANIC, DRUMSKINNEY, AND JAMES QUINN, LABOURER, AGHADARRA, HAD PLEADED GUILTY.

The court was again crowded. The jury had been locked up all night in a local hotel under police guard, and in reply to an inquiry from Mr. Justice Megaw, the presiding judge, when the court sat this morning, they assured his Lordship that they had had a comfortable night.

Mr. B. J. Fox and Dr. B. Maginess (instructed by Mr. George Warren) represented the Crown, and Mr. C. L. Sheil (instructed by Mr. J. M'Nulty) appeared for M'Guigan.

Sergeant John Small said that on June 14 he traced a motor-car from about a quarter of a mile from Ederney to Dromore, where, at the Roman Catholic Church, the road being rough and more stony, he lost trace of it. He afterwards went to Goodfellow's house and saw similar tracks leading to it. He also found a motor-car at Goodfellow's and the tyres on it corresponded with the marks he had followed on the road. The cap of the radiator was hot, indicating that the car had been recently in use.

Albert Deazley, a farmer, said he saw Goodfellow leaving in his car and going in the direction of Eskra cross. Goodfellow was alone in the car. Later, at about 2 p.m., he saw him returning. He was still alone in the car.

Constable George Oliver said that when he went to Goodfellow's house he was not at home and the car was away. He then went to M'Guigan's house, where he found his mother and two sisters were at dinner. The accused was absent. Witness waited for him to come in. He came in at 6-40, riding a bicycle from the Dromore direction. Witness stopped him and told him he was taking him to the barracks. At that he became pale and very nervous. He shook and was not able to light a cigarette owing to his hands trembling. A constable had to light it for him. The accused wanted to know the charge and was told he would hear it at the barracks. Accused then said this was "a shame and a frame-up," and added that it was "another Donegal case."

The Judge asked what that meant, and witness was going on to say the accused had been implicated when his Lordship stopped him.

DEMANDED TO SEE HIS MOTHER.

Accused, witness went on, demanded to see his mother, so witness searched him first and found, amongst other things, a bottle. When accused was leaving the house he said to his mother, holding out a bottle, "Here." It contained syrup of figs. Also in accused's possession was a bottle containing a yellow fluid and a tube of Snow Fire jelly.

His Lordship—Is that a kind of beauty preparation

Witness said it was a vaseline. He also found a vanity case in which was a small mirror. There was no powder in the case. He then found two envelopes, which he handed to Head-Constable Conlin with the other articles. A dirty cloth like a handkerchief was also found in accused's possession. It was moist and sticky. On the cloth were what witness took to be stains like those that might be made by the contents of the bottles.

Answering Mr. Sheil, witness said he knew that syrup of figs was a well-known laxative. The vanity case found was of a cheap American type. Another bottle found contained something that smelt like a nasty medicine.

Mr. Sheil—You know that this fellow was a medical student?

Witness—Yes.

And that he used to make up medicines for people?—I do not know.

Witness was cross-examined at length about the smell of the cloth as compared with the smell of a similar article produced for the defence. He admitted that both smelt of snuff, but of a different class of snuff. There was a snuff box found on the accused.

Mr. Sheil asked what the prisoner meant when he said, "It is a frame-up. It is another Donegal case."

Witness said the prisoner was charged in Donegal and was acquitted.

HEAD CONSTABLE EXPERIMENTS.

Head-Constable Conlin proved finding the motor-car at Goodfellow's house on June 14. He saw the prisoner at Dromore Barracks after six o'clock when some articles found on prisoner were handed over. Witness experimented with the articles and was able to get a similar colouring using the Snowfire Jelly as a base as would be presented by an old bruise on the face. The syrup of figs would darken the skin. When witness saw M'Guigan he was very clean—just newly shaved and powdered. Constable Oliver handed him two envelopes, one of which contained a quantity of hair which could be used for making a beard or a moustache.

On June 23 he saw the prisoner handcuffed to Campbell in the dayroom of [illegible] Barracks. They were looking down at something and were whispering together. M'Guigan had a piece of brown paper in his hand, and was showing it to Campbell. The word "appendicitis" was written across it three times, and when witness asked what that was for M'Guigan answered, "I just wrote that [illegible]."

"[illegible] did you take this word to [illegible]?" asked Mr. Fox.

The Judge would not allow the question.

Mr. Fox—When you went to Goodfellow's and saw the car did you discover anything else?—Yes, a spare set of number plates were found in an old [illegible] on the car. The number plates were pulled out slightly so that other plates could be slipped in, and there were scratches on them.

[illegible] closed the Crown case, and the prisoner was immediately called to the box.

M'GUIGAN WITNESS.

HIS MEDICAL ACTIVITIES.

SOUVENIR COMPACT CASE.

He said he lived in Cornamuckla, over three miles from Goodfellow's house. He had nothing to do with the raid on the bank, and knew nothing about it until he heard the next day. He was for a term a medical student.

"What do you do at present?" asked Mr. Sheil.

Prisoner—I work at home about the garden and house.

What else do you do?—I assist people in the medical line. The bottles I had in my possession were for making a bottle of medicine. It was potassium of syrup of figs.

Prisoner went on to say that the handkerchief found in his possession was sticky and moist from snuff which he took habitually. Nothing else was on it except snuff. He got the compact case as a souvenir from a lady, and had carried it about with him since 1934 when she went away to America. Her name was Miss Alice Slavin, and she was now dead.

DETAILS HIS MOVEMENTS.

Continuing, witness said he got up at nine a.m., having had breakfast in bed. He had dinner at home and finished at about 12.30. Following that he went to Glenn's house to get the address of Tony Glenn, who was in England and to whom he was writing a letter. He left the letter in the house and had not seen it since.

A letter was handed to him by Mr. Sheil, and the prisoner identified it as the one he left in the house on the 14th. Other letters that prisoner had written since had been under the supervision of the prison authorities. At 12-45 on June 14 he went to Glenn's, and from there to "Master M'Gra's" place at 1-25, where he stayed for about a quarter of an hour. He then left and went into Goodwin's shop and purchased snuff which he used frequently. He returned to Glenn's to get information he wanted, and four books from Mrs. Glenn. Then he went to see a Miss Donaghy for ten minutes, and from there to M'Gaughey's house, where he remained until after six, as he had been asked to make a bottle of tonic for Miss M'Gaughey.

Prisoner went on to describe the compounds of the medicine bottle, and said he did not shave that day nor did he apply any powder to his face. He only shaved once a week. On the way home he met Constable Oliver, whose allegation that he turned tail he denied.

Continuing, prisoner said "I had neither hand, act, nor part in the raid."

THE JUDGE'S QUESTIONS.

His Lordship asked him did he know when going out that day that he had to prescribe for Miss M'Gaughey.

Prisoner—I had the bottles.

His Lordship intervened and asked him to answer the question just put.

Prisoner then replied that he had known when leaving his home that he had to prescribe for the lady.

Asked about the paper with the word "appendicitis" on it, witness said he was in doubt about the spelling of the word and was trying to fix it on his mind.

To his Lordship—He was showing the spelling to the prisoner Campbell. The purpose for which he had the paper was to cover the bag in which to carry his snuff, as he had no snuffbox.

Answering Mr. Sheil, the witness said that in the barracks Campbell, to whom he was handcuffed, asked him for a snuff. He put his free hand in his pocket and brought out the snuff bag, and was trying to open it with his hand when the head-constable came along.

His Lordship—Was Campbell also a snuff taker?—I do not know.

But you say he asked for a pinch of snuff?—He asked for a pinch of snuff, saying he was getting sleepy.

Witness said that just as he put his free hand into his pocket to get the snuff the head-constable came along and said, "What's going on here?" and seized the paper.

MEDICAL STUDENT IN 1935.

Cross-examined by Mr. Fox—How long is it since you ceased to be a medical student?—1935

What age are you?—Thirty-four.

Where were you studying?—In the College of Surgeons, Dublin.

Witness said that since he came home he had done seasonal work and worked about the house and garden.

His Lordship—Do you always breakfast in bed?—No, unless I be up at 8 or 8-30 I get my breakfast in bed.

The prisoner denied that he was well acquainted with Goodfellow or any of the other prisoners. He had never been in Goodfellw's motor-car. He knew really nothing about Goodfellow. He denied that he wrote the letter to Glenn in preparation for an alibi. There was no special reason why he should write to Glenn on June 14. He did not know Glenn's address.

Mr. Fox—Was the identification a fair one?—I do not think it was.

Was your solicitor present?—Yes.

Did he challenge it?—I could not say; he was not near me.

So far as he could see he did not challenge it?—No.

Accused denied that he had tried as much as possible to create an impression for an alibi all that day.

His Lordship—Have the people in that district nothing to do at all? (Laughter.)

The Accused—Well, they have.

MORE ABOUT THE BOTTLE.

Continuing, he said that he had been asked two or three times to prescribe for Miss M'Gaughey.

Asked by his Lordship if he had intended making up the bottle from a prescription from his head or from a medical book, he replied partly from lectures he had been given at the College of Surgeons. He was a medical student for four years. He contradicted the suggestion that the liquid in the bottles and the jelly would be useful for darkening the face. He denied that he had used it for darkening the faces of the other men and himself.

Mr. Fox—What would you use this filthy rag for?

Prisoner—It is not a filthy rag. It is my handkerchief. (Laughter.)

Do you seriously suggest that a medical student and a gentleman who has his breakfast in bed used a handkerchief such as that? I suggest that it is only a sticky, oily rag for removing the black of the faces of you and your friends.

Prisoner went on to say that the lady from whom he had got the affectionate tokens had died. Out of civility to the police constable who gave him a cigarette he accepted it. Sergeant Ryan also gave him a cigarette in the barracks. He seriously suggested that the word "appendicitis" which he wrote on a paper in the barracks was to impress the correct spelling of the word on his mind, though he had been a medical student for four years. He denied the suggestion of the constable that the writing was a code for Campbell; Campbell could not read.

His Lordship—I thought you said you hardly knew Campbell.

Accused—Well, he told me he could not read.

Prisoner, proceeding, said that he used the words "What sort of a frame-up is this?" but he did not make any reference to Donegal. At that time he did not know about the robbery.

To Mr. Sheil, accused said that, handcuffed to him leaving Derry prison, Campbell said he could not read. Owing to the carbon monoxide fumes from the police car everyone felt sleepy. Campbell asked him for snuff and he gave it to him.

MOTHER EXAMINED.

SPEAKS OF SON'S HABITS.

WHEREABOUTS ON DAY OF RAID.

Mrs. Susan M'Guigan, mother of the accused, said on the night before the raid her son was at home and on the following day he had breakfast in bed. She did not remark him leaving the house before dinner time. Before that he had been writing a letter and she later saw it in the writing pad. She identified the letter produced as the one her son had been writing, and said it was the same that he had left behind in the pad. At 12-45 p.m. her son left without telling her where he was going.

Cross-examined Mr. Fox witness said she could not exactly say at what time the accused returned to be intercepted by the police. He left with the police at 6-50. Her son had breakfast in bed that morning a little before nine, after which he got up. He had breakfast in bed on the previous day also.

His Lordship—Is he a delicate boy?—Yes, he was.

Is he delicate now?—He is not so bad now.

Do you mean to tell me you strive to give him his breakfast in bed?—Yes.

What sort of training do you give him?—He gets his breakfast in bed when he is not up for it.

It's no wonder he doesn't get up.

Mr. Fox—You say it is only on rare occasions he gets up for his breakfast.

Witness—He only got it when he was not up.

His Lordship—He is 34 years of age, a medical student of four years' standing, attending at a University, and when he comes home you treat him to breakfast in bed.

Witness—He was terrible bad with rheumatic pains and attending the doctor.

His Lordship—I thought he doctored himself.

Witness—But he went to another doctor.

Further questioned by his Lordship, witness could not say how long her son had been writing.

Mr. Fox—When did you last see Tony Glenn?

Witness said she did not know Tony Glenn, as she was not often out. Glenn had never been in her house.

WHEN THE POLICE CAME.

Further cross-examined, witness said she heard about the robbery late that evening. When the police came to her house she knew there was something up. She denied that when Constable Oliver asked her at 1-22 was her son about that she replied: "I don't know." She disagreed with the constable's suggestion that the accused was not home that day at all for dinner.

His Lordship—Your son kept medicines in the house?—Yes.

Where does he keep them?—In his bedroom.

Does he prescribe for the country generally?—No, he does not.

What sort of medicine does he keep?—I'm not interested in that. I do not know anything about medicine.

You knew he was training as a doctor?—Yes.

Was that the reason because for four years he was training but failed to get a degree that you pampered him in this way?—Not at all. His health broke down and that was what left him at home.

His Lordship—He does not look a delicate boy.

Mr. Sheil recollected that the mother had stated he once had rheumatics.

His Lordship—When had he rheumatic fever?

Witness—It was in the house and went round them all. He got it in January, 1937.

SISTER AND CISSIE GLENN.

Maureen M'Guigan, sister of the accused, gave similar evidence and said she did not see her brother go out before dinner-time.

Answering Mr. Maginess, witness said the day was a good one. It would take accused about ten minutes to write the letter.

His Lordship—What agricultural work was on at your place that day?—I think they were working at the spuds.

Cissie Glenn said that the accused called at her house on that day and she gave him four books and the address of her brother Tony, who was in England. That was about 2-30 p.m.

Michael M'Grath, an ex-schoolmaster, aged 77, who had been referred to throughout the case as "Master M'Gra," on taking the oath said to the Judge that he had to explain his position as a coacher of students.

His Lordship—I do not want anything except what is relevant evidence.

On the day of the arrest witness said he went to Dromore in the morning for newspapers and he returned home at 1-30. He heard a commotion in the street and saw accused corward to the house "dodging at his ease." Coming in accused gave witness some snuff and he did not notice anything unusual in his demeanour. He had coached accused before he went to Dublin.

Cross-examined, witness said he first heard of the raid on the wireless at 6-45 when the announcer mis-pronounced the village of Ederney. During the time witness was coaching accused his worst subject was spelling.

He did not think that accused would be able, though he was studying medicine, to spell the word "appendicitis." He could not understand why the accused should write the word "appendicitis" three times on a piece of paper in jail and spell it correctly each time if he was a bad speller.

Mrs. Catharine Megahey, Curley, near Dromore, said on Tuesday, June 14, the day the prisoner was arrested, she was in her house.

Mr. Maginess—About what time?—I could not say. I never looked at the clock.

Was it before or after dinner-time?—It was after tea-time.

MEANING OF "SECOND-TEA."

What time is tea-time?—Four o'clock or 4-30.

Mr. Sheil—Do you know what his mother means when she says that her son does not take "second-tea?"

His Lordship—Are you asking the witness as an expert?

Witness said that "second-tea" in the country meant the lunch which one got before dinner. On that date when accused came in he mixed her a bottle of medicine. He had made one for her six weeks before that. She could not say what was in the bottle, but there was not much of it. It was a brown-coloured medicine and he took the ingredients from the bottles produced by the Crown as having been found in his possession. When prisoner made the bottle for her he put the bottles back in his pocket. She made accused a cup of tea before he left.

Did you notice any difference in his appearance?—I did not look particularly at him, I did not notice anything.

Mr. Fox—He was cleanly shaved?—I never looked at him; he looked as he always looked.

Did you ask him to come out to make you the bottle?—I did.

So that he came out specially?—Oh, no. Just when he was calling.

Witness said that prisoner did not charge her anything for the bottle.

This closed the evidence, and rebutting evidence was called by the Crown.

POLICE WITNESSES RECALLED.

Constable Oliver, recalled, said on Tuesday when he came to M'Guigan's house he arrived about 1-30. When he entered the kitchen prisoner's mother, his brother, and two sisters were there. They were sitting at a table as if just finishing dinner. There were potatoes on the table. Witness said he asked Mrs. M'Guigan questions in the hearing of her sister. Witness asked was James in, and she replied "No." He asked how long he had gone away, and she said she did not know. Then he asked had he got his dinner, and she said "Yes." He asked what time the dinner was at, and she said she did not know. Witness went on to detail an interview with "Master M'Gra," and said that he did not ask M'Grath any questions. He was on tillage duty at the time when M'Grath told him about being in Dromore on the date of the bank raid, and that when he came back he found M'Guigan in the house.

Head-Constable Conlon was recalled with regard to the statement made to the police by Miss Glenn, and was closely cross-examined by Mr. Sheil as to the circumstances in which it was taken.

SMITHS LEAD IN THE OLD-AGE LISTS.

JOHNSONS COME NEXT.

WHAT U.S. CARDS SHOW.

Social security account numbers have been assigned to 470,190 Smiths, giving persons of that name the lead among the 39,000,000 holders of old-age insurance cards (says a Washington message).

Second in number of holders are the 348,530 Johnsons. Then come the 253,750 Browns, 249,312 Williamses, and 238,980 Millers.

The shortest family name in the records is E. Whether E is a man or a woman the Board would not say, since it holds its files confidential.

The longest name is Xenogianokopoulos.

FRIENDSHIP LANDS HIM IN JAIL.

SHOCK FOLLOWS GOOD TURN

ANNOYED THE MAGISTRATE.

When 43-year-old Salvatore Sarracino, of Brooklyn, appeared in Coney Island Police Court for a friend who had received a summons for undressing on the beach, he thought it would be merely a matter of doing a slight favour and paying a small fine.

It will take him five days to complete the favour.

Magistrate Finnegan sentenced him to jail for that period when he stepped up to answer to the name of John Galluccio, who had received the summons.

Although Sarracino explained that he was acting for Galluccio, who did not want to forfeit a day's pay, the magistrate was adamant.

"When I called for John Galluccio you stepped up," he said. "I sentence you to five days in jail and you are going to go."

DRIVING LESSONS AT SCHOOL.

TEACHING ROAD CAUTION.

As part of a regular high school course that extends the classroom into the street, students in New York City will be taught how to drive a motor-car and how to handle it safely in traffic jams and under other adverse conditions.

To be given at Jamaica Vocational High School, the course will be open to boys and girls who are approaching eighteenth birthday, Daniel B. Joseph, principal, announces.

Cars will be supplied by the four automechanic instructors, while the school will pay for the petrol, oil, and other necessary expenses from its general organisation fund. It is expected that about fifty students will get the practical road experience.

The decision to take this step followed an experiment conducted at the school to test the feasibility of car instruction. Five boys received special driving lessons on unfrequented roads. An extra brake and switch, installed on the car, allowed the instructor to keep close check on the novice.

The work will come under a regular course in "economic citizenship." The theories pertaining to safe driving, traffic legislation and car mechanics will be given in the classroom, while the actual road work will take place after school hours.

Consent of the parents will be necessary before the students may drive. Mr. Joseph said every precaution would be taken to prevent accidents.

At first the boys and girls will use the deserted roads where there is little traffic. The instructors are planning to improvise ways of representing other cars. For example, sticks are to be put on the road and the students instructed to drive around them.

To-day, when so many families own cars, it is essential that students learn how to drive safely and how to handle a machine, Mr. Joseph said. As long as they are going to drive, "we want them to drive cautiously," Mr. Joseph observed. Proper supervision can instil safety habits, he said.

BANDITS BEHEAD FIVE PEOPLE.

MEXICO CITY, Friday.—The parents and their three children were beheaded with hatchets by bandits who were incensed at failing to find money, food, or ammunition at their victims' farmhouse at Putla, Oaxaca State.

The remaining members of the family, two young girls, discovered the gory tragedy when they returned from a fete at a nearby town.—Exchange.

JERUSALEM BOMB OUTRAGE.

10 DEAD: 29 WOUNDED.

EXPLOSION IN MARKET.

THE CITY'S TENSION REVIVED.

Curfew was reimposed in Jerusalem last night and British troops are closely guarding various points of the city after a bomb outrage near the Mosque of Omar yesterday.

The number of casualties was officially given last night as 10 killed and 29 wounded. Most of the victims were Arabs, including some children.

The bomb exploded in an Arab vegetable market which was thronged by villagers who had come into the city for the day. The crowd had just been augmented by hundreds of worshippers pouring out of the mosque after midday prayers.

Like the fatal explosion at the Jaffa Gate, Friday's outrage is shrouded in mystery, though rumours connect it with the murder on Tuesday of Sheikh-el-Khatib, a preacher in the Omar Mosque, and the discovery on Thursday of a considerable quantity of arms, ammunition, and explosives within the mosque area.

STREETS BARRICADED.

Shortly before the bomb exploded troops and police were searching for other possible arms. The exits of the Old City were barricaded and closely cordoned. The searches provoked some excitement, and it is reported that the bomb was hurled at the police.

It is officially reported that no arrests have been made, although two Jewish women have been taken into protective custody.

The news of the explosion and the sight of ambulances taking the mutilated victims to hospital revived the tension in the city, which had gradually been subsiding in the last few days.

Meanwhile trouble continues in other parts of the country. The Arab Press reports that a band which raided an Arab agricultural school in Tulkarem on Wednesday night and terrorised shepherds into driving sheep and cows away also kidnapped four Arab supernumeraries.

SABOTAGE ARRESTS.

About 100 Arabs, some of them railway workers and watchmen, have been arrested in the German Christian colony of Wilhelmina after the derailment of a goods train on Thursday. They are accused of sabotage.

A police bulletin reports that an Arab postal employe was shot at Haifa and a Jew was also wounded when shots were fired and a bomb thrown at a Jewish bus. Several Jewish shops were set on fire and looted.

On Thursday night an attack was made on a Jewish colony at Jiara, on the Megiddo-Haifa road. Police suspected that something was planned when they found that telephones had been cut and they were thereafter on the look-out.

About 9-30 p.m. 50 armed men attacked Jiara from the south, and hundreds of shots were exchanged. The raiders were finally driven off, leaving streams of blood.

There was considerable tension in Safed, North Palestine, after a bomb explosion and fights between Arabs and Jews, but the 2nd Royal Ulster Rifles have the situation well in hand.

BORDER REGIMENT GALLANTRY.

MILITARY CROSS AWARDS.

M.M. AND EMPIRE DECORATIONS.

The "London Gazette" contains the announcement that the King has been pleased to approve the undermentioned awards for gallant and distinguished services in Palestine:—

Awarded the Military Cross:

Captain Robert Charles Cottrell-Hill, 1st Battalion The Border Regiment;

Lieut. William Rollo George De Warrenne Warren, 1st Battalion The Border Regiment;

Awarded the Military Medal:

No. 3591904 Sergeant William John Harrison, 1st Battalion The Border Regiment.

No. 3590213 Sergeant George Wright, 1st Battalion The Border Regiment.

Awarded the Medal of the Military Division of the Order of the British Empire for meritorious service:

No. 2325222 Signalman G. H. Graham, Royal Corps of Signals.

No. 2324474 Signalman R. B. Dodman, Royal Corps of Signals.

No. 2816475 Private L. Ogilvie, 1st Battalion The Border Regiment.

The awards are all for gallantry and initiative shown in an engagement with an armed band near Al Yamun on March 4.

Captain Cottrell-Hill's company was the first to come under fire at close range. By his coolness and example he very quickly got his company going forward to the attack and dislodged the enemy from his first position. Subsequently during the engagement serious casualties were inflicted upon the enemy as a result of Captain Cottrell-Hill's excellent control and leadership.

The successful issue of the day's fighting was very largely due to this officer's bravery, coolness, and quick appreciation of the requirements of the situation. This is the second occasion on which Captain Cottrell-Hill has done excellent work in action against armed bands, as he played a conspicuous part in the operations on Christmas Day, 1937, near Tiberias.

Lieutenant Warren commanded his platoon in a specially praiseworthy and gallant manner. Regardless of his own safety he led his platoon forward under heavy fire on more than one occasion. As a result of his leadership the advance progressed rapidly, and one isolated building which was being used as a small fortress by six of the enemy was quickly captured by his platoon.

Sergeant Harrison received the Military Medal for the great tact and initiative he displayed. Though often under heavy fire he was constantly moving about encouraging and advising his men. Throughout the action he showed fine leadership and set an excellent example by his coolness and bravery.

Sergeant George Wright, who was platoon sergeant, grasped the situation when his officer was wounded and on his own iniative at once took control of all sub units nearby. He organised a completely successful attack under heavy fire on further positions.

Signalman George Henry Graham, together with Signalman Dodman and Private Ogilvie, carried and operated the No. 1 wireless set throughout the operations though often under heavy fire from several directions. Communications were maintained the whole time with battalion headquarters. This was entirely due to the bravery and coolness of these three men.

USED CAR HORNS FOR PRISON "CHAT."

SIGNALS OUTSIDE CELL.

HOW HE GREETED FATHER.

Using two kinds of motor car horns alternately below the walls of Sante Prison, Paris, a young man accompanied by his mother was arrested for communicating with his father, who is a prisoner behind those walls (says a Paris message).

Using Morse Code, the youth spelled out "Good morning" to his father, whose cell window faced the street, and then proceeded to send by the same method some information of a private character.

Unfortunately, a prison guard who had done military service in the telegraph corps recognised the din as not just the ordinary horn-blowing of Paris motorists and called a policeman.

MORE FALLS THAN RISES

COURTAULDS DIVIDEND SHOCK

WALL STREET UNCERTAINTY

LONDON, Friday Night.—In the past week the markets of the Stock Exchange have moved irregularly—swayed day to day by the condition of Wall Street which, following a period of buoyant recovery, has now developed a rather uncertain trend. The net result is that falls outnumber rises.

A great shock was suffered by the industrial market on the announcement of the reduction in the interim dividend of Courtaulds from 3½ per cent. to 1½ per cent., especially as this news was accompanied by the intimation that even this meagre interim distribution was not fully earned. In consequence the shares slumped heavily, and they show a fall on the week of no less than 7s 6d per share. This means that the market value of Courtaulds' Ordinary shares is now less by more than £7,000,000 than it was a week ago.

RAILWAY DIVIDEND FEARS

The "House" also suffered something of a shock to its system when the Home Railway traffic returns were issued and it was seen that the decline in the gross revenue of the group lines aggregated as much as £187,000.

Severe cuts in the forthcoming interim distributions on the Home Railway "junior" fixed charges have been visualised and further heavy falls have in consequence occurred in them as well as in the equity stocks.

FUNDS LITTLE CHANGED.

British Government stocks show little change on balance, but there has been a sharp decline in the prices of the leading German and Austrian loans as a result of the high-handed attitude of the Reich in crediting foreign holders of "Schilling" balances with less marks than they are properly entitled to and also putting an embargo upon the withdrawal of the attenuated balance.

More declines than rises have been recorded in the Industrial share market owing largely to reaction to the Courtauld's dividend cut.

The fall in Bristol Aeroplanes is due to some disappointment with the total distribution of 25 per cent. (as against 22½ per cent.) declared in respect of the past year.

The rise in Crompton Parkinson and Callender's Cables is due to reports to the effect that a merging of the interests of these companies is in prospect.

MINING MARKET IRREGULAR.

The mining share market has presented an irregular tendency during the past week. In the early part of the week support was forthcoming from all centres and prices moved ahead. On Wednesday and Thursday, however, a reactionary tendency set in and early gains were in some cases completely wiped out and in others substantially lessened.

West Witwatersrands have improved on good development news, while Western Holdings have been active and firmer.

West Africans have mostly moved in the ascendant, particularly Amalgamated Banket areas, while Aristons have hardened on satisfactory development cable.

Coppers have moved ahead on the rise of 15s per ton in the price of the metal. Roan Antelopes and Rhodesian Anglo-Americans have been inquired for and Anacondas have improved.

Diamonds have remained steady, prices moving within narrow limits.

Goldfields Rhodesian Developments have strengthened on the dividend.

Tin shares have been favourably influenced by the rise of £3 13s 9d per ton in the price of the metal, Polberro Tins in particular have gained no less than 2s at 4s 3d on very favourable developments.

RUBBER SHARES EASIER.

After having displayed irregularity throughout the week the rubber share market is easier as compared with a week ago. Java Amalgamateds and Malayalams have moved against holders, while Anglo-Dutch and Rubber Trusts are little altered after having been firmer at one time. The price of the commodity has fallen to 7 5-16d per lb. rubber stocks were 193 tons lower on the week.

OILS IRREGULAR.

An irregular tendency has prevailed in the oil share market during the past week. Attocks have attracted a good deal of attention on favourable news regarding the new well, while Mexican Eagles and Trinidad Developments have moved ahead. Anglo-Ecuadorians, however, have fallen away sharply on news that arrears of tax has to be paid.

TEA SHARES STEADY.

Quiet conditions have prevailed in the tea share market and price movements have been small.

QUIET PROGRESS.

Hall Telephone Accessories (1928), Ltd., declares the usual interim dividend of 5 per cent., and shareholders are assured that the order book, which was full when the chairman addressed them at the last meeting remains satisfactory. Increased orders have been received from the Government and from private concerns. The main factory at Willesden has been fully employed, and the company states that there has been a decided increase in demand for commodity selling machines and for various types of ticket machines. This company has a good dividend record.

DISTILLERS COMPANY.

Lord Forteviot, presiding at the annual meeting of the Distillers Co., Ltd., in Edinburgh, reported that the available profit for the year, after writing down buildings, plant and investments and providing for Debenture interest, etc., was £2,522,204, the sum available for distribution being £2,512,470 an increase of £54,054 as compared with the previous year. The report, which was approved, recommended a final dividend on the Preference stock of 3 per cent., less tax, making, with the interim dividend already paid a dividend of 6 per cent. less tax for the year; also a final dividend on the Ord. stock of 12½ per cent. less tax, making with the interim dividend of 7½ per cent. already paid a dividend for the year of 20 per cent. less tax. Also the payment of a bonus of 2½ per cent. less tax on the Ordinary stock, and carrying forward to next year a sum of £444,359.

PETTERS, LTD., ACQUISITION.

Over 90 per cent. of the share capital of the Liverpool Refrigeration and Engineering Co., Ltd., an important Warrington company, which produces large type refrigeration plant for ships and industrial purposes, has been acquired by Petters, Ltd., the Yeovil firm of Diesel engine manufacturers, Mr. A. P. Good, the chairman of Petters, disclosed to shareholders at the annual meeting. Mr. Good stated that the undertaking acquired used manufacturing methods in many ways similar to those used in the manufacture of oil engines, and did not compete with Petters' oil engine customers. The acquisition would broaden the basis of Petters' manufacturing activities, and would contribute substantially, he hoped, to Petters' profits.

PLOUGHING BACK EARNINGS.

The Stock Exchange has registered for more than twelve months its expectation of diminished industrial profits available for the shareholder. At first the chief attention was given to the tax collector's inroads upon earnings, and next upon actual shrinkage in earnings. Although business activity has been contracting for some time it is only in recent weeks that smaller profits have been reported, and dividend payments have been reduced by a significant number of companies (writes the City Editor of the "Manchester Guardian"). As most firms do not publish their accounts until two or three months after the end of their business year the trading results of the past spring, when contraction became serious, are hardly yet apparent in many company reports. Those issued by the end of the June quarter, however, should cover at least in part a period during which trade was flowing less easily.

The "Economist" has just published its usual compilation of company profits declared in the second quarter of the year. This shows aggregate gross profits, after payment of debenture interest, to be still 12.8 per cent. larger than those announced twelve months earlier—that is, the average company is still showing an increase in profits compared with a year earlier two-thirds as great as that shown a year ago compared with 1936. (No doubt some of these companies have shown profits after meeting their extra tax bill, others before meeting it.)

PROFIT RATE REVISION.

The largest increases are still registered by companies in the heavy industries, shipping, and plantations. By excluding commodity and shipping firms from its list in order to give a better view of home industrial profits, the "Economist" estimates that the rate of increase to be claimed for reports issued in the second quarter should be written down from 12.8 per cent. to about 7 per cent., and of this increased iron and steel profits would account for 4½ per cent. The overall rate, therefore, probably covers a considerable number of companies which have earned less than in the previous year.

Judging by these figures, the Stock Exchange might seem to have been rather previous in marking down equities throughout the last twelve months or more. But the shareholder is less interested in profits than in distributions. Dividend payments have not, as a rule, been increased in proportion to the rise in the total earnings. The ordinary shareholders have received a much smaller proportion of the trading profits than they did, say, in 1929, while greater allocations are made to reserves. Many companies also have to deduct from gross profits a much larger taxation fund.

Although firms in the rubber, oil, and tea industries have dealt more openhandedly with their shareholders than steel and shipping concerns, the tendency to plough back into the business increasing portions of gross earnings continues to spread. Now that trading prospects are once more uncertain in many industries, an increasing number of managements may be expected to retain a larger proportion of profits as reserves against declining business.

THE SPELLING BEE.

FIVE MORE TEAMS ENTER.

NEXT WEEK'S ARRANGEMENTS.

The spelling bees have been buzzing since the announcement that the "Belfast Telegraph," in collaboration with the management of the Classic Cinema, has organised a Spelling Bee contest which will commence next Tuesday evening at 8-45.

Great interest has been taken in the event and five more teams of six members each have been entered, in addition to the Civil Service and the Masked Team, who were early in the field.

The country districts will be represented by a team from Millisle Young Farmers' Club. As they come from an area where spelling bees are in vogue they may be depended upon to give a good account of themselves.

Another interesting entry is that of the staff of the Northern Ireland District Command from Victoria Barracks. The members of that team can rest assured that they will not be asked to spell "khaki"!

More light may be thrown on the subject by Belfast Corporation Gas Department—a team from which has been nominated. They are unlikely to find "incandescent" among the test words.

The municipal officials have certainly risen to the occasion, for, in addition, a team from Belfast Corporation officials has been entered for the tourney.

Another team which it is felt will acquit themselves creditably is known as Rockville.

Only one more team is required to complete the tourney and any team interested should communicate without delay with "Spelling Bee," Mr. T. H. Macdermott, manager, Classic Cinema, Belfast.

Teams will be in opposition on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next week. The semi-finals will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday, 26th and 27th inst., and the final on Friday, July 29. The draw for the first contest on Tuesday next will appear in Monday's "Telegraph."

FLIGHT TO ULSTER.

FORMER LORD MAYORS OF LONDON

GOING BACK THE SAME WAY.

OTHERS TRAVEL BY RAIL AND SEA.

Two of London's former Lord Mayors arrived in Belfast to-day by air en route to Derry. They were Alderman Sir Percy Greenaway, Bart., and Alderman Sir Maurice Jenks, Bart., members of this year's visitation of the Hon. the Irish Society to the Maiden City.

They left Croydon at 9-30 this morning and stepped out of the 'plane at the Belfast Harbour Airport 3½ hours later, obviously delighted with their trip. They have decided to return the same way and have already book their seats.

The 17 other members of the visitation, including the Governor of the Irish Society (Alderman Sir W. Phene Neal, Bart.), and the Deputy Governor (Mr. W. Edwyn Shipton) left London last night and travelling by rail and steamer arrived in Belfast this morning, subsequently leaving on the morning train for Derry.

Sir Percy Greenaway in the year he was Lord Mayor of London, opened the Craigavon Bridge, and received the freedom of the city of Londonderry.

The feature of this year's visitation will be the State order of service in St. Columb's Cathedral on Sunday morning at which the members of the visitation will be present. It will be headed by the Governor (Alderman Sir W. Phene Neal), who succeeds the late Alderman Sir Charles A. Batho, Bart. The members, some of whom have already visited Londonderry, will be received by the Mayor and members of other public bodies.

FRANCO'S ADVANCE ON VALENCIA.

BIG BATTLE IN PROSPECT.

TROOPS MASSING FOR DEFENCE.

The two armies in Spain are now at closer grips than they have been at any time since the battle of Teruel in January, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent with the insurgent forces.

Each side is using men and material unsparingly as the tide of war creeps steadily nearer Sagunto and Valencia.

The insurgent forces were moving forward yesterday along the whole of the Teruel-Castellon front. Having been informed that exceptionally large numbers of Government troops are concentrating in this area the insurgent General Staff is resolved to make the most of this opportunity to destroy the enemy's army.

Already 20,000 Government soldiers are being cut off by the insurgent pincers which are closing south of Sarrion, on the right of the Teruel-Sagunto road. Probably ignorant of their peril, these men are clinging tenaciously to the village of Mora de Rubielos.

QUICK ADVANCE.

Yesterday I visited the Manzanera sector above Sarrion. An advance was in full momentum. Mules heavily laden with ammunition and water were picking their way along a narrow stony track towards the heights just abandoned by the Government troops. The officers were hurrying the men forward.

A few miles ahead insurgent planes were unloading bomb after bomb behind the Government lines. Neither planes nor anti-aircraft guns tried to stop them, but shortly afterwards a squadron of Government bombers flew very high overhead and bombed Sarrion, raising a vast cloud of smoke and dust.

LL. GEORGE'S MESSAGE TO SPAIN.

Mr. Lloyd George has sent the following message to the Spanish Government: "My heartfelt admiration to the valiant men and women of Spain who have put up such a heroic fight and made such sacrifices for freedom against the efforts of a formidable conspiracy of the enemies of liberty in many lands. Their struggle may yet save democracy in Europe from the malignity of its foes and the cowardice and treachery of its faint-hearted friends."

HUGHES' ROUND-THE-WORLD ENGINES

ORDERED FOR BRITAIN.

SALE OF 400 AUTHORISED.

NEW YORK, Saturday. — Four hundred Wright Cyclone engines for the 200 reconnaisance planes recently ordered in the United States by the British Government are to be made by the Curtiss Wright and Wright Aeronautical Corporations. This was announced last night by Mr. Guy W. Vaughan, president of both companies.

He said that the order—one of the largest ever placed with an American aircraft concern—was received from the Lockheed Corporation of Burnak, California, where the planes are being produced. The engines, rated at 1,110 h.p., would be identical with the type fitted in the plane in which Mr. Howard Hughes made his round-the-world flight, and were for installation in similar twin-engined craft. They would be made at Paterson, New Jersey.

The engines have been on the United States Government's restricted list, but officials of the Curtiss Wright Corporation state that they obtained permission from Washington to-day to make the sale.—Reuter.

The accused was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour.

FRONTIER FIGHTING

BRITISH SOLDIERS KILLED.

ALL OF GREEN AWARDS.

WAZIRISTAN OPERATIONS.

SIMLA, Saturday. — Four British soldiers, Privates J. Barnsley, J. Millburn, H. Davidson, and J. Corbett, all belonging to the 2nd Battalion the Green Howards, and two Indian soldiers, are reported to have been killed in Waziristan on Thursday in an encounter with tribesmen.

The casualities occurred while the infantry and Razmak Brigades were attempting to advance on the cave of the Fakir of Ipi in co-operation wiuth aircraft.

A communique says that the opposition was slight at first, but increased later, particularly on the left flank, where the country is steep and difficult.

It was impossible to occupy the cave area before nightfall.

A report states that the hostile Lashkar (lavy of tribesmen) was severely handled by our troops and aircraft.

KING'S RECOVERY.

WAS OUT TO-DAY FOR THE FIRST TIME.

HIS ESCORT TO FRANCE.

PARIS ALREADY REJOICING.

An official announcement issued to-day stated that the King "is better and will be going out to-day."

It was officially announced from Buckingham Palace to-day that the King and Queen will be escorted by destroyers and aeroplanes when they travel from Dover to Calais on Tuesday in the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, commanded by Commander C. P. Frend.

Nine destroyers of the Fifth Destroyer Flotilla will form the naval escort, and 18 general reconaissance aircraft from No 217 Squadron—commanded by Squadron-Leader Humphreys—will form the air escort.

The destroyers concerned will be the Exmouth, Escapade, Eclipse, Echo, Elecra, Escort, Express, Esk, and Encounter.

The Trinity House vessel Patricia, with the Elder Brethren of Trinity House on board, will escort the Enchantress to the limit of territorial waters. Half-way across the Channel the escort duties will be taken over by the French Navy and the French Air Force.

DANCING IN STREETS EVERY NIGHT

PARIS, Saturday.—Paris will be like London during Coronation Week wien the King and Queen arrived on Tuesday. Alreadf Paris hai gone red, white, and blue with the Britiih and French flags, Royal portraits, banners, streamers, and escutcheons, and since Thursday (Bastille Day) midinettes, mesdames, and messieurs, old and young, have danced in the streets nightly in honour of the Royal visit.

The State, the city, and private citizens have all collaborated in decking the capital.

The Boulevard de la Madeleine, which is bordered with plane trees, is particularly charming. From hoops over the middle of the roadway red, white and blue streamers are suspended, the British and French flags alternating in the design. These streamers are looped up to the branches of the trees, so that the whole boulevard is roofed with fluttering colours.

In some thoroughfares the Entente Cordiale is recalled by an immense portrait of King Edward VII.

HORLICK HEIRESS'S DEATH.

INQUEST IS ORDERED.

POLICE INQUIRIES SEQUEL.

DOCTOR SAID DUE NATURAL CAUSES

TORONTO, Saturday.—An inquest into the death of Mrs. Maybell Horlick Sidley, the Horlick's Malted Milk heiress, who died suddenly early this month, has been ordered by the Attorney-General for Ontario, Mr. Gordon Conant. It will take place on July 26.

This decision followed a conference last night between Mr. Conant and police officials, who have been investigating the death.

A private post-mortem on the dead heiress, whose fortune has been estimated at about £3,600,000, showed that the immediate cause of death was cedema of the brain resulting from lesion of the spinal cord.

The doctor who made the examination said that death was due to natural causes.

Mrs. Sidley died at the Toronto home of Mr. William Perkins Bull, K.C., a close friend.

Three days after her death, her mother Mrs. William Horlick, died at Racine, Wisconsin.—Reuter.

SUCCESSION DUTIES QUESTION.

TORONTO, Friday.—Mrs. Sidley has left one-third of her £3,600,000 fortune to her son, Mr. William Sidley, and another third to Mr. William Perkins Bull. The balance, apart from cash bequests of £50,000, has been left to charity.

The "Evening Telegram" reports that a thorough inquiry into the estate of Mrs. Sidley has been ordered by the Ontario Government, under the Succession Duty Act, for the purpose of determining whether the Government can assess the estate for succession duties.

The will of Mrs. Sidley's mother, Mrs. Arabella Horlick, may, it is stated, lead to a legal dispute. Mrs. Horlick left Mrs. Sidley one-half of her estate, or about £300,000, but as she died three days after her daughter, the disposition of the estate may, it is thought, be disputed.—Reuter.

WIMBLEDON CRIME.

IDENTITY OF VICTIM ESTABLISHED.

WAS KNOWN AS "IRISH ROSE"

POLICE APPEAL TO RELATIVES.

Shortly before one p.m. to-day Scotland Yard stated that the woman found brutally murdered at Wimbledon in the early hours of Thursday was Mrs. Rosaline Patricia Mullins.

The Yard statement added:—

"She has used the names Barton, Saich, and Mason. Among her friends she was familiarly known as 'Pat' and 'Irish Rose.'

"She is believed to have been married about nine years ago and had two children, but separated from her husband, who is thought to reside in the district of Wandsworth.

"She has resided for some years at various addresses in South West (London) districts. It is understood that she has relatives in Clapham and Brixton.

"Police desire urgently that her husband and relatives will communicate with them."

Meanwhile the police have intensified their search for a green van which was seen near the spot where the body was found and in which it is thought the murder may have been committed.

The police now have a definite theory as to the nature of the weapon used to commit the murder. They believe that it was a heavy screwdriver, possibly of a type used only in garages.

JACK DUNN DEAD.

SONJA'S SKATING PARTNER.

CAST AS RUDOLPH VALENTINO.

HOLLYWOOD, Saturday.—Jack Dunn, 21-year-old film star and Olympic skater and one-time partner of Sonja Henie, died to-day in a Hollywood hospital. His full name was John Edward Powell Dunn.

Early to-day Mr. Dunn had suffered a relapse after showing signs of improvement.

When he was taken to hospital a week ago it was stated that he was suffering from a streptoccic infection affecting the eyes, nose and throat, but death was stated to be due to a rare disease diagnosed as tularemia, caused by contact with rabbits.

A last minute effort was made to save Mr. Dunn by means of a blood transfusion from a man who had recovered from the same disease, but Dunn, who had previously had three blood transfusions, continued to sink. His mother is due here to-morrow by 'plane. He has two sisters in England.

Mr. Dunn, who was born near Wells, Somerset, was educated at Stowe and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was a member of the British Olympic Skating Team in 1936, and also partner to Miss Sonja Henie, former Olympic and world champion. He turned professional the same year.

Mr. Dunn never won any outstanding championships, but he was a brilliant free skater. It was probably his ability to give a spectacular display in this type of skating that prompted him to accept offers to turn professional and join the same group as Sonja Henie.

Becoming interested in film work, he was signed on for a year by Universal Pictures. They paid him £6,500 for that period without featuring him in a film.

The company explained that no suitable story could be found. During this time Mr. Dunn made "personal appearances" which he said "doubled his income."

In November last he signed a contract with Paramount. Over six feet tall and bearing a remarkable likeness to the late Rudolph Valentino, Mr. Dunn was selected to take the part of Valentino in the United Artists film of the latter's life, but was taken ill before work could begin.

It was generally thought in Hollywood that Mr. Dunn and Miss Sonja Henie would have been co-starred in ice-spectacle pictures and that they would become the "Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers of the ice."

At one time there was talk of a romance between Miss Henie and Mr. Dunn.—Reuter.

[According to "Black's Medical Dictionary," tularemia is a disease of rodents such as rabbits and rats. Infection can be spread into the hands of persons engaged in skinning rabbits. It was first discovered in the district of Tulare, in California, but is found widely spread in North America.]

HUTTON OUT OF TEST.

RESULT OF BROKEN FINGER.

GIBB'S BLOW ON THE HEAD.

Two England Test Match players, P. A. Gibb and Hutton, were injured whilst batting on a tricky wicket against Middlesex at Lord's this morning.

Hutton received a blow on the knuckles off Edrich's bowling and later went to hospital for x-ray examination.

It was diagnosed that the middle finger of the right hand is broken and he will be unable to play in the next Test Match at Leeds.

Shortly afterwards P. A. Gibb was struck on the head by a ball from Smith and had to retire. Gibb was assisted to the dressing room by Smith and held a towel over the wound which appeared to be bleeding profusely.

Three stitches were inserted in P. A. Gibb's wound by a doctor in the dressing room.

BISLEY MARKEMEN IN FINAL TESTS.

KING'S PRIZE RIVALS.

WOMAN IN FINAL HUNDRED.

THE DECIDING SHOOTS.

Driver E. Brookes, of the Royal Army Service Corps, won the St. George's Vase, Dragon Cup, and Gold Cross at Bisley to-day with 74 points.

After a tie shoot the Silver Cross was won by Company-Sergeant-Major G. Emslie (Canada) with 73 points, and the Bronze Cross went to Sergeant Gibault (Canada).

Miss F. E. Fergusson, of New South Wales, is the only woman in the last hundred competing for the King's Prize.

Lance-Corporadl R. D. Greig, late of Winchester College O.T.C., who on Friday won the Silver Medal for the best score in the second stage of the King's rize, has followed up the achievement of D. L. Birney, last year's winner of the Prize, by leading the field in this, the first part of the shoot, which counts for the prize of £250. His total of 147 out of a possible 150 was a point better than the scores of four others.

In the Grand Aggregate competition (open only to past and present members of his Majesty's Forces) F.O. C. Bunch, lyate R.A.F., and S.S.Sergt. J. R. Reynolds, late R.A.O.C., tied with 571, shot off to-day for the Trophy and Gold Cross.

The Bronze Cross and £5 went to Q.M.S.I. P. H. Baron, N.R.A. S. of M. Scottish, 569.

The Junior Grand Aggregate resulted: —£10, Cdt. J. Skinner, Cambridge University O.T.C., 572; £8, P. O. A. Young, Royal Navy, 569; £5, Gunner H. Mole, Royal Navy, 567.

Flying-Officer Bunch, in the tie-shoot, scored a magpie and two inners, while Sergt. Reynolds, after missing with his first shot, could only manage two magpies. The trophy, therefore, went to Bunch.

When this was decided nothing remained in the programme except the final stage of the King's Prize, which concludes the meeting.

IN MEMORIAM.

SAVAGE—In loving memory of my dear husband, David Savage, who departed this life on 17th July, 1937.

There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you daily,
And tries to be brave and content.
We shed many a tear in silence,
And breathe many a sigh of regret,
For you are still ours to remember,
If all the world will forget.

Sadly missed by his loving Wife and Family.

Also my dear mother, Minnie M'Ilwrath, who departed this life on 13th November, 1933.

Ever remembered by her loving Daughter and Grandchildren.

62 Foundry Street.

SAVAGE—In loving memory of our dear son, David; also our loving son, James. Both interred in Dundonald Cemetery. Also our dear sons, Samuel and Robert, who were killed in action in France.

One by one their seats were emptied,
One by one they went away;
Here the circle has been broken,
Will it be complete some day?

Ever remembered by their loving Father and Mother and Sister.

ROBERT AND LIZZIE SAVAGE.

32 Parker Street.

Also their loving Brother and Sister-in-law.

THOMAS AND AGGIE SAVAGE.

30 Lendrick Street.

WELSH—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Norah, who died on 16th July, 1937

To-day recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
Our hearts are nigh to breaking,
Our eyes are dimmed with tears,
For death has robbed us of one
We thought was ours for years.

Deeply regretted by her Father and Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

CHARLES AND MARGARET WELSH.

30 Hopewell Street.
